NAACP hearing on school bias

The Maryland State Conference of NAACP branches will hold a public hearing on the problems facing black people struggling to survive in the higher education systems throughout Maryland from 9-5 p.m., April 26 at the Coldstream Elementary School, 1400 block Exeter Hall Ave. The hearing will attempt to hear complaints and gather facts from both black students, and higher education administrators who deal with the problems of black students.

The major topics to be covered are racial discrimination in the classroom, admission criteria and procedures, the low black enrollment at the various schools of engineering, law, medicine, business administration, dentistry, the exceedingly high percentage of blacks enrolled in education and liberal arts subjects, the high failure rates among blacks taking the Maryland Bar Examination, the financial aid program, the employment record and trends of subject schools, and the denial of admission of qualified blacks to professional schools.

Any group or individual with valuable testimony and or information may testify by contacting one of the following NAACP Officials nearest you before April 5:-

Maryland State Conference of NAACP Branches, 5809 Landover Road, Hyattsville, Maryland 20784, 301-779-8945;

Prince George's County NAACP, 301-779-5630.-

Baltimore NAACP Branches, 1390 W. North Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland 21217, 301-523-8603-4;

Mr. Leroy W. Warren Jr., 301-671-8175.

Everyone is invited to attend and hear the dynamite and explosive informative testimonies to be presented.

Women research confab April 8

"In many ways I feel that I should and must serve as role model for other young black women who might be interested in research states Dr. Joycelyn Elders, associate professor of Pediatrics, University of Arkansas School of Medicine.

She will discuss "Women In Research," at the Hunt Valley Inn, April 8, 12 to 2:30 p.m.

As moderator, Stephanie Edwards, co-hostess of ABC's new morning show, 'AM America', will examine the role of women in the research profession as well as the specific research.

The objectives are to review the history, current trends and future directions of childhood research, to reveal the panelists' own motivation for entering the profession and to highlight their particular area of study.

A committee of professional women from the Kennedy Institute and the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions selected the panelists who are recognized nationally for research in the fields of infant stimulation, hyperactivity, language development, learning disabilities and lead poisoning.

Dr. Frances Horowitz, professor and chairperson, department of Human Development, Kansas University, Dr. Paula Tallal, the Kennedy Institute and Dr. Ellen K. Silbergeld, Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health will comprise the rest of the panel.

Over 60 women's organizations, hospital auxiliaries and colleges co-sponsoring the program will exhibit materials at the panel-luncheon.

Women In Research has gained support from the American Association of Medical Colleges, the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development and the United States Center for International Women's Year.

Consumer fair set

Vernon E. Jordan Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, will provide the keynote address for the Baltimore Consumer Fair in the new auditorium of Coppin State College, 2500 W. North Ave., April 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The fair will be jointly sponsored by the Baltimore Urban League and Coppin State College.

Mr. Jordan directs an organization whose 103 affiliates, five regional offices, Washington Bureau and New York headquarters work tirelessly to bring solid advances to the minority community.

WOMAN ROBBED: Inmates donate $81 to victim

Sympathizers, through the AFRO-Line, are responding favorably to call for help for Mrs. Delores Wallace, 29-year-old mother of nine children who was robbed of her $170 at gunpoint.

The latest donor is the "TRIANGLE," an inmate Self Help Therapy organization at the Hagerstown Correctional Training Center, who gave a check of $81.

Last week Bobbie Thomas, 4900 Crenshaw Ave. and the Rev. Stanley M. Butler of Shiloh Baptist Church and William Turner of Hugo Ave., collected $33 for the victim.

According to police two youths threatened to shoot the two-year-old son of Mrs. Wallace if she failed to give up her pocketbook containing $170 in cash and $300 worth of food stamps. The two bandits were last seen fleeing east on 700 block Glenwood Ave., about a block away from her home.

Left penniless, Mrs. Wallace said she had planned to use part of the money to buy Easter clothes for her children, pay her rent and to buy other necessities.

Donors may call Mrs. Steele at the AFRO-Line, 728-8200.

Commission Center opening

reception by CCP group

The Maryland State Commission on Afro-American and Indian Study Center will open Sunday, April 13 at 2 p.m. Franklin Showell is state director.

Located at 12 W. Madison St., the center is an information resource specializing in assisting researchers in locating the most current materials available about native and Afro-Americans.

A special VIP black tie will be held Friday, April 11, 8 p.m. highlighting the unveiling of a bicentennial painting commissioned for the Maryland State Conference of NAACP branches.

Also, a champagne reception will be hosted by the Council for Cultural Progress for the Honorable, Hodo Manston, City Council president and director of education in Bong County, Gbarnga, Liberia.

The reception will be held in connection with the official opening of the center at 12 W. Madison St.

Part of the inaugural program will include the dedication of the Rev. James Timothy Boddie Religious Archives, an extensive collection of the late minister's recordings, photographs and writings.

This multi-faceted opening will include an unusual display and audio-visual presentation by and about Maryland's Indians, a large exhibition of exquisite quilts from the Bertha Jonnson collection, plus selected items from the Rev. George A. Crawley, Mrs. Enolia P. McMillan and other memorabilia housed in the study center.

The acquisitions room will display the processional and ceremonial regalia of the Order of Good Hope Hall.

CCP was organized in May, active community support of and participation in cultural projects in Baltimore and ethnic groups involvement in the mainstream of the cultural life of Baltimore.

Mr. Manston has been a key figure in the Baltimore-Gbarnga, Liberia Sister City Project sponsored by the Maryland Commission on Afro-American and Indian History and Culture in cooperation with the Baltimore City public schools.

The Liberian ambassador to Washington, along with other prominent local, state and national officials have been invited to participate in this salute to Mr. Manston and the opening of the Study Center.

The council's board is representative of a comprehensive cross-section of the black community at all levels.

In addition to the board, several community organizations support the council's efforts through contributions of funds, expertise and manpower. For information, call Mrs. Phyllis Hathaway, 383-3648.

Forest Park to fete ex-students, faculty

Forest Park Senior High School plans a gala 50th anniversary reception to honor all former graduates and faculty members of the school. The affair will take place in the school cafeteria on Sunday, April 13, from 2-5 p.m.

Instead of a reception to honor the school, Forest Park Senior High is hosting the event to honor all former graduates and faculty members.

Mayor Schaefer is expected, comptroller Pressman has accepted an invitation to come and bring a poem in honor of the event and there will be in attendance members of the first faculty of 1924, and almost every faculty since. Dr. Roland N. Patterson will also attend.

Every graduate and faculty member is invited. A program will be presented from 2:30-3:30 and the rest of the time will be given to acquaintance-renweing and socializing. Friends of Forest Park are also invited.

It was 50 years ago, September, 1924 that the doors of Forest Park were first opened to the girls and boys of Baltimore City. Forest Park heralded many new innovations in education for the City of Baltimore.

It was the first white coeducational school in the city. In the intervening half century the students and faculty who taught there have gone on to make their mark in the world.

Among the well known Forest Park graduates are Judge J. Harold Grady, former mayor of the City of Baltimore, Leon Uris, author of "Exodus" and "Battle Cry," the late Mama Cass Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Spiro Agnew, Victor Frenkil, builder of the Civic Center, Poly-Western and many other buildings, Jimmy Wu, William Griffin of the "Miracles," Judge Delany Foster and Damon Williams of the "Temptations."

Dr. Vernon Vavrina, associate superintendent of Baltimore Public Schools, and Dr. Harry Bard, president of Community College of Baltimore are among the most well known former faculty members.

Teen Talk

By Gary Givens

The City Temple Baptist of Baltimore, teen choir will present a luncheon and fashion show on Sunday April 13, at 5 p.m., in the lower church for the benefit of the Door Fund.

The Rev. W.W. Payne is the minister. Donation is $2.75. If you can possibly be there please come. Your support is needed and welcomed.

"Fashions to Rock," is a benefit program for Sickle Cell Anemia to be put on by the black history group of Poly High School on Friday, April 11 from 7 p.m. to midnight in the school auditorium.

The program is a combination fashion and rock show. Fashions will be from Western High School, under the direction of Robin Thomas, along with an African fashion group — "The Sodiqu."

There also will be plenty of good music provided by Chocolate Rain, Whiskey Sour, Black Image, Earth Confucius and others. The tickets for the show are $2.50 per person.

For additional information contact Tommy Saunders at 566-2849. I hope to see you there, Baltimore. Be there or be square.

I received a letter from a brother by the name of William Wesley, who is in prison. William states by being in confinement he misses the pleasure of communicating with people. He is interested in some brothers and sisters writing and sending photos to him.

William describes himself as a person who is into meeting new people. He says he is 6 feet ½ inches tall, brown complexion with a very large bush.

If you are seriously interested in helping a brother in need, please contact me and I will give you the address (see end of article).

If you have any comments or criticisms or know of any activities going on in the city that you think will be of interest of just want your picture in the Afro. Contact me at 323-0431 or send the info to "Teen Talk" c&o Afro American P.O. Box 1857.

Winds or Hill PTA sets fair

The P.T.A. of Windsor Hills Elementary School No. 87 will sponsor a free health fair at the School — 4001 Alto Road, Saturday, April 19, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The public is invited.

The fair will acquaint residents with the health services available in the community and detect unknown health problems.

Some of the tests to be given are high blood pressure, diabetes, tuberculosis, cholesterol, and vision. Agencies to be represented include Big Brothers, Recreation for Handicapped, American Heart Association, Health Information Service, Social Services, Waxter Center and Family Planning.

Free movies and other activities will be available for children attending the fair with their parents.

Get in the Bird House Contest now

The Department of Recreation and Parks, Maryland National Bank and the Mayor's Office of Special Projects will sponsor the 7th Annual Preakness Birdhouse making Contest to be held Saturday, May 10 at 11 a.m. at the War Memorial Plaza.

Birdhouses may be entered in three categories: Wood Duck, Wren, or Family Martin House. Entrants may add accessories such as porches, TV. antennas, windows and chimneys. Entries will be categorically judged on originality as well as construction and finish.

Judging will take place at the War Memorial Plaza located at Holiday and Fayette Streets, across from the Baltimore City Hall on May 10 at 11 a.m.

Ribbons and certificates will be presented to the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th place winners in the following age groups: 8 years and under, 9 and 10 years, 11 and 12 years, 13-16 years and over 16 years.

There will be three grand prize winners selected in each category; the Wood Duck category, the Wren House category and the Family Martin House category.

Each grand prize winner will receive a $25. Savings Bond. The three savings bonds were again this year generously donated by the Maryland National Bank.

Additional contest information may be obtained from Miss Virginia S. Baker, at 396-4691.

Winning birdhouses will be installed at the Baltimore City Zoo and the 3 winning birdhouses will be displayed at Maryland National Bank branches.

Wyman House opening scheduled for today

Mayor Schaefer and Housing Commissioner Robert C. Embry Jr. will host opening ceremonies for Wyman House, Friday, April 4, 10 a.m. at 123 West 29th St.

The sixteen-story public housing development will provide 112 efficiencies and 56 one-bedroom apartments for approxiamtely 224 elderly and disabled persons of low income in Baltimore City.

Planned jointly by the Charles Village Association and architectural firm Lawrence Menefee Jr. and Associates, Wyman House was built for the Department of Housing and Community Development by the Leimbach Construction Corporation of Baltimore at an estimated cost of $3.8 million.

It is located near Baltimore's Museum of Art, Johns Hopkins University, and the U.S. Health Service. Not far away, in Waverly, there is Memorial Stadium, easily accessible to Wyman House residents.

The centrally air-conditioned building affords its residents a great degree of privacy in that it has guard service and that no apartments are situated below the third floor. Wyman House has a sundeck on the second floor, adjacent to the laundry room and overlooking a rear parking area that can accommodate 40 autombiles. Both the ground level and the second floor have spacious lounging and meeting areas.

Apartments are equipped with special features now standard in all public housing built for elderly and disabled persons. This includes emergency call systems, doorways that allow passage of wheelchairs or similar apparatus, private balconies with waist-high safety walls and glass sliding doors, slip resistant tile floors, and, new in Wyman House, showers fitted with a scald-proof nozzle.

Wyman House is one of the latest buildings to be opened for elderly and disabled persons. The Department's commitment to its older group of citizens really got under way with the opening of Lakeview Tower's 161 units in 1970.

OPENING CEREMONIES today at 10 a.m. of the Wyman House, 123 West 29th St., are being hosted by Mayor Schaefer and Housing Commissioner Robert C. Embry Jr..

Parker Models in action at Md. Penitentiary

Dancer Angela Herald, participated in the fashion show sponsored by the Seventh Step Foundation at the Maryland Penitentiary last Thursday.
(Reflections photos by Benjamin M. Phillips)

The Lawrence Parker models were on parade at the Maryland Penitentiary last Thursday night. The group and special guests were invited to the Forrest St. facility by members of the Seventh Step Foundation and Warden George Collins and his staff.

The two guest models were Maria Broom, TV personality and Nathaniel Marshall, member of the foundation.

The Seventh Step, founded by Bill Sands, an ex-convict, is a self-help program which holds sessions inside the prison. It is aimed at preparing the convict for the world outside.

Its goal is keeping "each other out of prisons" and the prevention of crime and juvenile delinquency, says Arthur Caldwell, public relations director.

The AFRO will feature the Seventh Step Foundation in next Friday's edition.

The Lawrence Parker models showed their support of the foundation by performing free to the audience on Thursday. They were:

Delia Alston, Christopher Bell, Andrea Bland, Quiana Cooke, Harold Cornish, Lenwood Jackson, Artartus Jenkins;

Arnold Mitchell, W. Kelsey Mitchell, Robert Purnell, CeeCee Stokes, Gwendolyn Kellum, Martin Thompson.

Curtis Anderson, formerly of WEBB radio, served as the announcer. WWIN public affair directress, Mary Clayburn, made a guest appearance.

Local designer, Walburton Pulley, was present and showed from his new spring collection.

On hand to greet visitors who were guests of the Seventh Step Foundation, Md. Penitentiary and the Lawrence Parker, LTD. models were from L to R: McLindsey Hawkins, assistant warden; Miss Barbara Ball, assistant personnel directress; George Collins, warden, and Warren Evans, community services coordinator.

Local club notes

Alpha Kappa Alpha

Downtown Baltimore's Statler Hilton Hotel will be the site of the 44th Annual North Atlantic Regional Conference of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. April 4, 5 and 6.

In ceremonies preceding this event, Mayor William Donald Schaefer signed a proclamation on March 26 in recognition of the convention and welcoming its membership. The mayor is also expected to participate in opening activities today in which he will present the Key to Baltimore City to North Atlantic Regional Director Mildred Stuart at noon.

Some 400 women from Washington, D.C. to the state of Mass. will be welcomed to Baltimore by the local graduate chapter Epsilon Omega and the undergraduate chapters from Morgan and Coppin State Colleges, Alpha Delta and Epsilon Kappa respectively.

Alpha Kappa Alpha, with 500 chapters all over the U.S. and in European countries and over 70,000 college educated members, is the largest and most widespread predominantly black organization of its type for women.

In a year marked by tribute to women all over the world and their accomplishments, Alpha Kappa Alpha perpetuates its international growth and influence begun in 1908.

This year's Regional Conference will pay tribute to "Alpha Kappa Alpha Women — United for Social Change." The three-day conference will bring together a variety of national, regional, and local women, all individually and collectively distinguished in their fields of professional endeavor.

In addition, undergraduate and graduate sorors will attend numerous workshops and will enjoy a weekend of entertainment and camaraderie.

Guest sorors expected, in addition to Mrs. Stuart, include recently elected National President Bernice Sumlin; honorary member, C. Delores Tucker, Secretary of State of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; staff program director Joanne Pyles; past National President Marjorie Parker and National Treasurer Esther Pollard.

Member chapters of the North Atlantic region will set up exhibits and displays in the grand foyer of the hotel for viewing throughout the conference.

Provident Auxiliary

The Provident Hospital Auxiliary's Annual Fashion Show will be held on Sunday, May 18, at 6817 Dogwood Rd. This most important of all shows blends the talents of Baltimore's best models, designers and fashion houses. It has set the standard for imagination, daring and interest in the Baltimore area, says its coordinator, Willia Bland of Flair Studio, Inc.

Models who were selected for the show include: Quianna Cooke, Janice Moses, Joyce Dixon, CeeCee Stokes, Gwendolyn Patillo, Linda Hall, Lawrence Parker;

Laura Bollin, Artartus, Eric Alsup, Sherron Garrison, Degas Owens, Andrea Bland, Rose Backus, Oliver Odum, Linda Stewart;

Patricia Dove, Michael Newton, Danielle Brooks, Michele Paradise, Happy Mitchell and Yvonne Stewart.

A special segment of the show will introduce new modeling discoveries. Among them are Elva Bankins, Sharon Hatcher, Dorothy Francis, Gilda Dixon, Mark Burrell, Catherine Pugh, Shawan Patterson and Rosita Moses.

Modeling groups presented are Barbizon, Black Odyssey, Diana Kane, Flair Studio, Patricia Stevens and Travis Winkey.

Beatrice Avery is chairperson of the affair; Dorothy Tucker is president.

Miss AFRO-Pall Mall Menthols, runners-up guests at awards ceremony held Monday

Baltimore—Miss Pall Mall Menthols and the six runners-up were the guests of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers and the American Tobacco Co. at an awards presentation held at the AFRO office on Monday.

Announcement of the winners was made in last Friday's edition. (March 29).

Presiding at the 11 a.m. ceremony was the AFRO Chairman of the Board of Directors, John H. Murphy III. Greetings were extended by Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss, publisher. The program was conducted by Marie P. Cooke, Reflections editor. Presentations were made by Clarence A. Bing, district manager, American Tobacco Co.

Cee Cee Stokes, an area fashion model, instructor and professional businesswoman was presented an engraved bronze cup, a gift for winning the contest. The following three runners-up, Rosita Moses, Marti Franklin and Andrea Bland were the recipients of personalized certificates.

All of the young women were given flower baskets, designed by Carl Norwood of Norwood Florists, as love tokens, including the fourth, fifth and sixth place winners, Janice Moses, Wenda Welch and Verna Brogden.

Several persons representing the modeling-fashion industry were present, including Pinnie Ross, Pinnie Ross Models; Willia Bland, Flair Studio, Inc.; Travis Winkey, Travis Winkey Modeling Studio and Lawrence Parker, Lawrence Parker, LTD.

Fashiton designer, Walburton Pulley, also present, announced just prior to the event, that he would give the winner, Ms. Stokes, an outfit from his new spring collection.

Members of the honoree's families also witnessed the presentation.

During the next 12 weeks, Ms. Stokes will be seen at many of the city's social and civic functions. In addition, she will be making guest appearances at several businesses, including nightclubs and restaurants.

Miss AFRO-Pall Menthols, Cee Cee Stokes, is shown here with C. A. Bing and John H. Murphy, III, Chairman of the Board of Directors, AFRO-AMERICAN Co. Ms. Stokes was among the honored guests at the awards presentation held at the AFRO office on Monday.

Second place runner-up in the Miss AFRO-Pall Mall Menthols contest, Marti Franklin, is congratulated by Clarence A. Bing, district manager, American Tobacco Co.
