125,000 persons estimated at Minority Trade Fair

An estimated 125,000 persons will have visited Mondawmin Shopping Center by tomorrow, Saturday, either to shop or to visit the Seventh Anual Minority Trade Fair. A Mondawmin Merchants Association spokesman said the quarter of a million figure is a conservative guses.

Sponsored by the Baltimore Council for Equal Business Opportunity (CEBO), the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers and the Mondawmin Merchants Association, the event ends Saturday. On display are the products of over 50 minority businesses. Joining the sponsor group this year is the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, a community organization of ministers representing all faiths.

* * *

The main purpose of the week long event is to offer minority tradesmen and women wide public exposure to the major area businesses and the various communities.

This year's highlight is the Bicentennial theme.

Emphasis is placed on the role of local minority businesses in terms of what black economic development means to other cities and the nation.

Among the 50 booths on display are, Constant Care Health Center Inc., established in 1967; the Baltimore Urban League; Black Odyssey Modeling and Fine Arts Studio, started by William Allen just a year ago; Arena Players, Inc. started in 1953; Howard Security Agency, Inc., established by Melvin L. Blanheim and Daniel P. Redding and Carver Vocational Technical Hiigh School.

Events scheduled for today, Friday, include, a women's and children's karate exhibition by Mitchell's School of Karate from 3 to 3:30 p.m.; Dave Ross and his Jazz Ensemble featuring the Harris Sisters from 5 to 5:30 p.m.; a speech by Cong. Paul Sarbanes at 5:30 p.m; and a men's women's and children's fashion show featuring the Fashion Beat models.

Saturday's event include the trade fairs awards presentation and culminating ceremonies from noon to 1:30 p.m.- a performance by the Forest Park Neighborhood Marching Band from 2 to 2:30 p.m.

Also a performance by the Model Cities Modern Dance Groups from 3 to 3:30 p.m.; the St. Francis Gospel Chorus performance from 4 to 4:30 p.m.; a high fashion show at 6 p.m. and a performance by Ruby Glover accompanied by Dave Ross and his Jazz Ensemble featuring Dance selections by Travis Winkey at 7 p.m.

FINANCIAL OPPORTUNITIES
No promise . . . but these positions offer an excellent niche to ambitious individuals with good financial backgrounds. This plus is an opportunity for rapid advancement in addition to salaries ranging from $17,000 to $25,000.
Our organization is sizable with multiple plants and a position high on the Fortune 500 list. Products are highly technical with an established reputation for superiority. Growth has been sustained and excellent over a significant number of years. Important diversifications now suggest even more rapid expansion in the immediate future.
Financial Analysts — This position requires experience in Budgets and Measurements, Forecasting and Operations Analysis. Individuals should have in-depth knowledge of cost standards and cost analysis.
Cost Analysts — Analytical abilities are important for these positions, of course. But, in addition, qualifications should include cost analysis with a metal working company that is substantial both in size and financial operations. Important will be a proven capability to work smoothly with production and financial personnel in a large manufacturing environment.
These opportunities are rather special and merit your investigation because of the size of our operations (well over a billion in annual sales) and anticipated expansions. Relocation on the East Coast is a must.
Please send your resumé to Mr. H.M. Heldmann, Professional Placement, Office 232 Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, East Hartford, Connecticut 06108.
