Rev. Jackson honored at Columbia reception

By Pinnie L. Ross

Guests crowded the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey (Ora) Anderson, Monday night. The ladies had a gleam in their eyes to meet the handsome Rev. Jessie Jackson, director of Operation PUSH at the reception given in his honor.

The spacious lower recreation area in the Andersons' Kilimanjaro home was the center of the "happening."

Charming teenagers were on their job taking the wraps and ushering the guests to the "happening" area.

Music, I should say, and who wouldn't recognize the touch of the piano, was provided by talented Freddie Fuller, a Wilde Lake High School senior.

Tasty punch, hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, and beautiful people combined to make the evening a memorable occasion.

• • •

Guests stood and sang the National Anthem ("Lift Every Voice and Sing") after which the invocation was given by the Rev. Walter Long.

Mr. Anderson, longtime friend and co-worker of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and friend of the honoree, welcomed the guests.

He advised the honoree was ill and unable to attend the reception, but sent the well-informed Rev. Bernard Taylor, an aide.

The Rev. Mr. Taylor said Dr. Jackson wanted guests to know he was concerned about them and particularly wanted them to know about the march in Washington on January 15 and how they could become involved.

He said that PUSH and other organizations are in an economic crisis and need funds. Envelopes were distributed for contributions.

• • •

Big chuckles came from guests when the Rev. Mr. Taylor remarked jokingly, "This is the first time in an affluent community. I am from Chicago — very poor and from the ghetto. I am sure your contributions will be sizable."

He added: — "It's all right for us to have money, but you should have a moral commitment and moral concern, religious dimension. We hope to launch a PUSH Chapter in Washington by the end of the week."

One guest asked the question regarding companies pledging large sums of money and the public never hearing the results of their pledging, such as Avon . . .

The Rev. Mr. Taylor said Operation PUSH never seeks monies from companies; however, he did say they challenge them by getting people involved in jobs, not necessarily money.

I am sure the nation remembers the multitude of people from every walk of life who participated in the great March on Washington.

Another question came from one of the guests — Would next week's march be similar to the big March on Washington of Aug. 28, 1963?

What could people do to help, and would there be people traveling to Washington for the march?

The speaker explained the ministerial march would be different. Each city will be able to participate within its own. People will not be asked to travel from far distances because of the economic crisis.

"The idea is to send a message to President Ford that we are concerned about the economic crisis."

People are needed to man the telephones, pass out leaflets, and especially give contributions.

Seven gospel choirs will participate in the march. Each choir will sing one song per march; there will be seven marches around the White House.

Black people will show their original culture on January 13 with those gospel songs. (Cuff note: Now that's one thing we can do is sing.

• • •

The D.C. schools will be closed, according to the Rev. Mr. Taylor because of the march.

Another question came from the guest. He wanted to know if everything was settled so far as marshals and permits.

The good reverend replied, "Yes, everything is just about settled, but whether we get an official permit or not, we will march, because, you see, Rev. Jackson has a permit from God to march, and he will march. (Right on for the good reverend) and he will march.

Charming Miss Annette Hutchins, the "brainy one," is the dynamic Oakland Mills teen director and has done a tremendous job in organizing the teen program at Oakland Mills.

She is a personal friend of the Rev. Mr. Jackson. It was her turn to speak. She informed the group that the Rev. Mr. Jackson had consented to do a benefit for the teen center in March along with Roberta Flack.

She asked that parents get involved with the program and support their children. Miss Hutchins is on the advisory committee.

It was a memorable occasion with beautiful friends, informative speaker, warm hospitality extended by the Andersons, good food, and good gospel music led by Barbara Bray, a Baltimore County school counselor.

Another splendid voice was that of Frederick Mathew, who just returned from tour with the Morgan State Choir (Europe). What a combination! It was simply beautiful.

Protection Pointers

FOR YOU

None of us knows what's down the road. But to make your future a little more secure, there is a form of insurance that can protect you against those motorists who drive without automobile insurance. It is called uninsured motorist insurance and it works like this:

If an uninsured driver is held legally responsible for an accident that involves you, but is unable to pay the judgment, your insurance company will pay that amount up to the dollar limit of your coverage.

The policy covers medical bills and related expenses. It also covers all members of the family living in the same household.

There are other features to this policy. For further information, consult your local insurance representative.
