New program ordered for food stamps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court, saying the present formula for food stamp payments shortchanges many needy persons, has told the Agriculture Department to come up with a new allotment plan that provides a nutritionally adequate diet.

"For a family that needs a loaf of bread, the offer of a slice is poor comfort," the three-judge panel said Thursday.

• • •

Ronald Pollack, attorney for the Food Research and Action Center of New York which handled the case, called the verdict "Literally the most important legal victory (ever) in the anti-hunger area."

The ruling could have far-reaching effects on benefits of the food stamp program, which serves 19.6 million Americans at an expected annual cost of $5 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30.

• • •

The court gave the Agriculture Department 120 days to come up with an allotment plan providing all stamp recipients enough aid to buy the nutritionally adequate diet required by the federal Food Stamp Law.

Department officials had no immediate comment on the case. But Pollack said the government could be expected to appeal the decision because of its potential cost impact.

HEW deseg hearins extend from June 30 through July 4

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare will begin administrative hearings Monday, June 30 against the Baltimore City School District which has failed to submit adequate desegregation plans to HEW's Office for Civil Rights.

The hearings, scheduled for the Social Security Administration Building, Woodlawn, will extend through July 4, beginning each day at 10 a.m.

Irvin Hackerman of Camden, N.J. has been appointed by the Civil Service Commission to serve as the administrative law judge and preside over the hearings.

Similar to a court case, the hearings will allow argument of issues, testimony from witnesses and evidence presented by both counsel for HEW and the Baltimore City schools.

Presently, all federal funds are being held in abeyance pending a decision after the hearings at which time the city may lose $23 million.

Although OCR filed the motion for the hearings May 5, OCR Director Peter E. Holmes told the Baltimore school officials to continue voluntarily to work on the plan because once it becomes acceptable, charges would be dismissed.

OCR representatives and school officials have met in effort to correct many problems in the junior and senior high plans, pointed out by Mr. Holmes when he rejected them in May.

• • •

A spokesman for the Civil Rights Reviewing Authority in Washington stated that if the law judge does find the Baltimore school district in violation of Title 6 of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the district may appeal that decision.

The appeal would then be made to the Reviewing Authority which consists of five members appointed by HEW's secretary, Casper Weinberger.

These members who are not full-time government employees, serve as consultants to the Reviewing Authority which is a permanent on-going board.

Victim bites off rapist's tongue

PHILADELPHIA — A West Philadelphia man, who apparently in a fit of passion, while allegedly raping a woman, stuck his tongue into her mouth as he kissed her, and she bit it off, detectives said.

The suspect, identified as John Grant, 20, of the 6100 block of Larchwood Ave., ran to Mercy Catholic Medical Center, Misericordia Division, police said.

A surgeon rushed to the rape-scene and found the tongue-one inch by 2½ inches, but said it was impossible to sew it back.

Grant was admitted to the hospital and charged with rape, burglary, indecent assault and weapon offenses.

The 25-year-old woman, who was also treated at the hospital gave police this account:

She was awakened in her apartment, Wednesday evening in the 6100 block of Larchwood St., by a man standing alongside her bed with a butcher knife.

When the man climbed in bed and tried to rape her, she beat and kicked him and ran screaming from her apartment.

He caught her in the first floor front hall, knocked her down and raped her there.

Thieves rob, break in Hdq. Cong. Mitchell

Congressman Parren J. Mitchell issued an apology this morning (Friday) to persons who may need services at his Baltimore headquarters, 1903 N. Bloomingdale Office.

The services will be continued Saturday or at least Monday. Cause of the interruption is a breakin-robbery which occurred sometime Thursday night. Thieves damaged the phone lines.

Three typewriters and money from a soda machine were missing, he told the AFRO. Robbers who kicked in the back door reached in and unlocked the iron grating for entrance.

• • •

Police have not determined what else is missing. Desk drawers were emptied and the offices left in disarray.

THE PHONE, 962-4531 is still working and all calls are relayed by the phone company to Cong. Mitchell's downtown office at the Federal Building.

Michael Lipscomb is manager at the Bloomingdale office. A case worker, Mrs. Selma Brown, discovered the breakin Friday at 9:30 a.m. The office was locked Thursday, the night before, at 6.

Court refuses to bar black judge from case

PHILADELPHIA — The U.S. Supreme Court rejected an effort by the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 542 of Philadelphia to prevent a black Federal judge from deciding a racial discrimination charge against the union.

The justices refused to grant an appeal by the union to hear oral arguments to decide if Judge A. Leon Higginbotham Jr. should be disqualified from the case.

The union is being sued by 12 blacks and the state of Pennsylvania for alleged discrimination which took place four years ago. The defendants were part of some 170 who took part in two training programs run by the union.

Gypsy's message is for all mothers

By Elizabeth M. Oliver

Gypsy, the immortal Broadway play at Painters Mill through Sunday, has won its everlasting laurels through an emotional appeal which crosses all racial and economic lines.

You'll laugh and weep with the ambitious mother, Angela Lansbury (the No. 1 Academy Award winner) who touches the heart of every parent as she pushes her children to stardom.

One of them gets married, but the other daughter becomes after years of hardship, the world's most noted stripper, Gypsy Rose Lee.

Every mother living or dead in her grave has in the back of her mind, "One day my child will be a doctor or lawyer or someone great. Someday my child will not be lost in a wilderness and unknown as I am. Someday, the world will recognize my child."

The dream "Rose" (Angela Lansbury) holds until the end is the one that visions her daughters as stars of the stage during the 1920's and 1930's, a rough period.

With this dream ever before her, she eats dog food from a can while feeding the children on the best she can afford, Chinese food.

• • •

Resourceful as only a mother could be, she never misses a chance to move on just a jump ahead of starvation and the wolf at the stage—door (Most mothers can identify here).

Highlight of the girls' childhood on the backroad trail through U.S. small towns, is the time she makes coats for herself and the girls out of a blanket.

Unforgettable tunes waving a magic wand over the play's theme are, "Everything's Coming Un Roses," "All I Need Is the Girl," "Let Me Entertain You" and "Small World."

• • •

You'll come away humming each song and hold on to the memory of Rose's message, "Everybody needs something impossible to hope for."

Painters Mill, just beyond the Baltimore City line and one-fourth mile off Reisterstown Rd., was parked opening night (Tuesday).

Emmanual Baptist Church members were greeted with cheers as they arrived in a body and heard their names announced.

The audience gave standing ovations to Angela and her daughters, Zan Charisse (Gypsy Rose Lee); Donna Sho (Baby June); the strippers, Mazeppa, Electra and Tessie Tura and "Herbie" Rex Robbins.

Other members of the cast performed without flaw.

Here is a perfect Broadway production live and on stage, one you'll be sorry you missed when you find it goes back to Broadway in September as No. 1 in the box office.

Noteworthy is the fact that all Painters Mill seats are good ones. The stage is circular and visable from all points, even the highest perches at the top.

Costume and setting changes are made rapidly with spotlights giving the mood and the color. The performance is from 8:30 p.m. until almost midnight, but time passes so swiftly, when you're enchanted. Go see Gypsy.

Two men plead guilty to murder

George J. Scott, 22 and Harold J. Kelly, 24, pleaded guilty last month to the Halloween murder of Harry P. Spilman, 72.

The two men were sentenced to 50 years each by Judge Robert L. Karwacki on June 11. According to court records, Mr. Spilman of the 3000 block Oakhill Ave. answered his door on Oct. 31 when he thought there were children asking for "trick-or-treat" candy.

Testimony revealed Mr. Spilman died at Sinai Hospital of multiple skull fractures three days after he was beaten.

Scott lived in the 5700 block Belle Ave., and Kelly resided in the 5600 block Wesley Ave., Court records state Robert L. Chapple, 18, 3500 block Plateau Ave. and John E. Ragin, 19, 5300 block Liberty Heights Ave. pleaded guilty to the holdup of Lee Childs, 70, 5300 block Wesley Ave. According to court records there were several knock and rob incidents last Halloween.

Judge Karwacki tild the court since Ragin and Chapple cooperated in the case against Scott and Kelly, he would suspend the balance of their eight year sentence and place them on probation.

Bar recommends trial changes

CHICAGO (UPI) — An American Bar Association Commission has drafted a set of proposals to streamline the jury system by changing trial court standards.

The recommendations would permit six-person juries in federal and state civil trials and some criminal trials. Also, the proposed standards would allow a verdict to be returned in a civil case if three-quarters of a 12-person jury concurred. Presently, a unanimous verdict is required in all cases.

The study, prepared by the ABA Commission on standards of judicial administration, proposed changes in 45 standards. It will be submitted to the ABA's House of Delegates for final approval. The proposed standards would allow both the state and the defendant to request a jury trial in criminal cases in which a jail or prison sentence can be imposed.

Other recommendations were:

—That jury trials be available in civil actions where the amount in controversy is greater than $2,500.

—That all U.S. citizens over 18, with very few exceptions, should be eligible for jury service.

—That lawyers keep their portfolios in shape to avoid cancellations or continuances of court cases except in extraordinary circumstances.

—That each state and metropolitan court system should have a plan to deal with mass arrest situations.

Rites held for wife of Senator Herbert Arlene

PHILADELPHIA — Funeral services were held Wednesday for Mrs. Emma J. Arlene, wife of state Senator Herbert Arlene, D-Phila., who died May 30, in the Einstein Medical Center.

Mrs. Arlene, a former employee of the Philadelphia Housing Authority, was 60 and lived at 1947 Jefferson St.

A pianist for the Union AME Church for over 40 years, Mrs. Arlene helped to organize the gospel chorus of the church.

The senator, who met his wife in the church, said, "She lived for the church every day." They were married in the church in 1934 by an AME Union minister.

She was also a member of a singing group and of the Christian Endeavor and active in the Sunday School.

Mrs. Arlene also was active in Eastern Star, Daughters of Isis and other Masonic organizations.

Surviving in addition to her husband, are a son, Herbert Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Clara Banks; a brother and three grandchildren.

Youth, 17 gets life sentence

Eric J. Everett, 17, has been sentenced to life in prison for sexually assaulting a 14-year-old girl on August 5, 1974.

Criminal Court Judge David Ross imposed sentence June 10 and sent Everett to Patuxent Institution.

• • •

According to Stephen R. Tully, assistant state's attorney, Everett of the 500 block East 27th St., was also convicted of assaulting the victim.

• • •

The prosecutor told the court the victim lived in New Jersey and was visiting her sister. Court records state the victim was coming home at around 11:45 p.m. when Everett and Timothy Hunt 15, stopped her and forced the victim to go with them to a nearby lot.

• • •

Testimony revealed the teenagers beat the victim and then sexually assaulted her. Everett continued beating the victim until Hunt pulled him away.

• • •

According to court records, Hunt of the 400 block East 28th St., was sentenced to 10 years for his part in the assault. After the victim gave a description of the youth to the police, they arrested Hunt and Everett several days following the crime.

Zambian policemen visit Abington

PHILADELPHIA — Two top-ranking officials of the Republic of Zambia in south-central Africa visited the Abington Township Police Department last week to study its microfilm record retrieval system.

Abington is a suburb of Philadelphia.

Detective Inspector Fabian W. Zivava and Inspector George Mwanza had attended an international law-enforcement seminar in Rochester, N.Y. While there, the two officials also visited the Micrographicis Markets Division of Eastman Kodak Company.

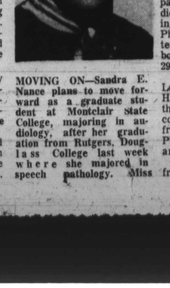
When they learned that Abington and Bristol Township had installed record retrieval systems they decided to visit the area before going home.

The record retrieval system was installed in Abington in 1974, following a $52,000 grant from the U. S. Law Enforcement Assistance Agency, with the aid of the Governor's Justice Committee.

Zambia was formerly known as the British Protectorate of Northern Rhodesia, but became an independent republic within the commonwealth in 1964.

They were accompanied by Ed Paul, an Eastman Kodak representative based in Fort Washington.

Chief Herbert Mooney served as host. They were greeted by Township Manager Fred Schaefer and presented with a certificate of welcome by George Haines, president of the board of commissioners.



MOVING ON—Sandra E. Nance plans to move forward as a graduate student at Montclair State College, majoring in audiology, after her graduation from Rutgers, Douglass College last week where she majored in speech pathology. Miss

Brothers die in fiery crash of stolen auto

PHILADELPHIA — The parents of two sons who died in fiery car crash during a police chase in West Philadelphia, broke into tears as they identified the bodies of their sons, Alfred, 29, and Tyler, 17.

Iscar Smith and his wife, Louise, of the 32 block of Haverford Ave., who said they were living with them, confirmed Alfred's identity from a picture at the Philadelphia medical examiner's office.

Police had identified Alfred from a palm print.

The car in which they were riding burst into flames when it hit a tree on 33rd St. between Cherry and Arch Sts. after they had been chased by police cars at speeds of 80 to 100 miles per hour.

Police said the car the brothers crashed in was a new 1975 Thunderbird that had been taken from Broad Motors lot at 600 N. Broad St.
