
A MOMENT OF GLORY — But it didn't last for Joe Frazier (always on left in sequence) took over early points on George Foreman in their heavyweight rematch at Uniondale, N.Y., last Tuesday night. Frazier landed solidly during the early moments in which he was the aggressor as always. But Foreman rallied strongly in the third and fourth rounds, and in the fifth belted his adversary to the canvas twice. When Frazier, sporting his new, shaven-head look, rose groggily after the second knockdown, referee Harold Valan stepped in and stopped what could have been a calamitous end for the outmatched Philadelphian. The two former champions were battling for the right to challenge the winner of the Sept. 28 title match between Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton, sometime in early 1977.

BY THE WAY...

by Joe Black

This is an election year. The year we elect a President, Governors. And public officials we have to live with and work with, for the next four years.

Do you care?

If you don't, this should be the year that you do.

Too many of us have been busy kinking our hair, making the Black Power fist, giving the soul handshake, then sitting back. Sitting back and saying, "That's it, Brother. I've done my thing as a Black person."

But this external, emotional display isn't enough. Black Power lacks a fuse if it doesn't include a conscious effort to get involved in the elective system of our country.

If we are going to successfully climb from the pits of oppression, frustration, rejection, and second class living, we must seek assistance from our Government. The cooperation of our Government. The understanding of our Government.

We should all know whom we're talking to, when it comes time to do some serious talking. And what to expect, when we do.

We can't afford the luxury of letting someone else elect our officials. We must be active, and not reactive. And we must do it at every level.

We must show our elected officials that we are concerned. Concerned about them. Concerned about ourselves. Concerned about our country.

That way, we show an honest concern.

For many years now, we've been moving toward a stronger voice in our Government. A valid voice.

Let's not blow it this year, by keeping our mouths shut, when it's election time. Time to speak up, and be counted.

We can register. We can vote.

We must.

Now George Foreman begins 100-day wait for Ali or...

That's how many days it will be from Monday until George Foreman finds out who he must pursue in a bid to regain the heavyweight boxing title that was his a year and a half ago.

A hundred days of waiting can be a long time, but Sept. 28 is a lot closer than Oct. 30, 1974. So, Foreman can truthfully say: "It ain't as long as it has been."

The September date is scheduled as Muhammad Ali's defense against No. 1 contender Ken Norton. October 30, a year and a half ago, was the day on which Foreman had been dethroned in Zaire, West Africa, by the same Ali.

Now George, having last Tuesday night dismantled the hopes of Frazier, begins the tedious wait for another shot at Ali, his tormentor, or Norton.

Foreman had appeared invincible before losing his title to Ali.

But, following the loss, Foreman fired his handlers, including manager Dick Sadler, and remained inactive from "real" competition for 16 months, fighting publicly only once when he appeared in a travesty against five opponents in Toronto.

Foreman then hired Gil Clancy to steer him to a rematch with Ali.

After a life - and - death struggle with Ron Lyle, two months ago, Foreman proved he's ready to tackle Ali again with his sharp performance against Frazier.

"in my mind," Foreman said after his battering of Frazier, "there's only one person fighting the champion and that's me, George Foreman."

'Inoki in blood in 8th' says Ali of Tokyo bout

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Serious?" Muhammad Ali bellowed when a skeptic asked if his upcoming "world martial arts championship" in Tokyo, June 26 was for real or a press agent's dream.

Ali, amid fans, friends and reporters at a news conference at the Olympic Auditorium, then peeled off his shirt and flexed his muscles. "You think this is not serious?" He said, showing off his torso.

"I've been a little fat lately, but look at me — I weigh 216 pounds, sucker!"

Ali then made one of his about the upcoming bout with Antonio Inoki.

"I predict a blood bath," he said. "He will be floored in blood in the eighth round. I have made 16 predictions and missed only twice. This is no put-on. There's $10 million in the bank between me and Inoki. This is real, boy. Would I be involved in a put on? I am the man. I am the king."

New NCAA division OK for 13 black colleges

The National Collegiate Athletic Association early this week moved to appease disgruntled black colleges which have been complaining about being bypassed in the association's major programming.

A proposal was submitted which keeps closed the coveted Division I ranking to the nation's minority college football teams, but creates a newly-formed "I-A" division.

Presumably, the new classification is designed to place 13 selected black colleges in a grouping just beneath Division I and above the Division II status they held previously.

Five of the 14 schools assigned I-A rating are from the seven-member Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (MEAC), and are from the Southwestern Athletic Conference (SWAC).

The five MEAC accepances designate Howard, Morgan, North Carolina Central, A/T, and South Carolina State.

Southwestern AC teams are Alcorn, Grambling, Southern, Jackson State, Texas Southen, Prairie View and Mississippi Valley.

Also granted I-A classification, when approved, will be Florida A/M and Tennessee State.

While AFRO emphasis is placed on these 14 schools, the proposed new division is by no means an all-black grouping.

Among others are the University of Pennsylvania, Cornell, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Brown, Dartmouth, Boston University, Holy Cross, Bucknell and Lehigh.

Also included are Montana, Idaho, Arkansas State, Southern Illinois and Cal. State.

Kathy McMillan steals track spotlight at UCLA

High school gal sets jump mark

Sixteen-year-old Kathy McMillan stole the spotlight at last weekend's National AAU track and field championships at UCLA, when she set a national record in the long jump.

Mainly because she was one of the two youngest competitors in the field of the AAU's first mixed (men and women) meet in 88 years, Kathy's feat was the most noteworthy.

At 16, and less than a full year in competition, the Hoke High School Raeford, N.C.) phenom leaped 22 feet, 3 inches to break her own American record of 22-1¾, set a month earlier.

Prior to McMillan's arrival on the scene, the women's jump mark had been held by veteran Martha Watson of Tennessee State at 21-4¾.

The second of the meet's 16-year-olds, Sheila Ingram of Coolidge High School (Washington, D.C.), scored a second in the women's 400 meters.

In following Lorna Forde of the Bahamas to the tape — beaten by only two-tenths of a second — Ingram outran some of the nation's most promising quarter-milers, including Shirley Williams and Debra Sapenter of Prairie View A and M, and Deboie Armstrong of the Florida Track Club.

Other winners of note were Madeline Manning Jackson of Cleveland in the 800, Chandra Cheeseborough of Tennessee State in the 100, and Authurane Gainer of Prairie View in the women's 400-meter hurdles.

Manning, looking to her fourth U.S. Olympic berth, was clockedsin 2:01 as she bested Kathy Weston, Jan Merrill and Cheryl Toussaint.

Cheeseborough topped an all-black final field that had 17-year-old Rosalyn Bryant, Renaye Bowen, Forde, Pam Waters and Brenda Finch of Jackson State, finishing in that order.

Hurdles champion Gainer, setting an American record of 57.2 seconds, broke the tape ahead of Debbie Esser of Iowa State, the previous record-holder. Mary Ayres of Prairie View and Cheline Crowder of the Los Angeles Track Club.

Fans reminded Orioles are just being typical

Baltimore Orioles fans have no reason to despair in the face of their recent performance.

To all intent and purpose, their baseball heroes have simply been doing what to them "just comes naturally".

Becoming mired in a slump at this time of year is not new to the Birds. All one needs do is look at the last two seasons for proof of the statement.

Last year, the O's went into a swoon that cost them 17 defeats against only 10 victories between mid-May and mid-June.

From May 16-30, they lost 11 of 13 games played, seven of the 11 in row. So, the alarm caused by the recent 9-game losing streak was simply because it occurred today — yesterday they came within two of reaching a similar mark.

At that point a year ago, the Birds were also eight games out of first place.

Two years ago, it was pretty much the same. Baltimore won only 11 games and lost 19 between May 1 and June 14.

Of course, there is no real consolation in recollection. The O's didn't come close to winning the pennant then, either... LACY.

All Comers meet at CCC Sunday

The third Baltimore Olympic Club All Comers track and field meet of the current season will be held on Sunday, 5 p.m. at Catonsville Community College.

Events to be held are the 400 meters, 800 meters, crosscountry run, sprint medley relay, triple jump and shot put.

There is an entry fee of fifty-cents ($.50) per individual event and one-dollar per relay team.

The BOC will also put on meets at Catonsville CC on July 11, July 25 and August 8.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics predicts good job opportunities for chemistry graduates at all degree opening through 1985, accordingto the "Occupational Outlook handbook in Brief."
