Discord in P.G. County

There is apparently some discord in Prince Georges County's 25th Legislative District between Sen. Tommie Broadwater and Del. Dennis W. Trotter and it does not appear to be clearing up.

It has to do with Broadwater's senate seat.

It seems that Trotter has been telling people in the district he is considering running for Broadwater's seat in the September primary and asking for support.

That hasn't set too well with Broadwater because, according to him, Trotter never talked to him about the matter.

"I am a little upset about the matter," said Broadwater. "up till five weeks ago everything was all right. Then I hear that Trotter is going around talking to people telling them he's running for my seat and that he's got the support.

"Those people call me back and I get the news from them because Trotter and I haven't talked about it," Broadwater said.

When the '78 campaign began Broadwater immediately decided he'd keep all three incumbent delegates, (Trotter, Nat Exum and Francis Santangelo) on his ticket.

Now there is the question of whether Trotter will be dropped from the ticket.

"Trotter and I haven't had any words," Broadwater said. "But we're going ahead. Trotter can run if he wants to."

Del. Trotter said he's looking into the possibility of running for the Senate but hasn't made any formal announcement.

"I haven't told anyone I'm running," he said.

"But I haven't told anyone I'm not running either, save been going around asking questions and seeing what kind of support I have."

Trotter told the AFRO he couldn't understand why Broadwater is so upset over the fact he did not come and discuss the matter with him.

"In this political game you don't always play your hand until you see what cards are available," he said.

He said he expects to make an announcement by June 26.
