R.S.V.P. With Marie

Over the past three days this writer has been in flight—to Tallahassee, Fla.—we were at the second Summer Journalism Workshop at Florida A and M University. More on it next week.

And before we could sit our tired body down, the phone was ringing about bad news and good in town:

We were distressed to learn that our good friend, Dr. Albert Laforest remains seriously ill in Union Memorial Hospital. He suffered a heart attack when he entered ten days ago, and just this last weekend another attack. His wife, Jimmy, reports he is much better, but please keep on praying.

Here from Trinidad to join Mrs. Laforest at the bedside is Dr. Laforest's brother, George Eric Laforest of Port-au-Spain.

Ah, good news that hardworking Mildred Nelson, the Social Security exec, has been honored for her volunteer work with the Division of Continuing Education at Morgan State University. She was elected an associate trustee at the weekend convention of the Eastern Regional session of the U.S. Association of Evening Schools, a meeting at Host Town in Lancaster, Pa.

Colleges from all over this section of the country with continuing education sent delegates. Also there from Morgan, Dr. and Mrs. Roger K. Williams (Dr. Beryl—she's dean of Continuing Education); and Henry Higgs. Doris Verrett and George Allen, all recent graduates of Morgan's Continuing Ed Program.

And more good news from up Pennsylvania way—at the national conclave of Moles in Philadelphia, Baltimore's Dr. Vergial Webb was reelected national president. Our town has two national officers. Emma Dudley, chaplain, was not up for reelection.

It was a genial group that gathered on Sunday on the spacious lawn of the Otis Ringgold family in Aberdeen. Daughter-in-law, Florence Ringgold was co-hosting the Firesiders there with Ada Weaver and Dot Brown.

Club president, Helen Cothorn, was absent, as she had just been released from the hospital the day before. Other members about were: Frances Ashby, Milburn Brown, Irma Dancy, Iris Lloyd, Bea Nixon, Ida Peters, Eula Watkins and Lillian Bell.

Out-of-town guests there were: Mrs. Ringgold's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. Thomas J. Gardner and Dr. Mary Ellen Gardner, both on the faculty of the City University of New York—she's in sociology and he's in education. Before the summer is over the young couple will be traveling to Europe and then on to Zambia, where he will join the U. of Zambia faculty for a year under a Fulbright fellowship.)

New couple seen in the group: Pamela and Maurice Norwood, formerly of Passaic, N.J., now residing in Randallstown.

Baltimore chapter of Jack and Jill held its closing meeting on Monday evening at Heritage Church and elected the following new officers: Brenda Johnson, president; Rita Selby, vice president; Frances Pennington, Mary Guillory and Rosa Moss, secretaries; and Laura Byrd, treasurer.

When members of King's Landing Women Service Club met on Wednesday they heard good news—their recent benefit cocktail sip and fashion show at Club Venus netted them $2,674.

They've already obligated $1,347.60 for the new tables and chairs which they purchased in time for last month's dedication of the $250,000 Louis E. Harmon Memorial Dining Room at the Baltimore YMCA's Camp King's Landing in Huntingtown, Md. The remainder will be used to underwrite the Y's annual Martin Luther King Memorial Breakfast and for other charities. The benefit attracted some 500 supporters and featured style show by members of the club and guest artists.

There were dozens of door prizes and a $150 half and half pot, won by lucky ticket holder, Daisy Stevenson of Chauncey Avenue.

Our "sweetie pie" Artartus emceed the affair. The Johnny Polite combo supplied music for the prize drawings and dancing.

Mamie Jones chaired the event; Gwen Clark is club president. Other committee members: Mary Smith, Betty Lindsay, Mary Upshur, Doris Street, Rosie Salley, Adelle Queen and Gertrude McKella and Myrtle Harrod.

Guest models were: Cee Cee Stokes, Ronell Dove, Donald Clapp, Dennis Rogers, Valeria Rice, Elnora Wright and Dorothy Francis. A number of the buffits were owned by club members. Hendin's Hollywood Fashions and Franklin Simon in Mondawmin supplied the other outfits.

Those who were there say that the men's club, the Khaymites annual dinner dance a Saturday ago at Cross Keys was beautifully arranged and a delight to attend.

And folk are still talking about the variety of West Indian dishes (oh, those steamed crabs with exotic taste!) which newlywed Justen Marsen prepared (he's described as a real gourmet cook), when his bride, Jewel, entertained the closing meeting of the Hobnobbers last Saturday.

Members and mates about: Ruth and Leonard Wilmore, Freddie and Levi Lipscomb, Clarice and Reggie Watts, Lenora and Randy Bigby, Gwen and Glenn Tarter, Mamie and Jerome Todd, Ivy and Sherlock Grinage, Jannie and Clarence Briscoe, Olivia and Walter Dixon, Ruth Welling and Norma and Eddie Jorgensen of D.C.

Guest included: Dr. and Mrs. I. Bradshaw Higgins and from New York, their son-in-law, Thomas Williams and teen granddaughters Brooke and Eden Williams (who were thrilled that they had a dancing part in a Broadway play earlier this month); and Mr. Williams' mother, Mrs. Nora Williams; and Bob Wallers, Richmond, Johnny Hicks, Bernice Hunley and Dr. Roland Williams, Jr.

More people in the news: A note advises that the YWCA's Madison Avenue Center Committee gifted outgoing director, Mary Guillery when it met on Monday. The honors, which came at the end of a long business meeting, caught her by surprise. She has been at the Center three years, is now in a new post at Metropolitan Y downtown as the resource development director.

New Madison Center director already at work is Marcia Bedine Cummings.

The Center's membership drive was continuing through this week and the committee discussed plans for future development of Y programs at a new site.

The committee members asked this column to let the public know that the YWCA is NOT out of business in northwest Baltimore—there are a number of thriving activities in the Madison Avenue building and plans for outreach programs are continuing. So if you haven't renewed your membership, please do. Cost is just $8 for adults and $3 for young

Three graduates in the family: Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Russell (Alice) have had a busy graduation season. Daughter, Robyn 18, finished Western High and won a merit four-year scholarship to Howard University where both of her parents graduated.

Sons, Stephen, 14, finished Gilman Middle School, and Jeffrey, 11, completed primary school at Gilman. Fourth youngster is Bruce, Jr. 15, a junior at Boys' Latin.

And, with all these activities in her household, Mrs. Russell found the energy to host the closing meeting of the We Wives on Tuesday. There, members elected new officers: Bettye Moss, president; Ivy Grinage, vice president, and reelected Ada Weaver, treasurer; Margaret Hythe and Lillian Bell, secretaries.

Another club gathering was the one on Sunday hosted by Natalie and James E. Phelps on the lawn of their Glen Burnie home. It was the closing meeting of the Bonne Coeurs, a longtime Baltimore group.

Members present with their husbands were Warren and Esther Nixon, Leone and Joseph Felton. Other members present were Susie Moore, Viola Randolph, Clara Thomas and Hazel Spruill.

Guests present included Robin Mitchner, Arnold and Ruth Bailey, John and Helen Cooper, Maxine and Lloyd Michner, Susie and Ed Carter, Minerva Richardson, Carol Taylor, Bernice Brown and James Selby, Roberta and Iglehart Keets.

And Pearl and James Bonner, Benjamin and Gladys Keene, Roland and Venus Armstrong, Gwen and John deCecelio.

Over from Washington: Laura and William Roberts, Acruilla and Robert Clomax, Esther Sheilds, Blondell Hall, Edith Harris and Bessie and John Suber.

Dallas, Texas visitors in our town this weekend were James and Ella Mae Bailey. They were houseguests of her sister and brother in-law Dodanna and Willibee Bejana, both Morgan faculty members.

And, the foursome were in the large and appreciative crowd which gave three standing ovations to the performers in the opera, "Voyage of Edgar Allen Poe" on Friday evening.

This was the Minneapolis Symphony original which also featured the Baltimore Symphony and Morgan's world-famed choir directed by Dr. Nathan Carter. 'Twas a thunderous applause for him at the conclusion of the performance at the Theatre of Performing Arts, formerly Morris Mechanic. Afterwards, faculty wives hosted a number of guests for champagne in a reception room off the foyer.

Mrs. Naomi Livers was honored recently on her 75th birthday.

Carl Bowen, brother of Philadelphia and granddaughter, Marlene Roberston of D.C. were among guests present.

The gathering consisted of family members representing four generations.

Co-workers with whom she had worked 45 years ago shared in the joyous occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Miles celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 12 at the Governor's Club. The celebration occurred as a complete surprise to the couple, having been planned by their children, Charles Miles, Doris Sargeant, Rose Robinson, Martha O'Neal and husband Frederick. In the presence of family and many close friends a very inspirational prayer was delivered by Dr. Harold A. Carter, New Shiloh Baptist Church of which Mr. and Mrs. Miles are members.

Columbia Capers

By Pinnie L. Ross

Columbia Chapter of Epicureans observed their first installation of new members last Sunday. The installation was held at the home of Rose Hall on Ten Mills Road.

The newly installed members are Gloria Massie, a psychology professor at Bowie State College; Zola Boone, director of Center for Curriculum Improvement, Morgan State University, and Ruth Feldon, retired D.C.-school teacher.

Each new member was given a gift — the Columbia people's tree, after which a champagne toast was made, and the "getting" to know you was definitely in order. It included the husbands: From the flowing of champagne to the pretty decorated table of hot and cold pick ups. The members and their husbands continue to linger for drinks and chit chats.

Newly elected members for the insuring year for the Columbia Chapter of Epicureans are: Gloria Hogan, president; Fannie Morgan, vice-president; Gail Clark, recording secretary; Dorothy Carr, treasurer; Madelin Wood, parliamentarian; and Rose Hall, journalist.

On Sunday, June 5, at The Other Barn, a Citizenship Award Ceremony was held as a fitting entrance into the 10th year of Columbia to honor several youths who are residents of Oakland Mills Village.

Stephen Squirrell and Suzette Thornton were each given a $25 savings bond as appreciation gifts by Steve Alpern, chairman, on behalf of the Oakland Mills Village Board. Captain Richard Shaw, deputy fire administrator-chief, Bureau of Operations of the Howard County Fire Department, presented both youths with plaques of appreciation for their help in averting serious fires which kept them from spreading because of quick thinking and action on their part.

Chairperson Virginia Thomas, representing the Howard County Council, gave each youth a letter of recognition signed by all members of the Council. Also present was Harry Dunbar, newly-elected council representative from Oakland Mills.

Five other youths given certificates of appreciation and gifts by resident manager, Amelia Cressman, on behalf of the Cooperstone Management Office, for showing good citizenship and genuine concern for their home and their community.

They were David Bennett, Michael Bennett, Deneine Bradley, Chuckie Hood, and Jeffrey Smith.

Bruce Casteel, a classical guitarist, assisted by Terri Myers of the Copperstone Management Office, provided music for the occasion. The evening ended with a dessert social graciously provided by several parents. All the youths are residents of Copperstone Circle Apartments.

A highlight of the Wilde Lake Village neighborhood celebrations of Columbia's tenth birthday on June 26 will be a parade to kick off the day's festivities.

Nominations are being accepted for a king and queen to lead the parade and reign over the day's royal neighborhood festivities. The ballot box is located in the lobby of Slayton House. Persons can nominate themselves or others. The only requirement is that nominees must be residents of Wilde Lake. Deadline for nominations is June 24.

Special parade guests will include Jim and Patty Rouse, Wild Lake's "first family," Ellen Kennedy, village poet, and Miss U.S. Teen Maryland.

For parade information and registration call 730-4729, 730-5268, or 596-9156.

The parade planners are Helen Kitrell, Dottie Lawrence and Robbie White. Ethel Hill is coordinator for the Wilde Lake Village Neighborhood Celebrations.

Senior citizens honor at breakfast

The Cahill Recreation Center, made up of four community groups recently hosted their second annual free breakfast honoring six of their senior citizens.

These five ladies and one gentleman are known for their outstanding community and civic work. The honorees were Mrs. Mary Munford, Mrs. Maggie Harris, Mrs. Theodora Boone, Mrs. Creola Jones, Mrs. Blanche Robinson and Mr. Cornelius Taylor.

Dorothy Burgess, president, Neitha Pinson, chairperson and Minnie Harris, program directress set up a fantastic program and breakfast offering any breakfast food that you desired.

The program staged various churches of different denominations with their singing groups, many community agencies and city officials.

Del. Troy Brailey gave words for the occasion and stressed how important our senior citizens are to the community.

NACCP hosts celebrity banquet

The Maryland State Conference of the Branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will host its second annual Celebrity Banquet, Saturday, June 18 at the Ramada Inn, 6 p.m.

Among those to be honored that evening are Dr. Montague Cobb, past national president NAACP; State Senator Clarence Mitchell III; Mal Goode, first black network news commentator; Mrs. Marion Thomas, national founder, Jack and Jill, Inc.; and the family of the late Rev. I. A. Sherman, who is being honored posthumously for his many years of service to the NAACP.

Awards will also be given to Ms. Enolia McMilan, president of the Baltimore branch NAACP; Edith Throckmorton, past president, Montgomery County, NAACP and Dr. Lehman W. Spry, first black Harford County councilman.

affirmative action, industry, relations, federal relations, development, alumni affairs, community affairs, information services, a two and one half million dollar Advanced Institutional Development grant, and the popular WEAA-FM radio station. Dr. Wallace considers the radio station a major accomplishment. After 18 years of planning it went on the air on January 10.

In August of last year Dr. Wallace joined Morgan with impecable credentials. She comes with a bachelors degree from Bradley University, a masters from Columbia University, a Ph.D in paychology from Northwestern University.

In addition, she is author of 10 articles, has presented over 35 papers nationally, received numerous honors and awards including "Outstanding Educator Award" in 1971 and has been appointed to a number of national and local committees. She is the mother of three sons.

but rather seems to multiply.

The conclusion has been reached; that perhaps we need to learn another way. And who can we learn from. Certainly, not from those who have never hungered for freedom, whose families have never been imperiled; whose ethnic heritage has never been despised.

And so we will go to Guyana. Not merely to make a difference there; but to be the source of a difference for our people when we come home.

You ask, what can possibly be accomplished in eight days? God created the world in seven! We are no longer dependent on the resources of this nation alone. We are a global people. Technology, electronic media systems and destiny say so. And we must seek global solutions to what are in essence global problems.

Political, cultural, economic and spiritual development are the order of the day for those whose legacy of oppression forces them to choose between healthful interdependence and collective extinction.

While Harriet and Cuffy never met; history has ordained that their hands shall be joined through their children.

Woodlawn Highlights

... by Marjorie Green

Host Farm in Lancaster, Pa. was like an old home gathering for the Les Tams Club members and their friends this past weekend. We arrived Friday morning with our club members of almost 30 years and to our surprise found many of our Baltimore friends had already checked into the beautiful Pennsylvania resort.

The weather was threatening outside but with all the activity going on inside, we set for a perfect weekend full of fun and games.

The most surprising coincidence of all was seeing Cynthia Harvey, Elsie Colona, Lorraine Lucas and Gertrude Flowers. This group of friends were guests at the farm when we stopped there with another group.

Saturday evening brought another surprise. Mildred Nelson and her family stopped in the lobby to say hello. She checked into Host Corral on Friday. They too were guests at the resort during the same weekend a year or so ago.

Other Social Security employees seen relaxing at the farm and corral were recently retired Henrietta Jones and her husband who were with their longtime friends, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green. We also talked with Eunice Rogers who arrived on Saturday. Our special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Ridgely (Doris).

Les Tam Club members acting as hostesses for the trip were: Olivia Weems, Irene Terry, Barbara Mitchell, Gladys Scott, Hortense Henry, Elnora White, and Forriest Ayers.

Pearl Zanders Foster is back at her desk in the Bureau of Data Processing Section after spending a fine week detail assignment in the old executive building in Washington analyzing correspondence for the White House Staff. Five other SSA employees were asked to help organize and code the backlog of White House mail. Pearl was fortunate enough to report back to Woodlawn in time to enter the new 30-hour Tour Guide training class that started early this week.

Howard W. Roberts and Rebecca Lea Flehinger, 1977 winners of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Scholarship Award sponsored by AFGE Local 1923 were Woodlawn lunchtime visitors this past Monday.

Eighteen - year - old Rebecca is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berthold Flehinger (Sarah). A graduate of Pikesville Senior High School, she plans to enter Lafayette College in Pennsylvania next semester. Her father is a Social Insurance Claims Examiner (Health), and has been a member of the government union since 1966.

Howard graduated from Mergenthaler Vocational Technical High School. Towson State College is where he plans to begin studies that will help him reach his goal to become an electrical engineer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Roberts (Bessie). His mother works as a clerk in the downtown 707 Calvert St. building.

City Council president, Walter F. Orlinsky, Dr. John Brown, head of the chemistry dept. at Morgan and Mrs. Dorothy Young, guidance counselor at Edmondson High School served as judges on the scholarship panel.

turn for an eternity. I want to be accepted as I am, not as I am supposed to be. My eyes are lifting now and reality is seeping it's way in. The cold reality is like a strong wind, trying to carry me away with it. I must reach higher, for I must find my star. I see it sparkling just waiting for my trembling hand. Tomorrow awaits me with distrust in its eyes and a devious grin. The tomorrow's reality brings with it people who are afraid to admit the fact that they love their brother or sister. This game cruel and tiring tomorrow finds it odd because I choose to help an old woman down the street. They laugh when I say aloud, "I love my God". My sweet and precious world of dreams please don't make it wrong to cling to you. While I'm young they say it's fisher but as I get older people object. Tell me why should it be wrong if it's my outlet to make me a better individual? And isn't that what we all are striving for? Let my dream give me the day where I don't have to be ashamed of anything should I not see that tomorrow.

Judges were Mrs. Anne O. Emery, principal of Walbrook Senior High School; Mrs. Elizabeth Oliver, City Editor, AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers; Jackie Wallace, football star, Baltimore Colts; Margo Williams, co-host, WMAR-TV, Dialing for Dollars;

Seaton White, writer for the Baltimore News American Newspaper; Rae C. Ross, 1976 graduate of Adelphi University, New York specializing in modern and jazz dance. She is presently studying under the world famous Alvin Alley Dance Theatre, New York City;

Mary Clayburn, Community Service Director, WWIN Radio; Grover McCrea, member of the Baltimore City School Board; Walburton Pulley, Seventh Avenue designer, New York City.

Other contestants were Lisa Bethel sponsored by AMT Insurance Company; Tilwana Boone, sponsored by Equality Enterprise; Bridgett Braswell, sponsored by Carla Walker; Janine Coleman, sponsored by Charles Grand 1199E Hospital Union; Crystal Cummings, sponsored by Marcia Cumming;

Shelly Demby, sponsored by family and friends; Lolita Duke, sponsored by LaPrincess Beauty Rama; Rochelle Galloway, sponsored by Pak-A-Bag Travel Agency; Mildred Horn, sponsored by Bruce Osterdom; Lillie Ann Hutchinson, sponsored by mother and friends;

Suzette Jones, sponsored by family; Theresa Locust, sponsored by Exotic Empresses; Devita Morris, sponsored by Charles Rice Funeral Service; Joan Thompson, sponsored by Mayor William D. Schaefer;

Rana Williams' sponsored by mother and friends and Yolanda Woods, sponsored by Charles Grant, 1199E Hospital Union.

Associate director and choreographer, Travis Winkey; balloting by Whitney and Jennings C. P. A.; publicity director, Mrs. Mentora Thompson, vice principal, Northern High School; assistant director and ballot coordinator, Marti Franklin;

Dean of judges, Mary C. Clayburn; special assistant, Rosa Clanton and hostesses, Tina Blackwell, chairperson; Fredericka Matthews, Darlene Bright, Monica Boone and Karen Cornick.

On spring skin cleaning

Take advantage of the April showers and give yourself a new spring complexion.

Gather that gentle, soft water in big jars and use it for your special natural face wash. It's minus those chemicals that are found in your tap water!

Maybe you've noticed that April showers seem to improve your complexion. That's because your skin may have been able to attract some of the moisture in the air. But a surer way is to apply it directly to your skin.

Have a nice day
