Fresh grapefruit contains best sources of vital vitamin C

Grapefruit is available the year round with the peak of the crop coming during October throgh May. Key producing areas are Florida and Texas during the winter and Arizona and California during the spring and summer. Everything now points to a record crop for the 1975-76 season.

Grapefruit comes weither seeded or seedless with color variation from pink to red to white. Seedless is more expensive and pink is the most desired color. March is the chief seedless variety which has both pink and white types.

Ruby red and marsh pink are considered to be sweeter varieties and are the most popular. The chief seeded grapefruit is Duncan.

Grapefruit has a tangy, exhilarating flavor. It is one of the best sources of the all important Vitamin C. A four-ounce serving of freshly squeezed juice or half of a medium sized (3 ¾ inch diameter) fruit will meet your daily need. (Don't overlook the fact that grapefruit is low in calories and highly alkalizing in nature.

Quality grapefruit should be bright, firm and springy to the touch. Heavy fruit usually indicates thin skin and plenty of juice. Fruit somewhat pointed at teh stem end tends to be thick skinned. Look for skin that is clean, bright looking with few scars or rough spots. Russeting does not harm the fruit.

Do not rely solely on color for an index to flavor as good grapefruit can range from pale yellow to russet or bronze. Brightly colored fruit is naturally more appealing but often the russeted will be tastier and juicier. Grapefruit is never artificially colored.

Grapefruit quality does not improve in storage. The longer held, the greater loss of juice and flavor. It may be kept a day or two at room temperature but for longer periods, refrigerate to avoid drying and wrinkling.

neckline. The sweater had dolman sleeves. She chose a green velvet evening skirt with brown winter leaves. She chose a gorgeous jade turtle necklace with matching earrings, on which she received many compliments.

Dr. Webb announced that a buffet was open for serving upstairs. A line was formed and tasted Ozella's special recipe of broccoli, sliced chicken, long almonds, etc. covered with longhorn cheese.

Among some of the D.C. guests enjoying Ozella's special recipe were Dr. Zoda Elder, clinical professor at Howard University, and husband John, principal at a junior high school there;

Dr. Eva Towns, child psychiatrist; there were Judge and Mrs. William Pryor (one of the youngest judges to ever be appointed); Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Keene, Dr. Charles Epps, Baltimore.

Miss Carolyn Steptoe, Dr. and Mrs. Billy D. Davis, Attorney and Mrs. Stanford Gams, Dr. and Mrs. Curtis Adams, Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Russell.

There were two gracious ladies with whom I enjoyed chatting, most of all, lovely Mrs. Willia Webb, mother of Dr. Harvey Webb, and his charming aunt Mrs. Bernice Brook from D.C.

Dr. Harvey Webb is the executive director of the Constance Care Community Health Center, formerly Provident Health Center.

Dr. Ozella Webb is the Chief Office Medicine Assistant in a $9 million medicare program in Washington, D.C.

The Columbia Chapter of Jack and Jill of America enjoyed their Christmas festivities this year at the home of Robert and Marilyn Beale on Waterfowl Terrace.

Highlighting the occasion were a beautifully decorated Christmas tree reaching the ceiling at one end of the club room of the lake-side home and a fire burning cozily in the fireplace at the other end with a table laden with food in between.

Outfits were beautiful, ranging in color from the basic black to the stunning two-piece metallic suit in horizontal stripes of pink, green, silver, and black worn by the hostess, Marilyn Beale.

Elaine Harris, the Chapter President, was striking in the maroon velvet jacket which she had designed to wear with her multicolored long skirt.

All dried fruits should feel firm but pliable to the touch. If the dried fruits are in a see-through package, you can judge quality somewhat by appearance.

There are three major groups of cabbage varieties — smooth-leafed green cabbage, crinkly leafed Savoy cabbage, and red cabbage. The Savoy and red varieties are most in demand for use in slaws and salads.
