count on us...

We are proud to give special recognition to those members of the Giant family who were chosen by their co-workers as those persons who best typify our Count On Us theme. These winners, two in each store-one who serves you personally and one who serves behind the scene-are representative of the entire Giant family. You can count on us because we can count on one another.

This week we salute one of the Count On Us winners from the Giant Food & Pharmacy at 5901 Reisterstown Road in Baltimore. He is Hugh Ward. Hugh has been a member of the Giant family for over 7 years.

Denver suit pursued despite girl's victory

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Catholic Youth Recreation Association says it has dropped the court battle to keep a nine-year-old girl from playing in the CYRA Boys Baseball League.

The parents of Anne-Marie Sandquist, however, say it isn't that easy.

"Well, I'm not a legal person but I feel it must be our choice because we filed the suit," said her father Ted Sandquist. "As well as Anne-Marie playing, there's a matter of the forfeited games and then kicking us off our home field."

Denver District Judge Robert Kingsley issued a temporary injunction allowing Anne-Marie to play for the Most Precious Blood Catholic Church Tigers June 19 and also ordered the reinstatement of coach Mike Ousley, who was fired by the CYRA board for allowing her to play.

The CYRA made the Tigers forfeit the two games Anne-Marie played in before the court order and Sandquist said since his daughter started playing again, the Tigers have been forced to play on the west side of Denver instead of the east side, where they played before.

A hearing on a permanent injunction was scheduled Monday, but postponed and no new trial date was set.

"Well I guess they have succeeded in getting the trial held up until after the season ends," said Sandquist, inreference to the fact that the season ends in two weeks. "But we're not going to drop this.

"Our purpose in this suit is to have it so our daughter can play but we also hope our actions will strike down sex discrimination against all girls," Sandquist said.

Leonard Carlia, the CYRA lawyer, said the group still opposed allowing girls to play but couldn't afford a lengthy court battle with American Civil Liberties Union.

OLYMPIC NOMINEE—Dr. Leroy Walker, veteran head coach at N. C. Central, is one of five finalists being considered for appointment as men's track and field coach for the U.S. Olympic team in Montreal in 1976. Others nominated are Florida's Jimmy Carnes, Tennessee's Stan Huntsman, California's Dave Maggard and Oregon State's Berny Wagner. Decision will come in October.

Terps' Lucas leads U.S. cagers to world title

SAN JUAN (UPI) — Guard John Lucas of the University of Maryland, scored 22 points before fouling out to lead the United States to a 113-94 victory over a tough Canadian quintet in the final round of the World Amateur Basketball championship.

The Americans, all collegiate undergraduates, led 55-37 at halftime.

The U.S. turned on the steam at the start and built up a 13-point lead in the first 10 minutes and was never threatened by the persistent Canadians, who were playing in the final round of a world championship for the first time.

Tom Boswell of South Carolina added 20 points for the U.S., Eugene Short of Jackson State had 13, Luther Burden of Utah had 12 and Gus Gerard of Virginia added 10. The defensive standouts were Richard Kelley, the 7-foot center from Stanford, who continued to amaze the Puerto Rican fans with his agility and stamina, and Jie Merriweather, the 6-11 forward-center form Southern Illinois.

Ken McKenzie, a 6-10 center, garnered 20 points for the Canadians, who are coached by Jack Donahue of New York. James Russell had 13 points and Bill Robinson and Michael Moser 12 each.

Senate votes to force amateur sports peace

An early end to the power struggle for control of amateur sports loomed as a distinct possibility this week as Congress took its step toward forcing peace between officials of the NCAA and AAU.

The Senate approved and sent to the House by a 62-29 vote Tuesday a bill which would create a five-member federal commission with authority to arbitrate the bitter disputes which have raged between the two rival accrediting groups in recent years.

At issue was a long-standing feud between the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

During floor debate, Sen. John V. Tunney, D.-Calif., called the measure "a crucial step in the crisis of American sports" and said it would "begin to break the stranglehold that the massive amateur sports bureaucracies have held over amateur athletes for 70 years in America."

He added it was designed "to end, once and for all, the divisive sanctioning wars that have marred the history of amateur athletics in this country and have often worked to the detriment of individual amateur athletes."

The proposed board would designate sports organizations which then would sanction amateur athletic competition—limited to three sports per organization—among teams of different nations or for trials for the Olympics and other international events.

The Senate okayed authorizing $1.1 million for each of the next six years for the board's operations. But it balked at providing federal financial aid to develop amateur sports at the local level.

Hank says HR record won't last

PITTSBURGH — Hank Aaron, alltime home run king, said Monday his record will fall some day.

"I don't see anybody around now who will crack my final figure," the Atlanta outfielder said. But that doesn't mean some young fellow with a big clout, endurance, consisteney and help from the schedule makers can't top my record."

Aaron had hit 725 home runs to that point, but he plans to hang up his uniform at the end of this season. The 40-year-old outfielder broke Babe Ruth's homer record of 714 career home runs earlier this year.

Hank says he is basing his prediction on a new home run king on various things, such as expansion.

"Who knows what the future will bring? He asked. "Expansion is the theme everywhere. This could mean more games per season. There also could be less traveling. These things could help a powerful hitter."

Aaron said his personal life had not changed much since he broke Ruth's mark.

"I am being accepted a lot more than I was before going for the record," he said. "The fans have been very good to me everywhere I go. My mail is just as heavy as every, very favorable."

Track meet set Sunday at CCC

Talented teams of Sports International and the D.C. Striders will join athletes of the powerful Baltimore Olympic Club in a track meet Sunday afternoon at Catonsville Community College.

Also entered on the program scheduled to begin at 1:30, are the North Baltimore and Cavalier track clubs and the Nittany Lion aggregation.

Scheduled events are 440,880, one mile, two mile and distance medley relays, and 100, one mile, Masters mile, three miles, pole vault, high jump and shot put.
