Cong. Parren Mitchell votes against Rocky's confirmation

The following statement by Congressman Parren J. Mitchell (D-7th) was inserted into the Congressional Record regarding the Confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President of the United States.

"I shall be with a minority of the U.S. House of Representatives as I cast my vote against the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as Vice President of the United States.

"This is an especially difficult vote for me because I am cognizant of the talent and ability and past contributions of the nominee. I am also fully aware of the great philanthropic contributions of the Rockefeller family. Because I am a Black man, I am also aware that Black American's have benefitted greatly by the philanthropies of the Rockefeller Foundation. However, I must vote against the confirmation.

"No person should condemn any other person because he has a great abundance of wealth or because he is abjectly poor. Yet I cannot disabuse my mind of the gnawing, searing fear that the awesome combination of political power and economic power in the long run bodes ill for the Nation.

"Perhaps this persisting, nagging fear would leave me if, as Governor of the State of New York, Mr. Rockefeller, had not lavished big gifts and big loans to public officials and influential citizens. It concerns me gravely that wealth could be used to pay for the writing and publishing of a book which was clearly designed to smear the life and political career of a political opponent of Governor Rockefeller.

"Along with these concerns, I must remember Attica, a stain against the Nation that will not be washed away for many years to come. I must remember the get "tough on welfare recipients" posture that Mr. Rockefeller assumed when he apparently believed it was to his political advantage to do so.

"I must remember that it was at Nelson Rockefeller's insistance that Anti-drug legislation which was violative of civil liberties was rammed through the New York State Assembly.

"Finally, we must inevitably come to grips with the problem associated with the second use of the 25th Amendment within less than a year. At the time of the Nixon debacle I, along with many of my Colleagues, was grateful that the Congress had enacted this measure.

"However, I remain convinced that none of us contemplated that the Congress would, within less than a year, twice act as a surrogate for the people by naming a Vice President.

"We must make some changes in the Law because citizens should not be denied the basic right to select a Vice President of their own choosing.

"These are troubled, chaotic times for our Nation. We need strong and effective leadership in our highest elective offices. We need to pledge fulsome support to strong, effective, positive leadership. My negative vote against the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller for Vice President does not and should not mean that he will not receive cooperation and support from me after he is Vice President. My negative vote means only that I have wrestled with my conscience and conscience has prevailed."

Former prisoner of war wins 4 medals in a week

In May, he was awarded four medals in one week — two Purple Hearts and two Good Conduct Medals. Last week, Specialist 6 Thomas J. Davis was at it again.

On Dec. 5, the former prisoner-of-war was presented two Bronze Stars. The next day, he graduated from the Calibration Technician and Specialist Course, the Ordnance School's longest and most difficult.

SP6 Davis spent five years and five days as a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

His first Bronze Star was for "continuous showing of resistance to an enemy who ignored all international agreements on treatment of prisoners of war while detained as POW in Southeast Asia."

The second commended SP 6 Davis "for unselfishly risking his life in order to save the life of a South Vietnamese POW while in a POW status.

Captured March 11, 1968, SP6 Davis was held three years in Viet Cong-controlled areas of South Vietnam, then transferred to the North. While a prisoner in the South, he was wounded.

"I was checking out the situation around the camp, seeing if it was possible to escape," he recalls, "when I stepped on a punji stick.

"It messed up my ankle pretty bad. I washed it out real clean, and miraculously it didn't get infected."

On his release, SP6 Davis went first to Hanoi, then to the Philippines, Hawaii, New Jersey and Augusta, Ga.

Along the way, he talked to a friend of his who was taking the Aircraft Armament Course at the Ordnance School, and who had already taken the Calibration Course.

"I said I wanted something in electronics. I was thinking about Aircraft Armament. He said, 'Why not Calibration?'"

Since his release, the Eufala, Ala. native has married. He and his wife, Barbara, have a daughter named Tameka.

To be near home, the specialist reenlisted Dr station of choice — Redstone Arsenal, in Huntsville, Ala. "It's 250 miles from Eufala," he explains, "and it's got the Army Metrology Command Center there."

(Metrology is the study of measurement, as in calibration.)

Lang gets top SBA appointment

G. J. Lang, district director of the Baltimore District Office of the Small Business Administration, has announced the appointment of W. Howard Hayman, regional vice president of the First National Bank of Maryland, to the Maryland Advisory Council on Small Business.

Mr. Lang said that Mr. Hayman has been selected for Council membership in recognition of his knowledge of and interest in problems of small business.

As a member of the Advisory Council, Mr. Hayman will take part in the semi-annual meetings where the needs of the local small business community are discussed and the means by which SBA can most effectively meet these needs are considered. In addition to the semi-annual meetings, he will meet with SBA representatives and other community leaders regularly to assist in immediate needs of the small business community.

The Advisory Council, also, serves as a channel of information to local business and commercial interests regarding specific SBA problems and as an advisory body which makes recommendations concerning SBA programs and keeps the District Director informed of current economic conditions within the State of Maryland. Members serve without pay for a two year term.

Mr. Hayman directs the activities of the First National Bank of Maryland's Eastern Shore area. He is a life long resident of Salisbury, Md., and presently is chairman of the Salvation Army Boys Club Council and is a liberal member of the Salvation Army.

He is active in other organizations, such as the United Fund, Salisbury Chamber of Commerce, YMCA and the Greater Salisbury Committee. He presently resides at 604 Fountain Road, Salisbury.

$1.6-million countersuit filed in business dispute

By Jim Duff

An already complicated suit involving two black-owned Richmond businesses has become more complicated with the filing of a $1.6-million countersuit by members of the board of one of the companies.

Saying they had been subjected to "public scorn and humiliation," eight board members of Metro-Services Corp. last week filed the countersuit in Richmond Circuit Court. Each asks for $200,000 in damages from Charles Lewis and his wife, Elizabeth.

The Lewises had earlier filed a $2-million suit against Metro-Services and Clarence L. Townes Jr. Townes is a member of the Metro-Services board and is also president of Metropolitan Coach Inc.

Licensed to operate charter bus service, Metropolitan Coach was founded by Lewis, who remains the principal stockholder in the company. He hired Townes last May to run the company.

In July, Metropolitan Coach was merged into Metro-Services in an agreement signed by Lewis. Metro-Services lawyers claim the merger rescued the coach company which they say was in danger of defaulting on loans insured by the Small Business Administration.

The Lewises contend that Townes has attempted to take over their company. They asked the Richmond Circuit Court to void the merger and grant them $2-million for damages.

Joining Townes in the suit against the Lewises were: S. Gordon Madden, president of Metro-Services; Dr. Frank S. Royal, physician; Dr. Harry Royal, physician; Dr. Walton M. Belle, physician; Dr. Charles E. Cummings, physician; Dr. William S. Thornton, a podiatrist and Clarence L. Townes Sr., vice chairman of Virginia Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co.

Metro-Services is represented by Attorney M. Ralph Page who is also a member of the Metro-Services board. State Sen. Lawrence Douglas Wilder filed the original suit for the Lewises.

BUSY AT WORK in his office is Melvin Dorsey, director of the new prison facility.

who had the heart attack.

Del. Brailey said, "As a child, she barely had food and other children in the family were forced to help their mother at a very young age. Her mother died while she was in prison.

"I think this teenager should be given a chance to live decently and look forward to a good life as an adult.

"She told me she had never seen the woman to this day. She said she was arrested Dec. 13, 1971 and was placed in the Snowhill Jail and did not know the woman had "dropped dead" after she saw the teenagers running from her house."

Bicycle handbook available Dec. 31

The Maryland Department of Transportation is issuing a new "Bicycling Safety Handbook" which will be available at no charge starting Dec. 31.

This handbook was prepared to help bicyclists become familiar with State laws, safety devices, maintenance and proper cycling practices.

The Motor Vehicle Administration, one of the Maryland Department of Transportation's operating agencies, will be distributing the handbook.

Copies may be picked up at the headquarters office of the Motor Vehicle Administration, 6601 Governor Ritchie Highway, Glen Burnie, or at any of the regional offices located in Salisbury, Cumberland, Rockville, Waldorf, Hagerstown, College Park, Chesapeake City, Forestville, and Baltimore City.

The publication of the handbook is a joint effort of the Maryland Department of Transportation and the U.S. Department of Transportation, National Highway Traffic Safety Division.

PROMOTED. — Melvin J. Bordley was recently promoted to Staff Director, ESEA Title I Comparability, for the Baltimore City public schools. He has worked in the school system for 11 years as a science teacher, educational specialist and staff specialist. He received his B. S. and M. S. degrees from Morgan State College and has done graduate work at Hampton Institute and the State College, University of Paris, France. Mr. Bordley and his wife, Delores, have been married for 8 years and have two children.

HEART WORKERS—Senior citizens of the Waxter Center recently made about 1,600 red hearts to be used in decorating Christmas trees for the Heart Association. The idea was that a dollar contribution to the association enabled a doctor to place one of the hearts on a Christmas tree in Cedonia Mall. Shown at work are Nanon Jackson and Mrs. Anna Keber.

Fitzpatrick leaving City Council, Baltimore

City Councilman Robert J. Fitzpatrick, D. 2nd District, will be leaving the City Council and Baltimore pretty soon.

Fitzpatrick, 34, present dean of students at Johns Hopkins University will be leaving his council post to become president of the California Institute of Arts, Valencia. He has named defeated Delegate Frank O. Heinz, D. 37th District, to take his place.

Fitzpatrick, a native of Canada, became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1963. He attributed his desire for citizenship and interest in politics to his admiration for the late President John F. Kennedy.

He spoke fondly of his work on the council and admitted that he was hesitant about giving up his seat. He feels that his work and life here has been a learning experience.

"I discovered a great deal about Baltimore and its problems. I'm grateful to the population of the second district for giving me the chance."

He also expressed his gratitude at having worked with Councilmen Robert L. Douglass and Clarence "Du" Burns. He emphasized the fact that his relationship with the councilman was more than just one of political expediency. "I feel he has my remarks for the people of Baltimore, he said. "We have an extraordinary and vital city. It's success or continued success depends upon our ability to keep a sense of community and neighborhood identity.

Dr. J Wayman Henry Sr. was retired AME minister

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. J. Wayman Henry, Sr., a retired African Methodist Episcopalian Minister, were held Tuesday, at 11 a.m. at the Bethel AME Church, Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St.

Dr. Henry, 76, died unexpectedly Saturday morning at his Brighton St. residence.

Born in Ridgely, Md., the son of the late Asbury and Grace Henry, he was a descendant of the great black abolitionist, Frederick Douglass.

He was a product of the public schools of Caroline County, and was graduated from Wilberforce University and Payne Theological Seminary, Wilberforce, Ohio.

He retired from the active ministry in 1964 after serving 39 years in various positions in the AME denomination, some which were St. John's, Louisville, Ky.; Robinson, Grassonville, Md., Bethel, Richmond, Va. St. Paul's, Newport News, Virginia; presiding elder of the Norfolk District; Thomastown Circuit, Md.; Union Bethel, Cecilton, Md. and Allen AME, Baltimore, Md.

Throughout his career as a leader and preacher, Dr. Henry served on many community and service boards and committees.

Because of his religious and civic involvement in Newport News, Va., his work was recognized by Kittrell College, Kittrell, N.C. where he received his honorary Doctor of Divinity Degree.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary J. Walkre; four sons, J. Wayman, Jr., and William B., of Baltimore, Clifton W. of Washington, D.C., Matthew M. of Atlanta, Ga. and one daughter, Rosemary Joann Henry of Baltimore; 3 brothers, 1 sister and seven grandchildren.

Paper center suspends operation

The City Reclamation Center on Cold Spring Lane cannot accept any paper until further notice, according to Mayor Schaefer.

"At the present time, there's no market for waste paper. The dealers in this area are not able to take any more paper," the mayor said.

Glass bottles and flattened cans will continue to be accepted for recycling at the Reclamation Center, 2221 W. Cold Spring Lane. The Center, operated by the Department of Public Works, is open Saturdays and Sundays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"When market conditions change, we will advise citizens that we're back in the paper recycling business again," the mayor added.

Sen. Blount to introduce replacement record bill

Sen. Clarence W. Blount (Balto. City, 41st) has announced he will introduce legislation in January requiring schools which advertise their ability to place students in gainful employment to make available to each applicant a record of the school's job placement successes for the previous two years.

"Too many schools, anxious to attract applicants, exaggerate or make misleading statements about their success in preparing students for careers."

The Federal Trade Commission does have the power to investigate such deceptive practices for schools operating interstate. In a recent case they determined that a number of schools, some of which were located in Maryland, had to rebate tuition payments to students who had been misled.

"However," said Sen. Blount, "a student has already invested his time and effort in the program before he learns that he has been falsely advised."

The State Department of Education accredits non-public schools located in Maryland. They also may require non-public schools claiming to train for a career to place on file with the state superintendent an accounting of their job placement record.

Sen. Blount said his bill offers a way to make this kind of information immediately available to applicants. It also provides some control over out of state schools doing business in Maryland.

BCWRO meeting Jan. 8

The Baltimore City Welfare Rights Organization will hold a public hearing on the proposed revision advance notice of cutoff or reduction of benefits at 2 p.m., Jan. 8, at 1315 St. Paul St.

A recent proposed federal regulation law would allow the welfare agency to reduce the present advance notice of cutoff or reduction from 15 to 10 days.

The organization feels that 10 days is not sufficient time for the client to respond to whatever action is being taken against him.

Any questions participants may want to ask must be submitted to Ms. Rudell Martin, Baltimore Welfare Rights Organization, 29 N. Fulton Ave., Baltimore, Md. 21223.

New prison youth facility seems off to good start

By Angela Chatman

The Community Residential Facility for Youth, O'Brien House, 521 E. Eager St., seems to be off to a good start.

The program, headed by Melvin Dorsey, a 12 year veteran of the state correctional system, is a rehabilitation program for "high impact offenders" between the ages of 17 and 25. It was begun in March of this year.

The majority of those under the program are men who have committed serious crimes such as murder, rape, aggravated assault, robbery and burglary.

The men are screened carefully before being accepted into the program. All have six to eight months before they are to be paroled or released from prison.

Dorsey, says of the program, "The purpose is to rechannel the man's energy so that when he leaves here he won't return."

Dorsey cited four methods used to achieve this goal:

1. A work-release program, which provides meaningful jobs with at least a minimum wage for the men. Work that they will continue with once paroled.

2. An educational or job training release program which enables the inmate to finish his education and be given a marketable skill.

3. A counseling program which gives the man a counselor who has the responsibility to help the inmate in anyway he can and to give guidance.

4. A treatment program which channels the inmates into outside agencies for services not provided by the facility. This also gets the men into the habit of using agencies that may be of help to him when he is released.

In addition, there are drug abuse and alcohol abuse detection programs.

The program also helps the men with money management by aiding them in establishing bank accounts.

Director Dorsey, said, "We are interested in what the man's needs were at the time he committed the offense. We try to help him so that he can deal with those needs in a different way."

"We want to prepare a man for re-integration into the community."

The facility, a proto-type for other projected centers in the city and surrounding counties, has a small staff comprised of a team leader and assistant director; eight counselors, who are to work in close contact with men; and a team of four consultants.

It has a capacity of 28 to 30 residents and funded by the federal government through the Governor's Commission on Law Enforcement Administration. Dorsey hopes that the program will be picked up by the state in 1976 when federal funding runs out.

Two years in the planning, O'Brien House was established with the aid of Paul Showell, director of Community Correction Task Force, and the Brentwood - Forest - Parent - Child Interest Group.

The latter group has agreed to participate in community activities with the house. The residents help the community by working with the children. They participate in such activities as Karate class; weightlifting; boxing; boys scouts and a young girls group, Les Petits.

They have also participated in programs to help the elderly in the neighborhood.

But the program is new and there are still problems which must be ironed out.

Loyola evening class registration

Registration will continue from now through Jan. 29 for more than 100 courses open to the general public by Loyola College's evening undergraduate division.

Courses are available leading to degrees in accounting, business administration, computer science, special education, education, psychology, sociology, as well as programs in the humanities and science.

Certificate programs for students interested in pursuing a limited course of studies are offered in business, accounting, and guidance and counseling.

Interested persons may register as special students, taking one or more course of their choice for credit. A wide selection is available, including courses in effective speaking and effective writing, photography, computers, ethics, counseling minority youth and adults, Shakespeare, the American Revolution and environmental study.

Classes get underway on Feb. 3, and registration will be held during both day and evening hours. For more information or registration materials, interested persons may call Loyola College's evening division, 323-1010, ext. 255-6.

REGISTER now so you can vote for the next mayor and city councilpersons. Do so today at Supervisors of Elections, People's Court Building Fayette and Gay Sts. Next election is Sept., 1975. Get prepared NOW.
