Baltimore gets $751,529 for head start progarm

Baltimore has received $751,529 in federal funds to support various head start projects throughout the city for the coming year.

The grant from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare will provide pre-school training for 190 children on a full-day and 218 youngsters on a part-day basis.

The Baltimore head start program includes projects at St. Veronica's Head Start Center, Union Baptist Church, Ashland Nursery and the Knox Head Start Center.

The program director is Carlsthea Johnson.

Urban Services holds elections

The Urban Services Commission is holding an election of 10 representatives from the Model Cities area on Tuesay, July 16.

The commission is the policy-making board of the Urban Services agency. The agency is the successor to the Community Action Agency and the Model Cities Agency.

The commission is expanding its board members from 29 to 31 members.

The election provides residents with the opportunity to elect the individual or individuals of their choice to represent them and their communities in any policy-making decision affecting the inner-city.

All voting will be done by secret ballot. The polling places are all model cities councils. Residents can go to any one of the councils for more information.

JUNE 30

Some 10,000 delegates from across the nation are attending the convention of the National Education Association (NEA) in Chicago from June 30 to July 3.

CCB COUNSELING SERVICE—Counselor Miss Aurelia Parker of the new women's counseling service at the Community College of Baltimore, discusses academic and job problems with Miss Cynthia Stewart. The women's counseling service has been established to help women, single as well as married with college and career problems.

CCB gets new women's counseling service

By Dr. Sidney Kobre

The Community College of Baltimore is establishing a Women's Counseling Service, where women can obtain expert educational and career information and counseling.

"An increasing number of women, both singles and married, are attending the college in various neighborhoods," said President Harry Bard.

"We believe this accelerated enrollment of women reflects the growing interest of those who wish to return to college, or to attend classes for the first time," said Dr. Bard.

He pointed out that the special CCB services will be helpful to women who have been absent from a school setting for some time.

Mrs. Elinor K. Heath, director of counseling at the college, who will coordinate the women's services, said, "Women have certain concerns or fears about coming to college. The adult woman often ask questions, such as whether women can succeed in college, or whether they can still study after being away from textbooks since high school days.

Assisting Mrs. Heath will be Counselors Sylvia Michelson, Adele Fing, Aurelia Parker and Patricia Dockendorf. They have had experience in conducting workshops for women. The counselors will be available for conferences Wednesday and Thursday from 9 to 3 p.m., and during the evenings from 6 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Other days and hours may be arranged.

Prospective women students may come in for a conference in the Student Personnel Office, Administrative Wing of CCB, 2901 Liberty Heights Ave. They may call 462-5800, Ext. 303, for an appointment.

7th LCA biennial convention

Delegates to the 7th biennial convention of the Lutheran Church in America in Baltimore July 5-10 will elect officers, approve budgets, receive reports from churchwide agencies and consider recommendations on a variety of issues.

There will be 679 delegates from the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

Among matters coming before the convention for approval will be a study of theological affirmations, women in church and society and structural reorganization. There will be several memorials from synods.
