What's taking place in school, on campus

By Clarence W. Hunter

Special Education Classes, under leadership of Ms. Jacqueline A. Fleming, chairman, at Howard Park Elementary School, received a certificate of award from Provident Hospital.

Each student received an award from Ms. Vivian A. Madison for contributing to the morale and health of the inpatients of the Pediatric Unit.

OVERSIGHT

With just a week of graduations left, one often forgets to thank the persons who work behind the scenes.

So to all those who helped with all the graduations, a special thanks goes out to AFRO photographer Norma Spencer and Ms. Roxanne Franklin who took the photographs for the Goucher, Towson and Morgan commencements.

POINT IN FACT

Student enrollment at the high schools in the Archdiocese of Baltimore may increase next year, officials expect 14 to 20 more.

Ms. Jewell Augustine Harper earned a law degree from the University of California, Hasting College of the Law.

Ralph Young Junior High School will close doors June 18 due to the loss of funds.

Two sites have been found for the school system school for disruptive pupils, one on Morgan campus, the other is the Ralph Young school.

SWINSON MEMORIAL

Robert B. Chapman III, vice president of Institutional Planning and Development, Lincoln State College, announced that annual scholarships will be awarded to two deserving second semester juniors who plan to enroll in their senior year at the institution.

Rev. Lawyer L. Swinson, Sr. established the memorial scholarship in memory of his son, Lawyer L. Swinson Jr., who died during his senior year at Coppin.

Lawyer L. Swinson Jr., a social science major, would have graduated in June at the age of 22. He graduated from City College and Community College of Baltimore.

BARD NAMED

Dr. Harry Bard, president of the Community College of Baltimore, has been named "Man of the Year" by the Nu Chapter, Iota Lambda Sigma Fraternity, and the Industrial Education department of the University of Maryland for Dr. Bard's career in education and the technical programs at CCB which have grown under his leadership.

The "Man of the Year Award" plaque as well as a Distinguished Professional Award were presented Dr. Bard at the May meeting of the CCB Board of Trustees by Dr. L. Edward Neels, program coordinator, Trades and Industry, Anne Arundel County Public Schools and former president of Nu Chapter.

GRADUATE

Phillip Martin Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Avon Dennis was one of 115 students of the University of Maryland School of Medicine who was graduated last Friday.

Dennis received his B.S. degree from Morgan State College prior to attending medical school. He also graduated from Baltimore City College High School.

He plans to serve his residency in medicine at Norfolk General Hospital in Norfolk, Virginia.

SUMMER PROGRAM

BRIDGE, a program designed to help entering freshman persons for college level work, will be conducted at the University of Maryland Baltimore County from July 12 through August 20.

The concept of BRIDE suggests that students often are graduated from high school unprepared for the rigorous demands of college, so that often students with basically good academic ability experience difficulties and sometimes failure during their freshman year. Call 455-2446 for details.

WORKSHOP

The public is invited to a "hands-on" workshop in audio-visual production June 14, 16 and 17 at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland on North Charles Street.

The non-credit workshop is of interest to elementary and secondary teachers, librarians and media personnel and set for 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. each day. Monday's program will deal with aldemaking, Wednesday's with transparencies and Thursday's with audio tapes. Call 727-7777 for details.

SUMMER COURSES

Over 70 courses are offered this summer by the division of education of Johns Hopkins University Evening College.

Over 30 evening classes are scheduled for two summer terms, June 14 to July 23 and July 26 to Sept. 3. Forty day classes, of the first term only, meet from June 21 to July 23. Call 366-3030 for details.

AGING COURSES

The University of Maryland Center on Aging has two courses during the university's summer session, July 6-August 13. Call 454-5866 for information.

ADULT PROGRAMS

The Area of Adult and Community Education of the city schools offers a variety of academic, vocational and personal interest courses this summer for adults at no tuition charge.

The programs are available in four adult centers from June 22 through Aug. 19. Help yourself to the better life by calling 396-6702, 03, 04 for details.

MUSICAL

Towson Senior High School music and drama departments will present an encore performance of the original bicentennial musical, High As A Kite, July 1, 2, 3 and 4.

High As A Kite, is the story of the political and amorous adventures of Ben Franklin in the American colonies and in the court of King Louis XVI in France. Call 828-1886 for details.

JAFFA RETIRING

After 38 years service with the city public schools, Dr. N. Neubert Jaffa, deputy superintendent of Management Services, is retiring as of June 30.

Dr. Jaffa began service with the school system in 1937 as an elementary classroom teacher. Since then, he has been a demonstration teacher, vice principal, principal, supervisor of special projects, administrator of federal programs and regional superintendent. He was named to his present post in 1974.

GRADUATION

On Sunday, Monsignor William C. Newman, retiring Superintendent of Catholic Schools and William S. Hartman, principal, will present diplomas to over 140 students of the graduating class of Cardinal Gibbons High School.

Stephen W. McNierney, executive vice president of Loyola College and president of the Cardinal Gibbons school board and Brother William A. Abel, S.M., assistant provincial of Society of Mary, will present the academic awards to seniors who made outstanding achievements over the past four years.

Social work is addition to Army major's career

Major Jesse Harris recently became one of two students to receive a doctor of social welfare degree from the University of Maryland at Baltimore School of Social Work and Community Planning.

A 15 year career officer in the Army, Harris did his doctoral dissertation on "Status as a Moderator of Job Satisfaction and Role Ambiguity: A Study of the Army Behavioral Science Specialist."

• • •

A graduate of Dunbar High School Harris holds a B.S. from Morgan State and two Master degrees one from Howard University and one from the School of Social Work and Community Planning at UMAB.

His mother is Mrs. Louise Harris of Walton Court here in Baltimore and he is the cousin of the late Mrs. Willie Mae DeShields.

• • •

Major Harris' dissertation dealt with a theoretical problem on the influence that objective or subjective status has on the relationship between job satisfaction and role ambiguity or the charity a person has in his job.

"I was specially interested in this relationship as it applied to social work paraprofessionals and how the army makes use of the these individuals" he said.

• • •

In his findings, Harris' results indicated the higher a person's status in the organization the greater the job relationship and understanding.

Harris also found significantly lower job satisfaction scores were obtained from those who are not clear about their role.

From a military perspective Major Harris feels that "because we live in a status conscious world where status is very much a part of our lives, a person wears his status openly on his sleeve." He stated a person needs to know how this affects their understanding and satisfaction of their job.

• • •

Sometime this month Harris will present his finding before a Washington meeting of army social work consultants from all over the country and some from Europe. He attributes a lot of credit to his advisor, Dr. Harris Chaiklin for inspiring him to complete the dissertation.

Having now finished at UMAB, Harris will begin his new duties at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research where he is to be involved in community mental health research in the military community.

I cordially invite you and your family to attend the

Cox says Ford is 'wrong' on seggie private schools

FARMINGTON, Conn. (UPI) — President Ford is legally and morally wrong in saying discrimination by a private school not receiving federal funds is allowable, says Archibald Cox, former Watergate special prosecutor.

"If I were in the position of the President's solicitor general I would take the position that the law prohibits such discrimination," he said. "I think certainly it is wrong morally."

Ford said recently that he supports the right of parents to send their children to private, segregated schools not getting federal funds.

• • •

"I think it is unfortunate he has taken the position he has, partly because it slows the process of bringing equality and partly because it is encouraging to those who are attempting to obstruct in Boston and a few other places, what the law requires," Cox said.

Ford has opposed the use of busing to achieve integration in Boston and the U.S. Civil Rights Commission last year, said his stance was one reason for the sporadic violence resulting from opposition to the busing order there.

"I think at the present time, it is clearly wrong because it denies human beings equality and human dignity," Cox said of Ford's position.

Cox, fired by former President Nixon's conversations, said legal precedent was clearly against Ford in the school matter.

He said the Supreme Court had upheld an 1866 law giving each person the right to enter into a a contract, without regard to race. He said the law had been upheld in the case of persons wanting to buy property.

• • •

Cox, now a Harvard law professor, said he thought the court would see the question of a parent's entering into a contract for their child's schooling the same way.

Cox said it was his understanding that the Justice Department disagreed with the President's position on the matter.

Cox was in Farmington to give the commencement address at Miss Porter's School, an exclusive prep school from which his mother graduated in 1910.

Honor student graduates from 187-year-old school

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass — Miss DarriLynnde D. Arnelle daughter of Mrs. Emma E. Jones Arnelle of the 2300 block of Koko Lane was graduated with honors in biology from Williams College.

Miss Arnelle received her B.A. degree at the 187th commencement held Sunday. George Ball, former undersecretary of state, was the commencement speaker.

Miss Arnelle's honors include the Dean's list; the Herbert Lehman Scholar award; recipient of the Francis Sessions Hutchinson Memorial Fellowship and second prize in the Benedict Prize in biology.

While at Williams she was vice president of the Freshman Council; junior adviser; secretary to the Williams Black Student Union and College Council representative and editor of two student publications.

Williams College was founded in 1793 and is a four year liberal arts college with an enrollment of 1,860 students, including 1,225 men and 635 women. The Class of 1976 is the largest in the school's history.

MISS LINDA CAROLE BARON, 16, a junior at Perry Hall Senior High School in Baltimore County maybe dying of leukemia. She is presently undergoing a bone marrow transplant at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, Wash. Because the expense will be huge and Miss Baron must remain hospitalized for three to four months, a committee at Parkville Senior High School, where her father, Michael Baron, works, is making a plea for funds and asks anyone wishing to contribute to send a check to the "Linda Baron Trust Fund" to Mr. Barbara K. Howe, 210 W. Pennsylvania Ave., Towson, Md. 21204 or to Leo J. Lehman, Parkville Senior High School, 2200 Putty Hill Ave. Baltimore, Md. 21234.

Bowie State gives 500 students degrees

James H. Morrison and Ms. Wanda Marlene Sellers were among the 500 graduates who participated in the 180th commencement of Bowie State College held at the James Physical Education Complex last Saturday.

Morrison, a Baltimore resident and president of the Bowie class of 1976, received his BS degree in psychology.

Mr. Sellers a resident of Anne Arundel County and top graduate in the class, was graduated summa cum laude with a BS degree in Elementary Education. She was among 61 students who received awards or honors.

Among the 500 students who received degrees over 330 students were presented with graduate degrees.

Mrs. Patricia Roberts Harris, former U.S. Ambassador to Luxembourg and presently a partner with a Washington, D.C. law firm, gave the commencement address.

In her address to the audience of over 4,000 persons, Mrs. Harris challenged the graduates to move on to new horizons while at the same time improving the life of those less fortunate.

"It's not a black dream and not a white dream," she said, "It's a dream we all share together and one we need to work toward together."
