Mitchell testifies for public hospital

Cong. Parren J. Mitchell (D-7th-Md.) has submitted testimony to the House Subcommittee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries urging the continuance of operation of the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in Baltimore.

In a strong reaction to the Presiden'st proposal to close down the Wyman Park faculility, Mitchell said "The administration's lack of foresight and sensitivity to the health needs of American citizens as demonstrated by its repeated attempts to close down our Public Health Services Hospital system is outrageous. Of course, of particular interest to me is the hospital in Baltimore. With the loss of this faclity, the magnitude of the impact which would be suffered by Baltimore citizens and neighboring educational institutions would be devasting."

During the first half of Fiscal Year 1976 alone, the hospital admitted over 1,600 people for in-patient treatment, handled a daily average of almost 142 clinical visits, and provided ambulatory services for some 50,000 people.

Commenting on the wide range of services offered by the public health facility, Mitchell stated, "I think I can very honestly say that the Baltimore Public Health Serviec Hospital is perhaps one of the most innovative in the entire system. Along with providing clinical, inpatinte , adn ambulatory services for thousands of people, this facility offers fully accredited training programs in the health care field and medical research in affiliation with the University of Maryand, Johns Hopkins University, Catonville and Baltimore Community Colleges, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of South Carolina.

"In addition, the Baltimore facility is in the development stages of initiating three new programs incuding an alcoholic detoxification center, and exchange program with Johns Hopkins University to train students in internal medicine, and a psychiatric dav treatment center. Also, in successful operation since January of this year, is a geriatric operation since January of this year, is a geriatric day treatment center.

"We cannot afford to lose our hospital," Mitchell continued.

Singer to leave on tour Tuesday

Miss Gwendolyn Irvin, 16, of the 200 block Bethel Court will be leaving Tuesday on a 29-day concert tour that will cover two east coast cities and eight European countries.

Miss Irvin, an 11th grade student at Walbrook Senior High School, will accompany the American Youth in Concert Choir to Philadelphia and New York and several key European cities during the month of July.

However she could not have come up with the funds to go without the helo of her family, school and local church communities.

Back in April Miss Irvin had difficulty raising the necessary $1,200 to make the trip.

She told the AFRO then that she had written to Del. Hattie Harrison, Sen. Robert Douglass and Sen. Clarence Mitchell III and had not received any answer.

The sophmore class at Walbrook came to Miss Irvin's aid and helped raised the money through car washes and bake sales. The Walbrook faculty also helped by putting on a talent show. Garrison Junior High School helped by contributing $250.

Other contributors included her relatives, Mrs. A. J. Bradley of Ocean City, Md., Mrs. Etta Owens and Mrs. Gladys Duncan; her family friends, William Washington and Mrs. Virginia Smith; and various churches, the Gospel Tabernacle Baptist Church, Waters AME Church, City Temple Baptist Church, St. Paul Baptist Church and Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church.

Community groups include the Poets Athletic Club, the Masons, the Ruth Chapter of the Eastern Star, the Victorian Specials, J. D. Howard Studios, The Who So Ever Will Club of Mt. Pleasant and Betty's Beauty Salon on North Ave.

A soprano in the school choir, Miss Irvin was selected to make the tour through an audition taped with the help of the Walbrook music department.

The tour will take in such cities as Paris, London, Rome, Venice, Geneva and Brussels.

Carter blasts Ford on anti-busing plan

BOSTON — Democratic presidential frontrunner Jimmy Carter attacked President Ford's busing anti-proposals on the first stop of a Northeast fund-raising tour here, and also said he is considering blacks and women as his running mate.

Carter told a Tuesday night fund-raising dinner school integration was "one of the best things that ever happened in the South."

He added, "I see a real need in this country for strong leadership from the president, the governors, the mayors, to encourage free integration of schools."

Attacking the specifics of Ford's plan to put a time limit on judicial desegregation orders, Carter said, "I do not believe it would be feasible to put a three-year limit, or a five-year limit, on a federal court order."

On the Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, Carter said, "I am considering both black running mates and women running mates."

He added, "I believe the country is ready to accept a ticket with a representative of the black race or women for the top or second position."

Carter told reporters in Boston he was pleased with the platform drafted by the Democratic platform committee.

"We find ourselves in the unprecedented circumstances where I'm able now to run the fall campaign on the platform itself ... because of the compatibility of the platform provisions with my own beliefs and because of the broad acceptance of the major platform provisions by a wide number of Democrats," Carter said.

Carter spoke hours after Ford told the National Jaycees convention in Indianapolis his administration shortly will file a court suit challenging "court-ordered forced busing" and send Congress a bill that would limit it.

Ford complained that some federal courts "are practically running our local school boards." His plan would limit the federal court busing orders to five years.

Carter said Ford's proposal would require a constitutional amendment and I don't think that's feasible."

Maryland Safety Council warns against fireworks

The state chapter of the National Safety Council urges Marylanders to resist the temptation of buying and using fireworks during Bicentennial festivities.

Instead families should plan to attend one of the many community sponsored public displays which are professionally conducted by pyrotechnic experts.

Possession and use of common fireworks is outlawed by state statutes such as House Bill 144 which was passed by the 1976 General Assembly and signed by Gov. Marvin Mandel.

Banned are Class C firecrackers, M-80 or Class B firecrackers, cherry bombs, skyrockets and Roman candles. Also forbidden are sparkles, except for "Gold Type" which do not contain dangerous chlorates and perchlorates.

Possession, sale or use of these items can result in a $200 fine. Transporting them across the state line from places such as Virginia or the District of Columbia carries a maximum federal fine of $1,000.

The majority of fireworks victims are children, according to the safety council.

Class offered for security guards at CCB

The Community College of Baltimore has developed Security Guard Training the first Maryland "Basic Program," for which registration will take place Tues., June 29, it has been announced by Hayes C. Larkins, chairman of CCB's department of public safety.

Registration will be held in two locations at 11:30 a.m., students may sign in at the conference room, Suite 705, Heaver Plaza, 1301 York Road, Lutherville, and at 6:30 p.m., in Room 120-B, CCB's Liberty Campus, 2901 Liberty Heights Avenue.

The 45-hour program, for which a certificate of continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion, begins June 29 and will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Each of the 24 different presentations will be given twice each day, afternoons from noon to 2:45 p.m. at the Heaver Plaza and evenings from 7:00 to 9:45 p.m. at the Liberty Campus. Security guards may choose the presentations each day according to their work shift schedules.

For those students who will be enrolling at CCB for the first time, the total costs will be $62.00 (this includes a $10.00 application fee, tuition and textbook). For the student who has previously attended the College, the total cost is $52.00.

For further information call Mr. Larkins at 396-0974.
