Dr. Crew is dedicated to his family and each student in every school

Dr. John L. Crew does not begin his administrative work until 4:30 p.m. when he is sure that all the students from the last school shift are safely at home. Then he can stop worrying.

"I guess it's one of my weaknesses," he comments grinding out his cigarette As interim superintendent for Baltimore schools, Dr. Crew worries every day about the young people in the system.

Dr. Crew, a family man was born on a farm in Westminister, S.C., Nov. 2, 1926.

He enjoys reading when he can find the time. He also likes to play poker and golf, although he has not been able to do either in quite a while. His favorite pasttime is debating with persons on current events.

Since being appointed interim superintendent, Dr. Crew's hours are longer that ever. He nevertheless tries to spend as much time as he can with his wife, Brookside and his two children, Larry age 10 and Kimberly, age 7.

Dr. Crew has been with the Baltimore school system for 17 years and became interim superintendent in July 1974.

A graduate of Morgan State, he went on to receive his master's degree from New York University and his Ph.D from the University of Maryland.

From time to time before becoming deeply involved in the school system, he taught part-time at Morgan, Loyola College and the University of Maryland, College Park.

• • •

Dr. Crew's and the University of Maryland, College Park.

• • •

Dr. Crew's job as superintendent is a demanding one. He enjoys it and knows he has his family's backing.

"I've spent long hours talking it over with my family," he said, and revealed his family is one of the reasons he applied for the position.

• • •

Dr. Crew does not worry about being appointed permenant superintendent. He feels he has a good chance at being chosen.

He did say however, that if he is not picked, he would be "left in no man's land" and would have to "reassess his life" in terms of his responsibility to his family as well as setting up some sort of future for his children.

• • •

Dr. Crew finds the job he does rewarding. as deputy superintendent for Planning, Research and evaluation, he helped put together the famous Patterson Plan.

He wants to see the youth in the school system make it. Beside pushing for improvements in secondary education, he is a firm believer in student rights. He recognizes the fact that the students are young and sometimes get into trouble, and must be protected.

He explained the teacher must understand the problem and deal with it with the help of the parents.

Ford seeks to revamp rules for four welfare programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford intends to seek uniform 50-state standards for federal aid to the elderly, sick and poor with new limits on food stamps, family welfare and housing subsidies.

In his budget message to Congress Wednesday, Ford said he may name a welfare czar" to mesh four programs: food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Supplemental Security Income and "Section 8" low rent housing.

"No specific decision has been made yet," said Ford, adding he would ask Congress for authority to coordinate programs now administered by the Departments of Health, Education and Welfare; Agriculture and Housing and Urban Development.

Each department has different criteria for eligibility, and in some cases, states even set eligibility requirements with wide variations.

"It is conceivable that we will appoint a so-called welfare czar" to set uniform standards for eligibility, Ford said.

The budget contained no details on how the reorganization would be made, but budget director James T. Lynn told reporters it would take a period of about seven or eight years to standardize the requirements.

The reorganization would mean the same requirements would be used for food stamp recipients as those applying for rent subsidies. Different criteria are now used, so that a person who is poor enough for food stamps may not be poor enough for rent help.

The administration provided some broad guidelines it planned to follow:

— Food stamps would be restricted to households with net monthy income at or below the poverty level. A standard $100 per month would be allowed for computing net income with an additional $25 per month for the elderly.

— AFDC payments would be awarded only after applicants actively sought work. No welfare would be paid if "suitable" work was offered and the applicants turned it down. Child care would be provided during job searches.

— Rent subsidies would be based entirely on the recipient paying 25 per cent of his net income toward the rent. Tenants now can receive subsidies regardless of their rent-paying ability.

— A national standard would replace varying state eligibility requirements for SSI, a program for the elderly, blind and disabled.

Ford asks tax cut in union address

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's State of the Union address at a glance:

TAXES

Will propose $10 billion additional tax cuts after current six-month extension of 1975 cuts expires.

BUDGET

New budget which went to Congress, Wednesday, totaled $394.2 billion, cutting in half average budget increases over past decade: aimed at fighting inflation, creating more jobs.

WELFARE

Proposed consolidating 59 separate federal programs to help states with welfare programs; recommended 0.3 per cent increase in social Security taxes starting Jan. 1, 1977.

ENERGY

Urged Congress to enact remainder of his proposals to make nation independent of foreign oil.

DEFENSE AND INTELLIGENCE

Called for considerable increase in defense budget, and pledged reorganization of nation's intelligence programs.

CRIME

Proposed increase in federal enforcement agencies to help fight organized crime, gun and drug traffic; called for additional anti-crime assistance to states.

WASHINGTON — A standing committee on labor, marking the first federal recognition of labor's importance, was created in 1867 by the U.S. House of Representatives, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Youth, 18, gets 100 year sentence

Timothy V. Carter, 18, was sentenced Jan. 20 to 100 years in prison for killing three people in four days.

Judge Solomon Liss imposed sentence and stated Carter of the 2000 block Harlem Ave., has been a drug addict since he was 12-year-old.

• • •

Carter, also known as "T.C." pleaded guilty to three charges of second degree murder and one charge of robbing one of the victims.

Assistant State's Attorney Gary Bass told the court the rape, robbery and handgun charges were dropped by the state in return for Carter's guilty plea.

According to Bass, Carter and another defendant, James Carmichael stopped George Adams Jr., March 30, 1975 in the 3000 block Edmondson Ave.

Cotter and Carmichael asked Adams for his money but he refused to give it to them and was beaten to death. Carmichel is confined to City Jail awaiting trial for murder.

Police found 21-year-old Adams in the 3000 block Edmondson Ave. He lived in the 700 block Linnard St.

Three days later James Lee Walkre, 17, 900 block N. Augusta Ave., was walking in the 4100 block Cranston Ave., when he was robbed of $75 and shot in the back and left for dead around 11:15 a.m. April 2, 1975.

KILLED TEENAGER

Bass told the court Carter was alone April 3 around 2 a.m. when he accosted Tyronne Stubbs, 18 and his 23-year-old girlfriend at Poplar Grove and Franklintown Rd., while they were waiting for a bus.

Carter forced the couple to go with him to the rear of a church in the 700 block Poplar Grove. After not being able to get money from Stubbs, Carter shot him twice in the chest.

Court records state Carter then took the woman to his home and raped her. After sexually assaulting her, Carter took the woman home and allegedly raped her in her home.

Bass told the court Carter fell asleep in the woman's bed and she ran outside to call the police. Police report when they arrested Carter from the victim's home, they found a gun near him in the bed. Police reveal the gun was the same one used that killed Walker.

Mathias consults with McCarthy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy met recently to discuss a possible merger of efforts to create a third-party force in this year's presidential election.

The two men met in Mathias' Senate office Tuesday, held a meeting two weeks ago and have another one scheduled tentatively for next Wednesday, the Washington Post reported.

Mathias said Tuesday that "there've been no agreements and I don't anticipate any statements. It's very premature to talk about choosing up sides with any particular person."

McCarthy, a Minnesota Democratic senator from 1959 to 1971 and a former congressman, could not be reached for comment. His campaign manager, Ronald Cocome, acknowledged ongoing talks between the two men, saying "They both feel they can't operate within the confines of the two parties."

Cocome said McCarthy is "becoming convinced there's almost a real need for an anti-party party."

McCarthy's strong showing in the 1968 New Hampshire primary is credited with affecting President Johnson's decision to foregoe a re-election campaign that year. He ran as a Democrat in 1972 and now seeks the presidency as an Independent.

Mathias, who opposes what he sees as a conservative trend in the Republican Party, has left open the possibility he would run for President as an independent.

Mathias said McCarthy has been talking with a number of possible running mates. Cocome said, however, that McCarthy's large steering committee looks more favorably on Mathias than any other person.

If an arrangement would be worked out, the strategy wood be to enter no primaries and try to get in the general election ballots of every state.

IRS seen reopening Nixon probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service has reopened a civil tax fraud investigation into Richard M. Nixon's 1969 tax return, the Wash'ngton Post and the New ork Times reported Wednesday.

In a story by Bob Woodward, one of two reporters who gained fame through reporting the Watergate case, the Post noted the IRS had concluded in 1974 it did not have sufficient evidence to charge the former President with civil fraud.

Now, the paper reported, informed sources said the agency "believes it can show that the former President had had knowledge of a backdated deed claiming an illegal deduction for his gift of papers to the government." If fraud is proved against Nixon, the Post said, he would be forced to pay $999,191.45, which would include $148,050.97 for a 1969 deficiency found by the IRS in 1974 plus a 50 per cent penalty for fraud of $74,040.48.

Nixon could challenge a fraud assessment in court.

Nixon had no legal obligation to pay the 1969 tax deficiency because the three-year statute of limitations had expired. But fraud has no statute of limitations and makes the basic tax deficiency also collectible at any time.

CCB extends registration deadline

Late registration at CCB will be held Jan. 26 to 30.

The Day Division registration for the late-comers will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Liberty Campus.
