Miss Olive Caulk noted social worker

"Love and Olive Caulk were synonymous. She loved life, she loved people, she loved her work, she loved her family, and she loved God. She touched all who met her by her uncomplaining, sunny disposition."

The above is a portion of a family tribute paid Miss Olive Gladys Gaither Caulk, 60, 1501 N. Bentalou St. on Thursday evening.

Family and friends filled Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church for the last rites. The Rev. Sidney J. Daniels officiated.

Clarence Henderson was the soloist.

• • •

Miss Caulk was coordinator for Elderly Services of the Housing Authority of Baltimore City at the time of her death on Monday.

Prior to that she had been assigned as social worker for the McCulloh Homes, Poe Homes and Perkins Homes.

Daughter of the late Oliver J. and Annie Gaither Caulk, Miss Caulk was born January 31, 1915 in Baltimore.

She was a 1932 graduate of Douglass High School, and earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from Morgan State College in 1936.

Following a brief assignment as a high school teacher in Southern Maryland, she attended Howard University where she received a Masters of Arts degree in English in 1941.

She then moved to Austin, where she held a teaching position at Sam Houston College.

She earned a second Master of Arts degree in Personnel and Guidance from Columbia University, New York in 1946.

She was a member of Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church and Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

• • •

The family also noted that because she had great empathy for people from all walks of life, Miss Caulk was able to gain their confidence and respect and love and she in turn loved them. She was widely known as counselor, confidante and friend to many.

Her work in the projects enabled her to use these unique talents. She organized and executed countless programs which provided meaningful and memorable experiences for the young and the old.

Municipal unions ask for changes in benefits and investments

Three bills proposing changes in benefits and the handling of investments of fund for the municipal employees retirement system have been introduced at Monday night's City Council meeting.

All were introduced by City Council President Walter S. Orlinsky at the request of the Metropolitan Council of the AFL-CIO Unions.

The Classified Municipal Employees Union (CMEA) the number of years required for a person to be eligible for vesting rights. The rights are based on one's earnings and determine how much pension one receives.

William Dix, president of the CMEA stated that the union wants a provision making a worker eligible for 50 per cent vesting rights after 5 years of service. That percentage would graduate to 100 per cent after 10 years.

At present, a worker is not eligible for 50 per cent until after 30 years of service.

The union also wants equal representation of the union on its board of trustees and a rotating chairmanship. There are five board members at present, three city officials and two union representatives, and Comptroller Hyman A. Pressman is the chairman.

"We don't want this, he speaks for management . . . he doesn't speak for us," Dix told the AFRO.

Another measure would require an actual investigation and valuation of e retirement system every three years.

Such an audit and investigation would be into "the mortality service and compensation experience of the members and beneficiaries of the retirement system and shall make a valuation of the assets and liabilities of the funds of the system."

If the system is thought inappropriate after such a study, the board is authorized to alter it.

Dix complained that the present system is unfair to the unions. He stated that the city does not match the employees' contributions to the fund. He also stated that the city draws "8 to 10 per cent" interest on money invested while the employees only draw 4½ per cent.

Another measure expresses the intent of the city to contribute 50 per cent of the cost of the retirement benefits.

A third measure provides that persons who leave city service voluntarily or because they are asked to before they reach the age of retirement be given the option to have his contributions to the retirement fund remain in the system.

At the age of 60 he would be entitled to receive his retirement allowance based on his funds. If he was to die before that age of 60, the payments would be forwarded to his "estate or to his designated beneficiary."

United Labor protests phone rate hike

On last Fridayn May 16, at 4:30 p.m. the Center for United Labor Action held an informational picket at C and P Telephone's downtown offices at 323 N. Charles St.

The picket was to protest C and P's proposed rate increase and to inform the public about the federal government's civil suit against C and P's parent company, AT and T, charging the company with monopoly practices resulting, among other things, in over-charging the public by one billion dollars.

Fired cop pleads to be rehired

By Robert M. Matthews IV

Walter Barnes says he made a mistake last summer.

The former probationary patrolman was one of a group of striking policemen who walked off of their posts last July, and subsequently was dismissed from the force.

Mr. Barnes realizes now that his going out on strike was a big mistake careerwise since he feels he is living an unfulfilling life, now that he can no longer work as a police officer.

He says: "I would walk a foot patrol for 20 years, if it would mean that I could return to the force. I love the police department. I just want another chance."

• • •

Barnes, 23, of the 4600 block Manordene Rd., is a 1970 graduate of Douglass High.

Since being fired from the force, he has been working as a Special officer at UMBC.

In an attempt to gain reinstatement, he has appealed to the governor, Del. Troy Brailey, and LTC. James A. Watkins and Maj. Calvin Lewis of the police department.

So far his pleas have produced little results.

However, he says the Police Commissioner, Pomerleau, has replied that he will take his request into consideration.

• • •

According to Barnes, Commissioner Pomerleau rehired those probationary officers who walked off of their jobs the second and third days of the strike, but those who walked off the first day have not been rehired.

ASKS FOR ANOTHER CHANCE Former Western Distriet Probationary Policeman Walter Barnes is asking Commissioner Pomerleau to reinstate him on the force.

Mr. Barnes is a member of the Pentacostal Church on Gilmor St., and attends regularly with his mother, Mrs. Maybell Barnes, a nursing assistant at Provident Hospital.

To accent what he terms a "mistake to walk off of his post in the Western District, Mrs. Barnes asked the AFRO to convey his sentiments to the department and says he would do anything that was asked of him to regain his job.

He says he feels that a person is entitled to make a mistake and to make a request for consideration of the case "of an obviously [illegible] and dedicated young man."
