Banshing the Bug

Just like flies, the "bugs" that get blamed for 24 hour stomach disorders do their "best" work in summer, and we help them right along by fingering summer snack foods.

We snack more and eat fewer sit down meals these days, so we use more fingers and fewer forks. Worse yet, we wash hands less because we aren't preparing to "sit." A vicious circle!

The best answer is a sharp eye on the "bug" breeding grounds. Keep pet food dishes out of the kitchen and don't leave them out long anywhere. They sprout bacteria. Fingers that pick them up and then pick up a peach or pretzel are pipelines to cramps. Cutting boards are breeding grounds too—use chlorine bleach on them. Thaw meats and poultry products in the fridge not on the counter. And keep perishables hot or cold - warm is for breeding noh for feeding.
