Atty. Gen. Burch says country club practices discrimination

Maryland Attorney General Francis Burch said Wednesday his investigation concluded that the "ethnic" a Country Club discriminates against Jewish and black persons.

Burch said the Montgomery County Club has violated a provision of the state open spaces act which gives preferential tax treatment to clubs which offer golf courses and other recreational facilities.

The law says the clubs must not practice "any form of discrimination in granting membership or guest privileges based on the race, color, creed, sex, or national origin of any person or persons," Burch said.

A club spokesman declined comment until he had a chance to read Burch's opinion.

Burch said his conclusion, contained in an 11-page opinion by Chief Assistant Attorney General Fred Oken, was based on hearings about the club's policies. The hearings were held in October and November last year and again last month.

The club, founded in 1929 and located eight miles from the Nation's Capital, has no black or Jewish members.

"The absence of any black members is a circumstance explained by the club as due to the act that there have been no black applicants," the opinion said.

"Notwithstanding that the testimony of no discrimination against black persons is unrebutted in the record. It is fatuous to assume that a club located in the District of Columbia area, that has never had a black member in 48 years, does not discriminate against black people when it has always insisted upon internal sponsorship of applicants and the admission of new members by secret voting only.

"With respect to applications for membership by persons of the Jewish faith the evidence of discrimination is more patent," he continued.

"The club's own records show all rejected applicants for five years were Jewish except for two applicants rejected because in one instance the class membership sought was non-existent and, in the other, the applicant was ineligible for the class of membership applied for.

"In reality, these applicants were disqualified or ineligible rather than disapproved," the opinion said. "Between 1972 and 1976, the membership applications of seven Jewish applicants failed to run the gauntlet of the board of directors, secret ballot.

"In the same period there were no other rejected applications," the opinion said. "The fact that every rejected applicant for a period of five years was a member of the Jewish faith cannot be explained by coincidence or by any credible reason unrelated to their being Jewish." (UPI)

Mandel names Mrs. Clark HRC commissioner 6 years

MRS. FLOZELLA CLARK is new Commissioner

Mrs. Flozella R. Clark, veteran civic and community leader, former Director of Protective Services at the Family and Children's Society, has been appointed by Governor Marvin Mandel to a six year term on the State Human Relations Commission.

"Mrs. Clark, long active in social work circles and member of the Baltimore Branch NAACP Board of Directors since 1963, will bring the kind of courageous and dynamic leadership to the Commission which will be responsive to the on-going needs of the citizens of this State", Senator Clarence Mitchell commented this week.

Mrs. Clark's nomination by the governor was unanimously approved by the full Senate last week.

She has served on the Mayor's Task Force on Equal Rights, 1967-68, was chairman of the Model Cities, Education Committee, 1968, Incorporator of The Associated Negro Appeall and founder of the Northwest Child Study Club.

She has received numerous awards from civic and educational organizations, including "Woman of the Year Award" by the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers and Greyhound Bus Lines.

A graduate of the Tennessee A / I State University, The Atlanta University and The University of Pennsylvania Schools of Social Work. Mrs. Clark is the wife of Harold Clark, Baltimore public schools' educator and mother of three daughters and has one granddaughter.

Cong. Mitchell exposes parents' school gripes

After hearing complaints from a group of concerned parents, Cong. Parren J. Mitchell, Democrat-Md., sent the following letter to Mark K. Josephs, president, Board of School Commissioners of the Baltimore city schools and to Mayor William Donald Schaefer.

In his letter, Mitchell states:

"A group of Baltimore citizens who have their children enrolled in the Baltimore City Public Schools met with me to express their concerns.

"The following is a digest of their complaints, concerns and admonitions:

I. The continuing deterioration in fiscal support for education in Baltimore city has proceeded with such momentum that it is now clear that our children are the victims.

A. Under-financing of the schools has resulted in a major deficit in the past two budget years.

B. Staff personnel, already too few to provide an acceptable level of Education, have been reduced even further.

C. Textbook purchases have been postponed or cancelled.

D. Psychologist, Social Workers and Counselors have been reduced in such numbers as to make it impossible for children to receive even minimal support services from them.

E. Class sizes have increased because vacant positions are not filled even though teachers are available. Obviously, the instructional process has been negatively impacted.

F. Money earmarked for Special Education and Title I programs are being diverted for other purposes.

* * *

II. The school system was reorganized into the regional system in order to facilitate improved management of the schools, to increase the involvement of parents, and most importantly, the money expended for education was to be equalized between schools within the school system.

A. The regions are being deliberately dismantled to prevent parental involvement and, in addition, to make possible a return to the old system of discriminatory school expenditures — minimal support to the poor and maximum support for the middle classes.

B. There exists a blatant attempt to make the public believe that the regional organization is ineffective. If there are problems with regional organization it is because of systematic understaffing.

C. The Regional Advisory Council's are continuously undermined and weakened.

D. Recent decisions support the fact that little or no consideration has been given to the impact upon children as the system is returned to a centralized organization.

E. The poll being conducted by members of the City Council concerning regionalization and centralization is a further step in the process of dismantling Regional Advisory Council's is proceeding.

* * *

III. The school board has launched a program designed to camouflage both their real objectives and the chaotic situation it creates where the educational process is concerned. This cosmetic approach underscores their lack of concern for our children.

A. The time spent on Radio and Television to assure the public that "Education is Everybody's Business" does not reflect the actual and continuing lack out of parents and community.

B. The establishment of the "School for the Disruptive" without the necessary resources after assuring the public that such would not be the case in an example of the Board's reaction of chaotic situations.

C. The call for a return to the "Basics" gave the appearance of reflective a sincere effort until the revelation of wholesale staff cuts and increased class sires came to public attention.

D. The fear that prevails among staff and faculty has been deliberate on the part of the school board which created this atmosphere in order to deter criticism from within the employee group.

IV. Programs important to various segments of the population have been downgraded.

A. Adult Education suffered a severe cut back.

B. The Early Childhood Program has been curtailed.

C. Guidance Counseling, Social Work and Psychological services have been significantly decreased if not eliminated.

D. The Summer School has been virtually eliminated.

V. The harm resultine to both children and community is irreticable.

A. Inequitable allocation of educational resources, with those most in need, getting the least.

B. Parent and community separated from decision making in the education of their children.

C. More failure of our children educationally and in life.

D. Divisiveness and struggle within the community over the very few educational resources available.

E. Poor morale among the staff and lack of creative and innovative approaches in educating students."

"These are serious allegations which, in my opinion, must be responded to in depth. I think it would be prudent to release to the press your response to these allegations.

"May I hear from you at your earliest possible convenience?"

Sincerely, Cong. Parren J. Mitchell
