C.C.B. begins its Fall registration

By Dr. Sidney Kobre

It's Early Bird Registration time at the Community College of Baltimore and it's time to come in and talk over your future education and career with counselors.

The Fall semester is only a short time away, and smart teenagers and mature adults are taking advantage of the opportunity to plan ahead at our Early Bird Registration," said Paul Beckham, director of Off-Campus Centers in the Division of Continuing Education.

The Division sponsors the evening courses for part-time students at the Liberty Campus, the Northern Off-Campus College Center as well as the Lake Clifton and Patterson centers.

Hours for registration are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Applications for the Day Division courses are also being received now by Mr. Joseph Stein, director of admissions.

"If you have sons or daughters who want to train for well-paying jobs which also give personal satisfaction, aim your children toward CCB," said Mr. Beckham.

PAUL BECKHAM

Adults, now working in Baltimore's industries, commercial concerns, or government jobs, will find CCB courses to suit their vocational and special-interest needs, Mr. Beckham asserted.

For more information write Mr. Beckham, CCB, 2901 Liberty Heights Avenue (21215), or call him at 462-5800 for the evening courses. Contact Mr. Joseph Stein for the Day Division programs.

Essex Community College offers 4 new courses

Essex Community College is adding four new educational programs with the start of the Fall semester in September.

New curriculum programs in the areas of Health Planning Assistant, Public Administration Assistant, Statistical Associate, and an option in Drug Abuse Counselor in the current Mental Health Associate curriculum received final approval at a meeting of the Board of Trustees on June 12.

The new programs will provide increased opportunities for local residents to study in additional areas and to preapre for future employment.

The Health Planning Assistant program is the first of its type to be introduced in the nation. It is designed to provide better health care through more careful planning. The graduates of the new program will be capable of assisting administrators and other key personnel in health care agencies in basic institutional research, analysis of data, assessment of local needs, development of plans and priorities, and evaluation of programs.

Currently much of this type of activity is performed at very high cost or is not being done in the scope that it should be prior to implementation of new health programs and services.

Graduates of the two-year program will be able to work with professional health planners releiving the professional planners of some of the more routine functions with the result that such agencies will be able to make more efficient use of personnel.

The Public Administration Assistant program is also a unique development, being the only two-year program of its type in the Baltimore area. This curriculum prepares members of the community for positions in federal State, and local government and provides in-service education for current public employees.

Sen. Dalton refiles for the Senate

Sen. Robert L. Dalton (Balto. City, 2nd) has filed for re-election to the State Senate. Senator Dalton, who has been one of the two State Senators representing Baltimore's Second District, has filed for the Senate seat from the new 45th District located in East Baltimore.

Since his election to the Senate in 1970, Sen. Dalton has worked to maintain, restore, and revitalize neighborhoods in East Baltimore through active assistance to citizens to secure city services and through continual support of civic groups interested in community improvement.

Sen. Dalton has introduced legislation in the State Legislature which enabled the city to establish a program of issuing violations when properties are not kept in sanitary condition after warning notice has been given.

Mrs. Tate named to Academy of Sciences Trustees Board

Mrs. Constance P. Tate, of Washington, has been elected to a 2-year term on the Board of Trustees of the Maryland Academy of Sciences, according to J. Cookman Boyd, Jr., the chairman.

Mrs. Tate has participated in many programs at the Academy over the last 15 years. However, her association with the organization grew even closer two years ago when she accepted membership on the Academy's Educational Committee.

The 20-year veteran of the Baltimore City school system said she would like the Academy's new Science Center, to be completed later this year, to adopt a "strong educational program so the entire community—youths and adults, scientists and laymen—would benefit from its resources."

Mrs. Tate also wants the Science Center, located at the southwest corner of Baltimore's Inner Harbor, to supplement formal classroom teaching. She said topics which do not lend themselves to classroom instruction, or which are not taught in school should be incorporated into programs offered by the Academy.

The ecology of the Chesapeake Bay and Baltimore Harbor is a good example, said Mrs. Tate, especially since the Science Center will be closed to those natural resources.

Mrs. Tate also recognizes the Academy's responsibility to grown-up students, saying that seminars should be offered to professionals and semi-professionals in science-related fields for their continued education.

Mrs. Tate began her career at Douglass Senior High School as a science teacher. From there, she became the head of the science department at Lemmel Junior High School. She was an administrator at Herring Run Junior High School before becoming an Education Specialist in the Office of Science, Division of Instruction and Curriculum Management eight years ago.

Mrs. Tate is also a regional director of the National Science Teachers Association. In addition, she has served on the Advisory Board for Science Teachers.

Of all her accomplishments, Mrs. Tate ranks her years as a classroom teacher uppermost in importance and added:

"If I have made any contribution to the community, I hope it has been that." Mrs. Tate is the wife of Herbert D. Tate, a federal employee.
