2-year probation for NBA star Barnes

DETROIT (UPI) — Forward Marvin Barnes of the Detroit Pistons was sentenced Tuesday by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Joseph B. Sullivan to two years probation for carrying a concealed weapon.

Barnes was arrested Oct. 9 at Detroit Metropolitan airport when an unloaded handgun was found on his carry-on luggage at a security checkpoint. He pleaded guilty to the charge Dec. 15.

"The judge was a very understanding man," said Barnes. "And I had a good lawyer."

Barnes left for Atlanta immediately after sentencing for Tuesday night's NBA game against the Atlanta Hawks.

UMBC will decide on seniors

The Office of Admissions and Registrations at the University of Maryland Baltimore County will hold a Personal Decision Program for high school seniors during the week of Feb. 7.

On-the-spot admissions decisions will be made in the admissions office on the second floor of the Administration Building from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Feb. 7 through Feb. 10 and from noon to 5 p.m. Feb. 14.

Admissions counselors will be on hand to talk with applicants and their parents. Seniors who bring with them a completed application, a $15 application fee or waiver, a transcript of their grades in a sealed envelope and a copy of their SAT scores will be given an immediate decision on admission to the university. Appointments are not necessary.

For more information, contact Rosalie Sollman, coordinator of the program, at 455-2097, or Nancy Ostster, director of admissions, at 455-2097.

Gail's party was 'all right'

By Georgianna Moody

They threw a great big party at the Bird Cage Nest The other night. Were you there? "Everybody" was there for Gail "Patty" Jordon's birthday (Feb. 3) instead of the 2nd.

Gail was born on Groundhog's day — who knows when the hog is going to see his shadow? Friends felt that if the party was given the next day they could be sure of one thing, the hog's ribs would taste great in barbecue sauce, and they did taste good and there were lots of them to be eaten along with young fried chicken.

The Bird Cage featured Baby James Brown for dizzy dancing — he was at his best for the party.

Some faces seen at the party were: Tony and Dollie Wright, Jean Jordan, Ode sa Wilson, James and Donald Moody, Ernest Moody, Roy Ward and Carrie McCoy, James and Elsie Robinson, Mildred Washington and Dru Hoyle, Rita and Elroy Cooper.

SCHOLAR-ATHLETE HOPEFULS — Vying for recognition as the most prolific schoolboy in the Greater Baltimore area are these five young candidates who have been invited to the annual Scholar-Athlete Dinner, to be held Feb. 16, at Hunt Valley. Clockwise from upper left are: Joseph Thornton of Forest Park High, Greg Mobley of Douglass, Donald Peters of Mt. St. Joe, Wayne Davis of Dunbar, and Steve Ritgert of Poly.

AFRO lists 79 youngsters eyeing Scholar-Athlete nod

Seventy-nine young athletes have been summoned to Martin's West Feb. 16, to learn which of their number has been chosen scholar-athlete of the year.

The youngsters representing the various high schools of the Greater Baltimore area, are vying for the distinction of being named the one who best typifies the ideal student in the academic classroom and athletic arena.

This will be the 14th annual event sponsored by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Candidates for the top honor, as submitted by their respective schools are (alphabetically) as follows:

John Arnold, Eastern Vocational Tech.; George Bange, Hereford Senior High; Joseph Bianco, Woodlawn; Robert Bowman, Andover; David Brinkley Linganore;

Pop Lloyd named to Hall of Fame

John Henry Lloyd, who often said he wanted none of the comparisons wished upon him by daily write s, Thursday was elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"Pop" Lloyd as he was called, will join Ernie Banks, Amos Rusie and Joe Sewell at induction ceremonies at Cooperstown, N.Y., next August. He was voted in by the special committee on early black baseball, which evaluates men who played prior to the desegregation of the major leagues.

When white writers of his time referred to Lloyd as "the black Hans Wagner", he invariably replied: "I don't need that."

Wagner, on the other hand, was quoted as saying: "I'm honored to have John Lloyd called 'the Black Wagner.' It is a privilege to have been compared to him."

When he died in 1955, Pop was 81 years old. He had played professional and semi-pro baseball for 37 years. His career in the old black leagues with such teams as the New York Black Yankees, Lincoln Giants and Chicago American Giants spanned from 1905 through 1931.

A shortstop in his prime, Lloyd, according to the sketchy figures available, compiled a lifetime average of over .400. He was still playing in the semi-pro leagues as late as 1942 when he was 58.

Besides Lloyd the committee, which includes such former black stars as Monte Irvin, Roy Campanella and Judy Johnson, also considered the late Martin Dihigo, a standout pitcher - infielder - outfielder for the Cuban, Mexican and black leagues.

Dihigo, who died in 1971 at the age of 65, was one of the most versatile men in baseball history. In 1933, for example, Dihigo, a member of the Cuba team, led the Mexican League in pitching with an 13-2 record and 0.99 earned run average — and also won the batting title with a .397 average.

Other former black stars under consideration by the special committee for future enshrinement are pitchers Joe "Cyclone" Williams and Ray Brown, outfielder "Turkey" Stearns and third baseman Ray Dandridge.

The original committee which was formed in 1971, had as members veteran baseball writers Wendell Smith of Pittsburgh and Sam Lacy of the AFRO, the first blacks admitted to the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Smith died in 1972, and Lacy resigned in 1973 in protest of what he considered "crony-ism" in the election of Irvin.

He explained his action in a statement that he "could not live in good conscience" with a vote, taken in his absence, which implied that Irvin "was the only black player in early black baseball."

Lacy and Smith had voted previously in the induction of Satchel Paige, Josh Gibson and Buck Leonard, although the AFRO man was a minority vote against the last named on the same grounds mentioned in connection with the Irvin choice.

It was felt that all the men elected since should have preceded Leonard election of Irvin.

These included Cool Papa Bell, Oscar Charleston, Judy Johnson and now Lloyd.

Baltimorean Springfield's ace

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., — David Pugh, a 6-5 forward from Springfield College, continues to draw the praises of coaches, sportswriters and broadcasters.

The sophomore from Northwestern High School in Baltimore, Md., has played consistent basketball for the past six weeks and has been named to the FCAC Division II Team-of-the-Week four times, once as the team's Player-of-the-Week.

Pugh leads the team in scoring with an 18.5 average and rebounding at 11.3. He is also tops among the starters in field goal percentage at 51.3 and owns an even 70 percent mark from the free throw line.

"We knew about David's offensive proficiency all a defensive proficiency al. the most is that his defense has been exceptional."

Raveling given new 4-year pact

Native Washingtonian and ex-Villanova star George Raveling has signed a 4 year contract to continue as head basketball coach at Washington State University.

Officials did not disclose Raveling's salary, but said his present salary is $25,000 and there would be regular increases.

The announcement was made prior to WSU's departure for Los Angeles where they played USC and UCLA within three days.
