parts — the purchased gas fuel adjustment, the sale tax and the fixed base rate set by the commission to cover costs of utility plants and their operation.

This means the total bill for the average gas heating customer (using 100 units a month would rise from $29.58 this month to $33.31 in January.

Ronald Hawkins, assistant executive secretary of the Public Service Commission (PSC), stated the already approved base rate hike is the result of the six month rate case hearing.

According to Hawkins, BG and E asked on May 28 for revisions in its electric and steam rates in the amount $83.9 million. However, said Hawkins, the commission last week only approved revision in the amount of $43 million.

Despite the cut in the revision, citizens are still objecting to the actions taken by the commission.

Sen. Verda Welcome stated she is opposed to the PSC permitting any raise in the gas rate to homeowners.

She said her district is suggesting that the commission take a hard look at the proposal and try to find other areas in which this increased cost could be cut back without interfering drastically with the given service to customers.

Donald Miles, spokesman for the Park Heights Community Corporation, stated his office has not received any reaction from the community on the proposed rise in next month's bill.

However, Miles did say that as a gas paying customer he sees the hike as inflationary.

"They (the gas company) already have enough profit and don't need anyone," he said.

Del. Troy Brailey said he considers it "outrageous" for the gas company to go on its rates again.

He stated he thinks the commission should consider the homeowner before granting the proposed hike to BG and E.

Brailey also said he hopes that the legislators will be able to do something about the "drastic increases" in the coming General Assembly.

Del. Walter Dean agrees with Brailey that the gas company's proposal is outrageous however he stated he does not believe the problem can be legislated.

Dean did say however he expects to see a coalition of organizations and a sharp increase in their protests against the PSC and the constant price hikes.

Isaiah Dixon, another member of the Maryland Legislative Black Caucus, stated big businesses are "rolling over the common man."

"Some type of control is needed so that the working man can cope with utility costs" he said.

Dixon also pointed out that the PSC has not been sensitive to the needs of Baltimore citizens and that it was time for all utility increases to have the sanction of the Maryland Legislature before going into effect.

without making a public announcement from which "everyone could have benefited."

Joseph H. H. Caplan, head of the commission, denied these charges. He said, "It is within the authority of the Civil Service Commission to allow applications up to the last minute. It likes. There is no regulation that says applications can not be accepted until the date of testing."

Moreover, he said the commission had not received any complaints "from anyone who had been denied a chance to take the test."

In the matter of Capt. McDonald's promotion, he becomes along with Clyde J. Smith, the second of his race to become the head of a department battalion. They are two among 4 positions.

Even with these promotions the top echelon is still all-white. The chief of the department is white, as are the chief deputy, the second in command and the eight deputy chiefs.

In announcing McDonald's promotion, effective Jan. 5, Board President Calhoun Bond said, "Capt. McDonald achieved his position by being number one on the list. Many people, including blacks, have been promoted in the Fire Department. We are all citizens of Baltimore. We are all doing our best."

Commissioner Showell disagreed. "I am grateful for the promotion. We haven't done enough to pat ourselves on the back. The percentage of blacks is not a whole lot. We can do better," he said.

President Bond responded by reminding Showell the incoming class of the Fire Academy set for March 1 will have 35 per cent black enrollment.

In September, the AFRO noted that Smith scored third on an examination in May to become one of eight deputy chiefs.

Under the law, the Fire Board could have chosen any of the top five candidates. In October, Smith was passed over.

White union officials wanted to know whether the board was making an exception in Capt. McDonald's case because of his involvement in a criminal court case after he was charged with assault and attempted murder of Miss Vernoca White, 22, 2200 block Saratoga St., Aug. 2.

Judge John R. Hargrove placed him on probation for one year. He has been with the department 11 years, two of which he had served as a captain.

Bond said McDonald's case was a non job-related incident and had no bearing on his promotion.

"It is a bad law," he said. "The lack of uniformity throughout the country makes it difficult for both employer and employee to know how much is to be paid and how much is to be received," he added.

Police seek 'well dressed' robber

Police are looking for a man in his 20's about 5 ft 8 ins. tall and weighing around 140 pounds, who attempted to rape a woman after terrorizing her and her son.

Also described as "highly educated and well-dressed," the gunman stole two rifles, an electric calculator and a revolver, before fleeing.

Police said he unsuccessfully tried to rape Mrs. Linda F. Reed during the ordeal in her real estate office in the 1800 block Eutaw Place.

Police quote Mrs. Reed as saying the man entered her office Monday morning with a woman who had formerly asked about renting an apartment.

After the couple asked Mrs. Reed questions about the property, they left her office but the man returned "with his hand in his pocket."

Police reveal the man said, "I have a gun and this is a holdup." A struggle ensured between Mrs. Reed and the bandit when he grabbed Mrs. Reed's son, Joseph.

When the man gained the upper hand he locked Joseph into a closet and repeatedly tried to rape the woman who managed to beat him off. Police state the robber then tied Mrs. Reed with a cat's leash and searched several dresser drawers before leaving.

Mrs. Reed untied herself after the man left and called the police. At AFRO presstime, police report they were still looking for the "well dressed robber and a woman."

councilman represented about 35 per cent of the voters in the city.

According to Stein, since jurors' names are taken from the voters list, he said it would be difficult to get an unbiased panel.

However, William H. Murphy Jr., the lawyer for Hopkins, told the court he favored a trial in Baltimore because the defense will stress "the unique background of black people and black culture."

Psychiatric reports had earlier indicated that Hopkins was insane at the time of the April 13 shooting. William A. Swisher, the state's attorney, said despite a psychiatric report, the trial would be brought to court.

The sanity issue of Hopkins will be placed before the jury. Hopkins is now confined to Perkins State Hospital awaiting trial.

nancial interests and net worth.

He said the Administration's new code of ethics would be made public Friday.

Carter stated he also will comply with the divestiture requirements and he would announce the specifics of his plans later.

Carter said he would complete a welfare reform program this year but pointed out it might be necessary to delay putting it into effect if it turned out to be costly.

But on the other hand he said a simplified welfare system "might very well result in additional savings and better services for those who genuinely need it."

Carter said that during the final meeting Wednesday the participants discussed programs he hopes to initiate, some of the priorities for the administration and the relationships including the breaking up of the Cabinet into smaller work groups.

Elks cite General Wooden

Elks Cite General Wooden

On Sunday, Nov. 28, the Antler Guard Department, State of Maryland of the Improved Benevolent Protective, Order of Elks of the World, honored Grand Mayor General Edward C. Wooden with an Appreciation Banquet. The banquet was held at the Sheraton John Hopkins Inn, 400 N. Broadway.

General Wooden joined Monumental Elks Lodge No. 3 I.B.P.O.E., of W. in 1922, then located at 414 Hoffman Street.

Military minded, he was appointed from corporal to colonel, state of Maryland Antlered Guard Department. He was later appointed Brigadier General, a first for the State of Maryland. Under the present Grand Exalted Ruler Hobron R. Reynolds, he was appointed Grand Major General another first for the State of Maryland.

While Colonel, he had two units under his jurisdiction, today he has over 100 units. At the time he became General, there were 48 generals, out of the 48 he is the only general living. He is now general over Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, and Virginia, and the senior general of all generals for the Improved, Benevolent, Protective, Order Elks of the World.

For 40 odd years General Wooden has represented and supported with true sincerity and for the best interest of all concerned.

A dedicated Christian, standing tall for the cardinal principles on which the I.B.P.O.E. of W. is built. During his 40 odd years he has led his military units to just about every corner in the United States.
