Beauticians Gather to "Big Show" Despite Weather

The torrential rains that innundated Philadelphia, turning it into a near disaster area recently, failed to dampen the spirits, or the numbers, of beauticians that gathered at the Sheraton Hotel for the 15th annual "BIG SHOW," America's largest Black beauty and barber trade show. Despite the near record three-day downpour, the show maintained its average attendance of 8,000 over the three-day period.

They came from the deep south, midwest, New England states and as far away as Bermuda and California. They came by plane, chartered bus and cars, to watch and participate in the "BIG SHOW."

Sponsored by BEAUTY TRADE magazine, which is the only trade publication in the Black race, the "BIG SHOW" is presented twice annually — in Philadelphia in July and in Chicago, November 16, 17, 18.

The "BIG SHOW" is not only a three-day seminar, a learning experience for Black beauticians, the largest business bloc in the Black race, it is an eagerly anticipated convention for this group. It features exhibits, demonstrations, classes, contests, fashion and style shows, entertainments.

It is a trend-setter, an authoritative source of the new styles and techniques that these beauticians will be employing during the coming year.

Judges

Among the judges of the various styling competitions was Velma Brooks, of Dallas, Texas, the only American, (white or black) ever to win two European styling competitions. One of these was the coveted Rose D'Or (more popularly called the Paris Festival), which had been won by only two Americans.

Another Texan, James E. Charles, of Dallas, set a precedent at the "BIG SHOW" by capturing first and second place (using separate models) in the Fashion Look Competition. This is a competition in which the total look of the model, as well as the hairstyle, is judged.

Rozena Farmer, of East Point, Ga., (eight miles from Atlanta) became a "BIG SHOW" winner for the fifth consecutive time when she won first place in the Salon Competition and third place in the Fashion Look Competition.

Most beauticians, as they left the Philadelphia "BIG SHOW," said they were returning to their shops to await the Chicago "BIG SHOW" at the O'Hare Inn.

An 'old hat'

Winning competitions is "old hat" to Rozena Farmer. Among her trophies are two precedent-shattering ones: two first places in the all-white Dixie Hair and Beauty Fair, sponsored by the Georgia Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association at Atlanta's Hyatt Regency last March.

The Atlanta area was well represented at the Philadelphia "BIG SHOW," with the Adorn Beauty College, the Mimosa Beauty School and the C. C. Harris Beauty School each sending a busload. In addition, scores of shop owners and operators from the area made their semi-annual pilgrimage to the "BIG SHOW."

Also winning honors at the "BIG SHOW" were Mitzi Farmer from the Mimosa Beauty School in Atlanta, second place in the Mammoth Student Competition; and, Lucius Jones, also of the Mimosa School, fifth place in the Salon Competition.

More winners

Other winners include: Salon Competition, Shirley Benson, Akron, Ohio, second place; Paul McLaughlin, Brooklyn, N.Y., third place.

Look Competition: First and second place, James E. Charles, Dallas, Tex. Student Competition: Robert J. Thomas, Cleveland, Ohio, first place; Mickey Jeffis, Rochester, N.Y., third place. New Talent Competition: Joan Davis, Rochester, N.Y., first place; Mike Dawson, Columbus, Ohio, second place; Paul McLaughlin, Brooklyn, N.Y., third place.

AT LEFT: Shirley Benson, standing, owner of the Play Girl Hair Fashions Shop, Akron, Ohio, poses along with her model, Faye Leathers and the second-place trophy they won in the Salon Competition at the "Bigh Show" held recently in Philadelphia. Ms. Benson plans to replace that trophy with one of the first place ones at the next show at the O'Hare Inn, Chigaco, Nov. 16-18.

AT RIGHT: Rosena Farmer stands beside her model, Cathy Gay, displaying the first place trophy won in the Salon Styles Competition at the "Big Show." Ms. Farmer, owner of Valencia's Beauty Salon, East Point, Ga. has won numerous awards for her works. This is her fifth consecutive winat the "Bigh Show." Ms. Farmer is already preparing to defend her laurels at the next show in Chicago.

Career planning IWY

By Carmen Maymi
Director, Women's Bureau
U. S. Dept. of Labor

International Women's Year has a special meaning for young women planning careers, because it points up the growing importance of women's role in the Nation's economy.

During 1975, the options open to women are being given greater visibility than ever before and educators, employers, and government are actively seeking ways to open new opportunities to women.

The Women's Bureau has always been concerned about the counseling and guidance afforded young women and, particularly, about the educational opportunities open to them. It is only recently that laws have been enacted to insure that young men and women have the same educational opportunities and that all courses are open to both sexes.

Now, women students need to be informed of their options and motivated to consider new occupational fields in which there are, as yet, few women but where the demand for workers is greater than in traditional fields.

The Women's Bureau has made youth one of its target groups for 1975-76. We will work with educators, counselors, and young women themselves to find imaginative, innovative approaches to career planning. We hope to develop a demonstration project on career-and-life exploration for teen girls that can be duplicated by women's organizations, educational institutions, and others throughout the country.

The need for new approaches is clear. Women workers today are victims of occupational stereotyping which probably began in their early school days when they were told girls were
