For the third consecutive year, black folk and white folk will come together to lift high the legacy of one who, in his own right was a prophet. Again, the ballroom of the Baltimore Hilton Hotel will be filled to its capacity with believers of the "Dream," who will not only mark his birthday on Monday, Jan. 16, but also accept the charge of the sponsoring organizations, the YMCA of the Greater baltimore Area and its auxiliary groups, King's Landing Women's Club and the Jeffery Fund — "to eliminate racism and to work for intergroup and interracial understanding."

The Martin Luther King Memorial Breakfast is, says the Y, an "ecumenical celebration of a Christian leader whose entire life was devoted to a call to be in unity in the spirit of peace and brotherhood."

This year the dynamic Arva Jackson of Philadelphia, who holds the title of manager of Equal Opportunity of Region III, Health, Education and Welfare, will deliver the keynote address.

"Don't Go Fishin'"

When members of the Maryland Legislative Black Caucus left their respective homes for Annapolis this week it was not to go fishing. They left with power — prayer power! — for you see, there were over a hundred Caucus supporters who came out on last Saturday morning for the Second Annual Prayer Breakfast to rally behind their leaders.

The site was Bethel and the preacher was its pastor, the Rev. John R. Bryant. "Don't Go Fishing In Annapolis" was his charge, the text taken from the 21st chapter of John.

One who many feel has the makings of a preacher, Del. Larry Young (perhaps his ministry is that of a public official), coordinated the program. Also, three of the city's leading pastors added their spiritual flame to the fire: Dr. Harold A. Carter, New Shiloh Baptist; the Rev. Ronald E. Braxton, Allen A.M.E.; the Rev. Walter Thomas, New Psalmist Baptist (he's the one who, along with his congregation, just moved into a giant downtown cathedral).

There's strength in unity, we believe. So sat in our own tent door and watched and listened. We watched as Caucus president, Del. Robert Douglass was cited for his leadership — all of the representatives were recognized. Parren J. Mitchell, whose "ministry" is in the U.S. House of Representatives, brought greetings.

(Note: Get - well wishes to State Senator Verda F. Welcome, 3422 Holmes Ave., 21217.)

Columbia Capers

By Fannie L. Ross

Mrs. Helen Cornick recently invited her Columbia guests to meet her former Chicago friends, who now reside in the D.C. and Silver Spring area. It was love and joy. The kind that transcends. s from one heart to another. A warm friendly atmosphere that made one stay on and on.

Mrs. Cornick joyfully greeted her guests in a long black skirt of crepe material that clinched her waistline. The gathered skirt was complemented with a multi - print silk blouse accented with tiny ruffles that plunged around the neckline.

Reasons for the gathering were to eat, drink, and be merry, but most of all, to meet her Chicago friends who were very successful in their business.

Among some of her guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Samual (Sadie) Yettes, she's a professor Sympathy cards to the family of the late John Addison Joyce, a native of Catonsville, who died recently in a West Virginia hospital. Get Well cards to Guy Bailey, Industrial Arts Department Head at Lemmel Junior High School, who has been in Baltimore County General Hospital. Hopefully, he will be home soon.

A tribute to our good neighbor and friend, Sylvia Morris. She is always thinking of others. Despite her busy schedule, she took time during the holidays to remember her relatives and friends who had birthdays.

Sylvia had a birthday dinner at the Holiday Inn Downtown, where she was hostess to the following honorees who had birthdays in December: Delores Counnellor, Marian Street, Sharon Johnson, Ira Williams, William Blue, William Blue II, William Blue III, Michelle Smith, Portia Nicholas, William Foster and Geneva Hillery. Pearl Foster was the Toast Mistress.

The evening was highlighted by musical selections performed by Sharon Johnson.

Among the guests were Rev. Reginald Boston and his daughter, Pat. Mr. Boston (Hazel) was unable to attend due to a death in her family. Each of the honorees received a gift from Sylvia.

We should use Sylvia as a model or an example for all of us. She is a woman who has been blessed and in return she gives of herself to God, her church, her family and her friends and neighbors.

The Layman at St. Gregory The Great Church will have an opportunity to give the Homily at Sunday Mass. John Waters, president of PSASA, paid tribute to Our dearly departed brother, Isaiah White. His theme was "Caring For One Another."

"In caring for your fellow man you receive inner strength. Try to live right and help each other. Try to get along with each other. Try to understand one another. Try to live together peacefully.

"These are the standards that "Ike" White tried to live by in his lifetime. In addition to this, he only wanted the best that education could offer for our black children," Rev. Waters said of Mr. Isaiah White.

A nicer tribute could not have been paid to a nicer guy than Isaiah. All of us will certainly miss him but his presence will always be felt because he always gave of himself when he was alive. His t[illegible] but deeds were for his fellow man.

Woodlawn Highlights

...by Marjorie Green

We were surprised during the holiday week to hear that the Rev. J. Marion Bradley, associate minister at Whitestone Baptist Church had retired from the Social Security Administration last August after twenty-four and a half years in Federal government service.

We called to find out what he was doing with his spare time and found out that his primary interest in life is to "carry God's word." We asked about his thoughts for the new year and he quickly replied, "as we enter the threshhold of a new year let us look heavenward and behold the horizon of God and reach out and grasp a faith. Without faith it is impossible to please Him and as we walk in faith it is evident that God lives within us and if God is within, there is nothing without that can hurt us."

Remembering back a couple years ago when we asked several of the ministers working in SSA to share their thoughts concerning the new year, we decided to repeat the request. The Rev. James O. Hedgins, pastor of Little Macedonia Baptist Church submitted the following message: "Looking over the past, we see many things good and bad, but we have time to thank God for a love and a hope for tomorrow, time to change those things that went wrong and to start another day with light. Peace in the mind and joy for life. We want to see God's beauty in everything we do and go onward to higher heights because God wants us to have peace and happiness as we move on to happy lands where every day will be sweeter than the day before. Peace is the order of the day. May God renew your strength that you may run well in 1978."

The Rev. Arthur H. Jones, pastor of Jones Tabernacle Baptist Church responded by saying, "At the beginning of the year we stand on a pinnacle looking two ways — backwards into the unfinished business of the past, and forward into the uncharted course of the future. We need to understand that the past is over and done and we should not look back. The challenge is to look forward not to an uncertain future, but to a forward walk hand in hand with Jesus Christ! People who walk together share mutual interests and walking by love with God we share His interests just as He shares ours and step by step we move closer to a perfect future in Him."

Women's Auxiliary, UMBC will meet at the Baptist Center on Monday, Jan. 9, 1978 at 7 p.m.

The Bible Breakfast will be held Saturday morning, Jan. 7, 1978 at St. Paul Baptist Church.

The Rev. Henry Turner, pastor at the First Corinthian Baptist Church used "Looking Back" as the subject for his thoughts. "As we come to the end of another year it is only befitting that we pause to look back at the events that have occurred in 1977. The [illegible] back but rather to appreciate from whence we came so we can understand where we are and thus make plans for the New Year as to where we hope to be."

A famous baseball player, Leroy Satchel Paige often stated "Don't look back because what's back there may be gaining on you." While this quotation may be applicable to some situations, I believe that we cannot appreciate God's goodness unless we look back to see from whence He has brought us.

1977 had its share of joys, sorrows, trials, and tribulations, never ending memories and hopefully forgotten tragedies. It is all now a part of history. The new year thus becomes a new page in the old book of life. As we enter 1978 we remember the words of the Apostle Paul: "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:14.

To all our friends and well wishers we say — "Let's make it great in 1978 in all that we endeavor to accomplish."

of English at Howard University, and the author of the book, "The Choice," which deals with the issues of black survival in America. He is also a columnist for the Washington AFRO - AMERICAN.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Adalph Slaughter, D.C. school teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jacques, who have been friends of Mrs. Cornick for 24 years.

Mrs Cornick is known to most Columbians as the "charmer." I call her "The lady that always smiles - Hey! Miss America! pardon me - I mean, Miss Black America. Well, take a few years off and she could easily represent all of the beautiful black women across the country, because she has it, personality plus.

There should be three awards for her charming daughters Karen, a third year student at Howard, and a transfer student from Tufts; Susan, a high school student, and Lisa, who is in the middle school. Guess what! They prepared all of the food for the party, and it was "finger licking good."

Parents say it can't be done with teens. The Cornick girls said "yes"! just ask us and we won't refuse.

Parties continued across the Oakland Mills section. This one was at the lovely home of The Claude Ligons (Doris).

Not that the Ligons needed an excuse to have a party, but since the New Year was on its way out - why not!

The invitation read: We are partying thoughout 9560 Highway Court, so join The Ligons for their "Top to Bottom Party."

When Claude and Doris Ligon say partytime, they go all out to do it up.

The party started on the first level and went to the "Rock Bottom" of the club cellar. There were three bars open with a buffet as well on the first level, name the kind of food, and Mrs. Ligon had it.

Divorce workshop to be held

"Legal Problems in Separation and Divorce" is an informational workshop sponsored by the Center for Displaced Homemakers, 2435 Maryland Ave. Hazel Warnick, an attorney with the Women's Law Center, will lead the workshop Thursday evening, Jan. 26 at 6 p.m.

Ms. Warnick will cover topics such as alimony, child support, property rights, legal rights and settlements, and answer questions participants might have.

The workshop is free and open to the public. Pre - registration is encourgaged. Call the Center for Displaced Homemakers at 243-6000.

The very articulate Mrs. Ligon is along with her house decorations typical examples of the real Doris Ligon; each room has its own personalized touch.

The spacious rooms are surrounded by hanging plants. "We call her the plant expert of Columbia, after admiring the many plants and well decorated house. The bottom level was also a sight to be seen. It had lights from wall to wall. Disco music with the "Real disco" lights blinking on and off.

The D.J.'s were Roger Howell and Sharin Patterson, using their professional disco equipment.

Dance, Dance, Dance, - so they did until!

Mr. Ligon is the professor of Military Science at Morgan State University. Mrs. Ligon is a student there and is also enrolled as a trainee in the Dorent Program in D.C. (Museum of African Art).

Stop. Take a few minutes off from what you are doing and you will discover that black women today are truly about the business of strengthening themselves and others

A true sister is Dr. Frances N. Beckles, an assistant professor at Morgan State University and author of the book, "Twenty Black Women."

It was my pleasure to have had Mrs. Beckles on WEAA - FM's Thursday edition of Queens Gambit last week. The young doctor feels that both young and old women need a positive image to pattern after, and these 20 women are role models.

God Bless those who help themsleves, but God BLess those who reach out a hand and help others also.

Send get well cards to our own Celonia Walden who has been ill with the flu and Essie Williams who underwent surgery at Howard County General Hospital, Saturday.

Sympathy cards to Mrs. Lula Wade who lost her mother in South Carolina. Send cards to 4944 Fort Grope, Tex.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I daily examine myself on three points:
In planning for others, have I failed
To be conscientious? In my dealing with Friends have I failed to be sincere?
In teaching, have I failed to practice what
I have taught.
