NAACP will campaign for elected school board next time

The Baltimore Branch NAACP has issued a statement adopted by the executive committee June 28 in support of Dr. Roland N. Patterson, school superintendent.

Urging reconsideration and a decision to keep Dr. Patterson in his post, the NAACP nevertheless warns that it will move toward its goal of an elected board of school commissioners.

The statement signed by Mrs. Enolia McMillan, president, is as follows:

"For over a year the Baltimore Branch of the NAACP has carefully studied and carefully observed the pros and cons of the Dr. Roland Patterson controversy.

"Last summer we came out in strong opposition to the School Board's attempt to illegally dismiss him without either an evaluation or a hearing.

"We have watched while political, racial and self-interest persons and groups have attempted to manipulate and capitalize on the situation.

We believe that in these days of high taxes, citizens have a right and a duty to require accountability of every public employee and that one's performance should be judged by an objective evaluation of pertinent facts and evidence.

"We believe the taxpayer has the right to be exposured to the evidence as well as the conclusions drawn from such an evaluation. Since secret meetings were held by the School Board, we have only their conclusions to examine.

"The synposis of the preliminary evaluation presents appalling inconsistencies of area which are reported as adequate or above in one section and below adequate in another.

* * *

"We are aware of the unique authority of the School Board as well as the Boards' lack of credibility as a result of its undemocratic tactics and performances. We know that no superintendent with a job as vast and demanding as his will make a perfect score.

"The School Board's repeated failure to provide acceptable desegregation plans is something less than perfection.

"Because the many phases of Dr. Patterson's administration have been minimized and because the Board itself, the Mayor, the City Council, the teachers, the parents, and others share the responsibility of an inadequate school system and because Dr. Patterson has had insufficient time to implement his plans, we request the Board's reconsideration of its action.

"Meanwhile, we shall move toward our goal of an elected School Board as agreed upon by our Executive Committee on January 25, 1973."

Three men convicted of murder, robbery in eggnog chief murder

Three men charged with the murder of Charles Freidenberg, 71, president of the Overbrook Eggnog Corp. were convicted of murder and robbery with a deadly weapon.

After deliberating for three hours, an all female jury found Michael L. (Lisa) McCree and Robert (Verna) Dixon guilty of first degree murder. Judge Basil Thomas presided at the trial.

John (Theresa) Garris was convicted of second degree murder and faces a fifty year sentence for murder and robbery with a deadly weapon. Garris, 21, lived in the 1700 Block N. Calvert St.

McCree, 21, of the 2000 block S. Calvert St. and Dixon, 21, of the 1700 block N. Calvert St. were found guilty of first degree murder and robbery with a deadly weapon. They face life plus 20 years.

* * *

McCree and Dixon wore women's clothing at the trial. None of the defendants testified. Police testified Mr. Freidenberg's deteriorated body was found July 11, 1974 locked in a closet.

His hands were tied behind his back and his ankles tied with cord and a wire around his neck. Police stated Mr. Freidenberg was reported missing from home by his wife.

* * *

Police reported Freidenberg who who was white, apparently picked up the defendants, who were hitchhiking and dressed as women.

Police revealed the victim went with the defendants to the apartment where he was killed. Dwight Thomas, 27, testified the defendants drove to New York in the victims car.

According to police, McCree was arrested by the New York police on a fugitive warrant while he was staying at the Strand Hotel on 43rd St. in Manhattan.

After the defendants left for New York, Thomas testified he stayed at his apartment three days before he discovered a dead body had been stuffed in his kitchen closet.

The witness told the jury he smelled a strong odor in his apartment but did not know where the odor was coming from.

"The odor was very strong in my bedroom on July 11, and I started searching the apartment. There was a nest of flies near the kitchen sink and I saw the closet in the kitchen had been nailed up," the witness told the jury.

Thomas testified, when he pulled several nails out of the closet, he saw something (the body) and then went next door to call the police.

Councilman Stansbury out of intensive care

By Bryan Holt

Harford Memorial Hospital officials told the AFRO that Havre de Grace Councilman, Wardell Stansbury is in good condition and will be released from intensive care today (Thursday).

Mr. Stansbury, 40, was admitted to the hospital Sunday evening at 7:45 p.m. after he sustained a chest gunshot wound.

Police have charged Vincent Barnes, 23, with assault in the case. He is being held at the Harford County Detention Home under $5,000 bond. Trial date is pending.

Mrs. Cassie Stansbury, wife of the councilman, told the AFRO that the two men were good friends and that her husband had often counseled the youth. She also stated that he is not planning to press charges.

Mr. Stanisbury, of the 400 block Stokes St., Havre de Grace, is presently serving his third term in the City Council.

The Stansburys have two children, Lori and Sheila Stansbury, both age 9.

Probe summer jobs plan for politics

An investigation has been promised into whether politics played a role in allocation of summer jobs for youths under a federally funded program.

Several white politicians have charged that a fair election in the city's Second District is impossible because Mayor Donald Schaefer's administration has abused the Neighborhood Youth Corps Program.

State Sen. Julian L. Lapides led four political associates in changing that rival political organizations, including one of the city's largest black groups, obtained hundreds of summer jobs through the program.

James O'Connell of the Philadelphia regional Labor Department office said an investigation would be made into the charges.

O'Connell said he felt the Lapides group presented "a strong case."

One of the groups, against which the charge was made includes City Councilman Clarence (Du) Burns, who reportedly was responsible for hundreds of youths getting jobs.

Lapides and the members of the complaining group noted the state Del. Hattie Harrison, D-45th who is a member of Burn's organization, is listed as a coordinator for 400 jobs at the Dunbar Community School.

The complaint was also levied against groups associated with Councilman Nathan C. Irby.

Burns has denied that he and Irby did anything other than notify community groups that the jobs were available.

The Lapides complaint did not note that Walter S. Brooks, a former Core leader and candidate endorsed by the Lapides group, is also listed as a coordinator for 100 of the summer job positions.

NAACP demands court house investigation

The Baltimore Branch of the NAACP calls for a complete and impartial investigation and report of the alleged practice of racial and sex discrimination in employment and administration in the Baltimore City Courthouse as alleged by Judge Joseph C. Howard.

Mrs. Enolia P. McMillan, president, states,

"In these days when a lack of credibility has eroded the Executive Branch and tainted the legislative branches of our national, state and local governments, it is imperative that our Judicial Branch maintain its record of integrity within itself as well as within the nation.

"Our courts have been the predominant force in maintaining the justice, equality and liberty guaranteed us by our democratic Constitution.

"Any deviation from this pattern of accountability must be speedily discovered, reported and corrected."

July 4th—A Time to Celebrate?

By Bryan D. Holt

Friday we recognize the signing of the Declaration of Independence. All Americans 'recognize' the day, but few have reason to celebrate.

Economic recession, crime, racism, and political corruption have affected the country like a cancerous brain tumor. The persons who signed the declaration suffered tremendously at the hands of the British, but Americans are still suffering today, directly and indirectly.

Unemployment in our nation has soared within the past two years and is beginning to level off at 9.2 per cent. The rate for black citizens, however, is still estimated at approximately 14 per cent.

Americans have no more safety walking the streets today than defiant patriots had almost 200 years ago. Historians state that they were hunted, shot, robbed, and subjected to every conceivable hardship and abuse at the hands of the British.

* * *

The current scene has changed only slightly. Now we are subjected to every hardship and abuse conceivable or otherwise. We no longer have the British to blame either.

Within the past two weeks, our city has seen the senseless shooting of an eight-month-pregnant woman, the racially oriented stabbing of a father of six, and hundreds of other violent crimes.

Thomas Jefferson was allegedly involved in hanky-panky at Monticello during his presidency. In recent days, presidential games have gone on at the White House and even in San Clemente.

* * *

Richard Nixon will probably be remembered for his activities at Watergate more than those at the White House, even though we continue to suffer because of them.

As we approach the recognition of 200 years of independence, it seems as though sovereignty from Great Britain was not the answer to our many problems.

Though they too are presently in the midst of a recession, it is not being felt as drastically as the one which we are facing.

Perhaps what our country stood in need of then, and stands in need of today, is freedom from the philosophies and selfishness of its peoples. We bred our own economic and social problems and our own brand of racism.

As we recognize Independence Day, don't try to dwell on the country's history and accomplishments, try to find something good. When you find it, let a neighbor know.
