CONTINENTALS CONTRIBUTE — The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, chairman, Camp Farthest Out, accepts $1,500 contribution from the Baltimore Chapter, Continental Societies, Inc. The resident camp, located in Carroll County, is sponsored by Douglas Memorial Community Church and is free to the youngsters. Shown, left tb right, are Mesdames Katherine Gross, Elmira Washington, Zelma Brown, the Rev. Bascom, Mrs. Louise Mapp, chairman of the club's charity committee and Miss Daisy King. Other contributions this year by the Continentals, a service club, include a college scholarship, camperships to Camp Mohawk and Camp Glyndon; contributions to Direct Search for Talent, Provident Hospital Sickle Cell Anemia Clinic and AFRO Charities, Inc. Other projects include an on-going shoe fund and sponsorship of recreational activities for needy youngsters. Monies are raised by the club's annual charity ball.

Baptist church walls come crashing down

City building inspectors are trying to determine what caused the total collapse of a store front church in which five persons living in a second floor apartment escaped injury.

Annie Hinton, 32, said she, her two daughters and two nieces were asleep in the bedroom of their apartment situated over the Holy Temple Freewill Baptist Church at Chase and Somerset Streets when they were awakened by a rumbling and shaking of the floor.

Deborah Hinton, 14, one of Mrs. Hinton's daughters, said, "The noise sounded like an earthquake."

Mrs. Hinton said, "We got out of the apartment right away," after a closet in the room fell in.

"Both floors of the front of the building fell. The collapse stopped just short of my bedroom in the rear second floor," she said.

She said the church also crushed a car parked in front.

Rev. James Smith, the church pastor, told the AFRO a revival had been held in the church for two consecutive nights and no sign of the cave-in was evident.

He added he is thankful the members were not there when the disaster occurred.

Rev. Smith explained the entire building will have to be reconstructed and "the way prices are today" will cost upwards to $20,000 to make the church fit for worship.

Mrs. Hinton said "Some renovation has been going on in there lately and they have been knocking out some partitions."

Smith said most of the members are on fixed income and can hardly supply the extra funds needed. He added should well-wishers have contributions for the new church they can reach him at his home at 323-5010.

Provident offers radiology course

The School of Radiologic Technology at Provident Hospital offers a 24-month certificate program that allows the student to be registered as a radiologic technologist after passing the National Registry Boards.

The school is approved by the American College of Radiology and the Joint Review Committee on Education.

All theory and clinical rotations are conducted at Provident Hospital. A minor affiliation with the University of Maryland Hospital affords additional experience for the students in radiation therapy.

Dr. James E. Bell, chief of radiology at Provident Hospital, is the medical director of the program. Susan R. Parker, R.T., is the educational director.

Drivers beware of road surveillence

PIKESVILLE, Md. (UPI) — State Police say a road surveillance program over the next six months is expected to reduce by half the number of traffic fatalities caused by drunk drivers and speeders.

Sgt. Thomas Moore announced last Thursday "Operation Yellowjacket" will put off - duty troopers on 156 selected highways to catch speeding or reckless drivers.

He said a computer analysis determined that the 16 highways have the most frequent fatal accidents caused by speed or alcohol.

In addition to reducing the number of fatalities the program, financed by a $230,000 grant from the Maryland Department of Transportation, state police also have a goal of cutting personal injury accidents by 20 percent.

Moore said the troopers, who will supplement the regular police patrols, will be in regularly marked patrol carssand will use special speed devices to detect cars traveling above the legal limit.

They will receive special training in identifying and apprehending drunken drivers, who are responsible for a large number of accidents involving injury and death, Moore said.

Police Superintendent Thomas Smith said, "we feel Operation Yellowjacket will make our highways safer for everybody to use."

Moore said another 16 roads will be selct4d when the first phase is completed and the entire program will be re - evaluated at the end of the year.

The 16 roads are:

U.S. Route 220 in Allegany County, from state route 9 to 21st lane U.S. Route 40 in Washingtbn County, from Interstate 8 81 to State Route 68, U.S. Rute 15 in Frederick County from the Pennsylvania line to Fish Hactchery Road.

Also Route 26 in Carroll County from Route 27 to the Baltimore County vine; Maryland Route 26 in Baltimore County from the Carroll County line to I - 695; U.S. Route 1 in Baltimore County from I-695 to the Harford County Line; State Route 175 in Anne Arundel County from Route 3 to Route 713.

Maryland Route 5 in Prince George's County from Scurratts Road to the District of Columbia line. U.S. Route 40 in Howard County from the Baltimore County line to I - 70; Route 193 in Montgomery County from the Prince George's county line to route 96; Route 16 in Dorchester County from Route 50 to Taylors Island Road.

The last five locations are State Route 33 in Talbot County from Route 322 to St. Michaels; Route 213 from Queen Anne's County from Route 18 to the Kent County Line; Route 313 in Caroline County From Federalsburg to Anderson Road; Route 20 in Kent County from Rock Hall to Chestertown and Route 1 in Harford County from the Cecil County line to hickory.

BY JOE BLACK

By the Way

For years and years I have heard people say: "Everybody wants to go to heaven, but nobody wants to die." I sadly confess that those words reflect the attitudes of too many Black Americans.

An individual is "Right on" as long as he is praising Black folks, but woe unto him who dares to chastise, or point out weaknesses that Black people can improve upon.

The name-callers quickly appear and start yapping "Tom," "Handkerchief Head," and "Oreo." I remind the shouters that we, as a race, are doomed to second-class status as long as we refuse to admit that we are not perfect. I am the first to admit that Black Americans have made enormous social and economic progress during the past three decades, but we cannot afford the luxury of living on our victories of yesterday.

Look about you and you'll notice that the forward progress of Black Americans has been on a plateau. If we are not careful, we will begin to move backward rather than forward. Know who the enemies are; it is not me or any other Black executive who responds negatively to your proposals; it is not the Black person who dares to remind you that Black and proud is more than a slogan; no, our real enemies are Black-on-Black crime, high unemployment, slum living, unequal education opportunities, underemployment, and unequal justice.

Think about it and decide where your time and efforts should be spent.

We thought you'd like this book.

You loved it!

Back in 1971, with the idea we might assist Black Americans to learn more about their heritage, we published this Black Culture Quiz booklet. It contains some 100 brief descriptions of achievements by and for Blacks in this country. It was developed for us by Dr. Roscoe C. Brown, now president of Bronx (N.Y.) Community College.

We printed a modest number of the booklets that year, and gave them away at conventions and to individuals who asked us for them.

We were surprised (and pleased) to find that we had a long-running hit on our hands. We've revised and updated it three times. More than 150,000 copies have gone to schools, colleges, church groups, businesses and individuals.

Perhaps this little booklet is our most visible involvement with the black community, but it is only one way we offer encouragement. We also support the United Negro College Fund, work closely with Opportunities Industrialization Centers (our president, Frederick A. Collins, Jr., is a member of OIC's National Advisory Council and chairman of the New York Council). We support the black press through advertising and, of course, we are actively seeking minority employees — as we have been for many years.
