Milton Allen's administration praised, named one of best

Distinguished attorneys and research analysts from across the nation after an extensive visit last March, had given Baltimore State's Attorney Milton B. Allen the highest of compliments. His operation is rated as "one of the best" in the nation.

A 65-page report includes a summary of what police officers said after the team questioned them.

It states:

"Team members interviewed a variety of police officers. . .ranging from Sergeants to the Deputy Police Commissioner," and reported:

"Every patrolman and police official interviewed was highly complimentary of the State's Attorney's operations and was very pleased with the performance of Mr. Allen as State's Attorney.

"All of those interviewed described the police-prosecutor relations in Baltimore City as excellent. At the present time, there appear to be no major problems between the law enforcement and prosecution agencies."

The National Center for Prosecution Management praised "the ene. . . dedication of the State's Attorney towards improving the Criminal Justice System in Baltimore City, Maryland," and - at page 45 of its Report - notes:

"'In conclusion, the State's Attorney's office of Baltimore City has made great strides in recent years both operationally and fiscally, and it is to be highly commended for the quality of prosecution which it represents.

Considering the financial resources and personnel available, the State's Attorney's Office of Baltimore City is one of the best urban prosecution operations that N.C.M.P. has observed."

The report concludes with 15 specific recommendations, places special emphasis upon "the conscientious effort he (Mr. Allen) has made to improve and maintain the police-prosecutor relations in Baltimore City," and notes that "the administrative operation of the State's Attorney's Office in Baltimore is one of the best that has been observed by the National Center.

The Technical Assistance Team was particularly impressed with the fact that attorneys in the specialized units "have made themselves available on a 24 hour basis, and have frequently responded to late night requests for assistance in the preparation of Search and Arrest Warrants."

The report praised the high quality of prosecution, pointing out, that Mr. Allen's Baltimore office has made strides in recent years both operationally and fiscally.

Stating that innovative procedures have been instituted, the report observes. "Considering the financial resources and personnel available the State's Attorney's office in Baltimore City is one of the best urban prosecutorial operations observed by the NCMP."

According to the technical team both District Court and Criminal Court judges were generally complimentary of Mr. Allen as an individual and of the Assistant State's Attorney's in his office.

After observing the administrative procedure the team says mail control system is very well organized and runs fairly smoothly.

"The State's Attorney is aware of the management potential and value of this type of mail control operations, and the office has reaped substantial benefit from its implementation."

The report says "the filing procedures are models of efficient administration," and praised the "efficient job of maintaining a great variety of statistical data on the office's operations."

On planning and development the team notes that Mr. Allen has done an exceptional job in developing new programs, coordinating existing programs with outside agencies and providing policies and general procedures for office operations and administration.

In conclusion the team states: "The above suggestions are made with the realization that the State's Attorney's office has already made great strides towards the great deal of good management.

"The team members were impressed with the energy and dedication of the State's Attorney toward improving the criminal justice system in Baltimore City."
