Providence Baptist looks toward a new tomorrow

"The Providence Baptist family is looking toward a new tomorrow and is looking forward to moving into their new church home.

It will be located in the Upton area section at Pennsylvania and Lafayette Avenue. Providence Baptist was formerly located at

Rev. Marcus Garvey Wood

Edmondson and Fremont Avenues, but have been holding services at 4200 Liberty Heights Ave., since October 1976.

"Because of the building deteriorating (at Fremont and Edmondson Avenue) we decided to build a new church home," said the Rev. Marcus Garvey Wood who has served as pastor of the church for 26 years.

"We are indeed excited as we work toward the development of our solar heat edifice and hope to move in late 1979 or early 1980," stated Rev. Wood.

Members of Providence Baptist observed the 50th anniversary of their church this month and held a banquet April 22 at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

Providence was organized on April 4, 1928 under the leadership of Dr. David E. Over in company with 243 baptized believers.

He laid the sturdy foundation upon which Providence is built. His daughter, Mrs. Edna Over Campbell is still an active member of the church.

The second pastor of Providence was the Rev. Dr. Eugene W. White. With a special committee in 1928, he began negotiations for refinancing the church resulting in the burning of the first mortgage in 1939 and the second mortgage in June 1943.

After several stones had fallen from the building at Fremont and Edmondson Avenues, the city ordered that a barricade be set up around the church building to protect citizens from the falling stones.

Providence Baptist congregation made an evaluation of their church and were informed by consultant structural engineers that a new roof for the entire building was needed, the top floor the Christian Center was unusable without new fire excapes and the church needed repainting.

The members then started their interim stay with First Baptist Church, 4200 Liberty Heights Ave., in October 1976. The Rev. Maurice L. Holder is pastor of First Baptist.

Each church continued with its program planned for the fall and space limitations necessitated in having a combined or unified Sunday School.

Those who opposed moving from the church building at 850 Edmondson Ave., brought suit against Rev. Wood and trustees of the church. The suit was later withdrawn.

A proposal was then made that Providence petition to exchange its land for lot 71 at Pennsylvania and Lafayette Avenues, which would place the building in the hands of the city to be used as it saw fit.

The city's greatest concern seemed to be that the church building be preserved rather than demolished. A second suit was instituted against the pastor and trustees but it did not materialize.

LOVE FEAST — More than 300 guests attended the 34th anniversary banquet of the Rev. Dr. Samuel B. Redd, pastor of Mount Ararat Baptist Church. Shown with Rev. Redd is his wife, Ida.

Happy 34th Rev. Redd

By Pam Widgeon

Friends, relatives and members of Mount Ararat Baptist Church, at Gwynns Falls Parkway and Longwood Street, spent an evening with their pastor the Rev. Dr. Samuel Beverly Redd on April 24.

The occasion was the 34th anniversary of Rev. Redd as pastor of Mount Ararat Baptist.

The 73 - year - old pastor has been a minister for 47 years and is the oldest minister who is still pastoring a church.

During the four hour affair, guests sat and listened to citizens who praised Rev. Redd for his service to his church, community and his commitment to mankind.

The highlight of the evening came when Mrs. Lucille Johnson showed a film on the life of Rev. Redd. Speaker for the banquet was the Rev. Dr. Harold A. Carter, pastor of New Shiloh Baptist Church.

Myth and reality

The role of a minister's wife

By Minnie Washington

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Minnie Washington is the wife of the Rev. Carl Washington, pastor of St. Timothy Baptist Church.)

A myth is a story invented to veil the truth, it is variable in its content, of unknown origin, and it is used to enforce and support existent cultural tradition. Each of us has in someway, sometime, experienced the effect of societal myths in our lives.

It was shocking to children to learn that the parents in whom they had put their trust, had served them a lie, and supported it with hard earned money.

In much the same way, ministers' wives have been taken in by a myth: A myth defined by a society who desired to deny her the right to partake and share fully, in the ministry of her husband — A myth which denies her, her rightful place in God's world, and in his church.

The elements of the myth were carefully arranged to make it appear that the minister's wife was actually in the role of a martyr, a super - woman, of the humblest qualities, gracing the world with her abilities of self - denial and low estate.

The minister's wife shall have no identity. She shall react as a non - entity. She may enjoy the glorious opportunity of replenishing the earth - the more children she bore, the more saintly the myth allowed her to become.

She must carry heavy burdens and a somber and unsmiling face.

She must dress plainly as possible, lest the membership accuse her of vanity. She must never walk beside or in front of her husband, but always, always behind him. She is his shadow.

She must be a pure, non - emotional creature, for her members desire dignity in their first lady. She must be concerned only with the progress of her husband and his ministerial affairs. She must be constantly at the disposal of her church membership and must never be heard complaining, for that is unholy.

She must keep a spotless house, angelic children, and love doing both. She must not engage in any outside sports activities — that is considered unlady - like.

Nor must she take any office in her church — the membership will become digrundled. She must be satisfied and honored to be identified, only as the minister's wife.

The minister's wife labored in the narrow, constricted, imprisoning myth - passing it on from generation to generation. (I remember one of the older ministers' wives telling me not to call my husband by his first name in public — she had been afflicted by the myth.

Another time, I was found guilty of holding hands with my husband at a Bible conference — that was an absolute no.

I soon began to see that the current myth was not only an obstruction to clear vision and the reality of things, but that it was a paralytic and static role that was harmful to both parties concerned. No man wants to be married to a shadow!

(This is the first of a two part series that will continue in next Friday's AFRO).

1,300 honor Rev. Garrison at a retirement banquet

By Elizabeth M. Oliver

A total of 50 dignitaries sat at the head table which stretched the length of the banquet hall. Over 1,300 guests were frocked in colorful evening garb. The program of 24 speakers lasted after midnight.

This is a brief description of one of the largest and most impressive of dinner parties held in Baltimore in memory.

The event was the Sunday evening affair which lauded John Wesley United Methodist Church's pastor, the Rev. J. Lloyd Garrison, at the conclusion of his 19th year. He is retiring at age 70. However, the tall, stately and likable honoree who is noted as an orator, will take another pulpit assignment soon.

The church which was one of South Baltimore's oldest, is located at North Avenue and Bloomingdale Road and boasts many members from the city's pioneer families.

Also praised for devotion and service to the church was Mrs. Alease W. Garrison, the pastor's wife, whom he married in 1942.

Between the two, the church membership was increased from 360 to 1,500 in their 19 years there.

The budget went from $11,000 in 1959 to $80,000 this year; the $108,000 mortgage is paid; the building and parsonage improved at $100,000 and over $1,025,000 raised for all causes plus some $152,000 given to Methodist Missions, Colleges and Church Funds.

Heading the banquet committee of over 400 persons were Mrs. Nina Bean and William D. Parrish. The souvenir book of 40 pages contained names of 1,500 patrons; persons from other Methodist churches and other faiths, the community, all walks of life, businesses and state, local and federal governments.

—Rev. Redd

"It has been very rewarding as pastor of this church for 34 years. My joys have been much more than my sorrows," said Rev. Redd.

An AFRO Honor Roll recipient in 1966, Rev. Redd says, "Religion comes first with parental guidance. Folk today join the church when they feel like joining.

As a man who has been a minister for 47 years, Rev. Redd feels that "Some parents think sending their children to Sunday School could accomplish in an hour what they fail to do in seven days a week."

Speaking of the born again Christians who have suddenly returned to church, Rev. Redd feels this is the season that the church "fluctuates."

Speaking from his home during an AFRO interview, Rev. Redd said, There is a season of people joining the church and a season of them leaving. This will last about five or six years and they will drift away.

"We are now praying for a lot of babies today in churches and don't become alarmed when membership decreases. Gospel music helps attract people in church."

There are times when his day might start as early as 6 a.m. when he receives a call from someone ill or a member who just wants to talk with their minister.

Mrs. Redd, who is a former licensed practical nurse says her "life is devoted to church work" and she resigned from her job in 1960 to work with the church.

Rev. Redd is the father of three sons, Samuel T. Redd, the mortician; Randolph and Bernard Redd.

When asked if he had thought of retiring, with a smile on his face he answered, "I would love to travel one day but right now I have no plans to retire."

—Providence

While located at Fremont and Edmondson Avenues, the church was remodeled and refurnishing of the sanctuary. During the summer of 1961 a public address system with individual hearing aid attachments and new heating equipment that insured comfort throughout the entire plant for the many activities was installed.

A closed circuit television system for viewing the services in the lower auditorium was also installed. Since Rev. Wood has served as pastor, the church program has been expanded to include activities such as a mid-week church school program for community youngsters, funded by a grant, scouting activities for boys and girls and extended Sunday church school program classes in homemaking and sewing for young people and adults.

Also, senior citizen's clubs, bus transportation for senior citizens, disabled members and activities that require transportation.

The mid week church school is still being operated at 846 Edmondson Ave. next door to the old church home.

Providence Baptist believes that the church calendar must provide for the times when members may come together on a church - wide basis to know each other and grow in the spirit of Christian fellowship.

The members of Providence look to a new modern church facility which will have a new and exciting ministry.

High standards for the community will be promoted in terms of housing and health. Seminars will be held on nutrition, community maintenance and preservation and social probelms such as drug addiction and alcoholism. Marriage and family counseling will also be conducted.

Charter members of the church who are still living are Mesdames Mattie W. Ashton, Margaret Bedford, Helen D. Blount, Luella Bright, Edna Over Campbell.

Also, Arthur Evans, Mesdames Mattie Gwathney, Annie Haynie, Dorothy W. Jones, Vernice D. Matthews, Mildred W. McNair, Joseph Roy, Rebecca W. Scott, Mabel W. Sneed and Minnie Taylor.

THE WINNER GETS THE CHECK — Rev. P. H. Franklin (R), pastor of St. Martin's Church, 2100 block of Madison Ave., receives a check for $1000 from John H. Murphy III, AFRO chairman of the board. St. Martin's was the first place winner of the AFRO Church-of-the-Year contest.

Their theme is "The Role of Youth in the Christian World." The Rev. Ernest P. Clark, pastor of Metropolitan will be the 8:30 a.m. speaker with the Rev. Ms. Marie Phillips Cooke speaking at the 11 a.m. services.

A coffee hour will be held following the 11 a.m. services. Ms. Ruth Starks is youth coordinator.

Ministers Wives raise funds for new building.

The Maryland Association of Ministers Wives and Widows recently observed headquarters day at St. Marks Institutional Baptist Church, Bentalou and Lanvale Streets. The Rev. Spencer Dobson is pastor.

Headquarters day was observed to raise funds to secure a national headquarters for the Ministers Wives and Widows.

Wives and Widows in 37 states were also busy raising funds for their project that started in 1972.

A report of the money raised will be made at the National Association of Ministers Wives convenivet in San Jose California in June.

Mrs. Roberta Williams, of Zion Baptist Church was the program chairman and Mrs. Jeralyn Stewart is state president.

The Rev. Joseph Stewart, pastor of Mount Lebanon Calvary Baptist Church erected a miniature building for the minister's wives.

—Rev. Garrison

The program which extended from 7 p.m. to nearly 1 a.m. had Mrs. Isis Finney and Mrs. Christine B. Paylor as toast mistresses with Mrs. Julia D. Callaway and Eric Conway, pianists accompanying the 40 - voice mass choir. Soloists were Warren Murray and Welton Whittington Sr.; Ms. Rosalind Yorker and Mrs. Lillie Myers.

Tributes were given by Joseph Lawson, the Reverends L. Carroll Yingling Jr., Irvin Lockerman, Janie Harrington, Julius Ford, Richard Clifford, Joshua Hutchins, Roscoe Williams, Ernest T. Clark, George W. Baynard, Martin L. McKinney and Eddie Wilson.
