I MUST offer a Share of my Wealth, Good Luck, Health and Happiness to you because...

In order to keep the Money, Power, and Good Luck I have—I have been ORDERED to Share it!

It all started about two years ago—I was broke, sick, and my wife was threatening to leave me. When I did get work it was never enough to pay the rent and feed my family. Many nights I went to bed hungry and hurting. I was sure I was jinxed... the Lord couldn't love me — but I was one wrong way.

One very cold afternoon when the sky was as dark as my heart, I was walking home from a job interview that I didn't get. I passed an old building with a sign in the first floor window "Rev. Worthington—All Welcome." I don't know why I pushed open the front door and walked inside, at the time I felt I would escape the cold (now I know God was directing me). Before I rang the doorbell an old, old man opened the door. He was radiant — he glowed with a Godly look. "Come in my child, I will help you." We talked for hours. I felt a warmth surround me and I knew I was having a very Holy experience. When I was about to leave he handed me a small red pouch. "Keep this with you at all times. The power of it's contents will fill all your needs. God Bless You." From that day on my life started to change. Within less than a year I was rich, my health is perfect and my family and I are united and loving. Rev. Worthington kept his word he truly helped me.

Within less than a year I was rich, my health is perfect and my family and I are united and loving. Rev. Worthington kept his word he truly helped me.

Then some months ago the Rev. called me to his side "I am very old and I must leave — but I am entrusting you with the secret of the Red Pouch and for you to continue enjoying the pleasures of the good life you must give me your sacred vow you will share it with others. God meant for man to help one another.

Why Am I Advertising?

When the Rev. died and the sole responsibility of sharing the power of the Red Pouch fell on me I was lost—I gave all my friends Red Pouches and they thanked me and blessed me when the contents of the pouch changed their life—but I knew I had to go further and that is why I am advertising; to reach as many men and women in need as possible.

The Red Pouch has changed my life and that of my friends who I've shared it with. I want to make you my friend! I want to share with you the power of the mystical contents of the pouch that will change your life. I want you to have the pouch at its actual cost—I will profit from your blessings.

Please rush the Red Pouch to me at it's actual cost of $7.00.

I know you will refund my money if I am not totally satisfied.

Please send me two Red Pouches so I can give one to someone I feel needs it. I am enclosing $13.00.

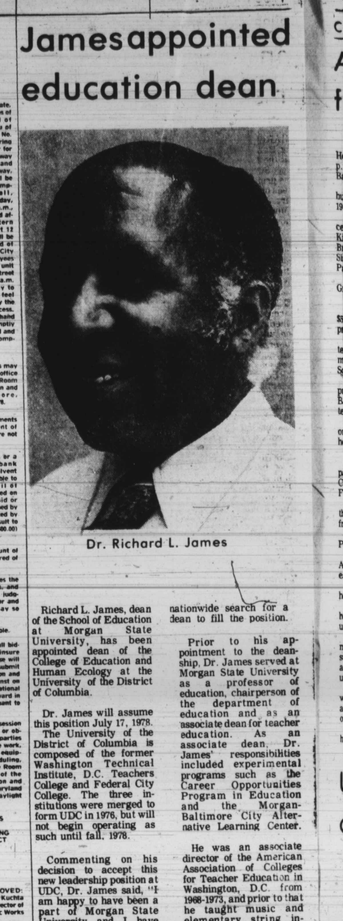
James appointed education dean



Dr. Richard L. James

Richard L. James, dean of the School of Education at Morgan State University, has been appointed dean of the College of Education and Human Ecology at the University of the District of Columbia.

Dr. James will assume this position July 17, 1978.

The University of the District of Columbia is composed of the former Washington Technical Institute, D.C. Teachers College and Federal City College. The three institutions were merged to form UDC in 1976, but will not begin operating as such until fall, 1978.

Commenting on his decision to accept this new leadership position at UDC, Dr. James said, "I am happy to have been a part of Morgan State University and I have mixed emotions about leaving during this critical period of its development. However, this position is an exciting challenge which offers me a significant opportunity to grow and develop."

After Morgan State earned university status in 1975, Dr. James became the first dean of its School of Education. The school is one of the largest at the university with more than 60 faculty and over 1,000 students.

Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Horace A. Judson, said Dr. James' departure will mean the loss of a valuable asset to Morgan and one which will not easily be replaced. According to the vice president, a committee will be formed to begin a nationwide search for a dean to fill the position.

Prior to his appointment to the deanship, Dr. James served at Morgan State University as a professor of education, chairperson of the department of education and as an associate dean for teacher education. As an associate dean, Dr. James' responsibilities included experimental programs such as the Career Opportunities Program in Education and the Morgan-Baltimore City Alternative Learning Center.

He was an associate director of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education in Washington, D.C. from 1968-1973, and prior to that he taught music and elementary string instruments at a number of junior high schools in Prince George's County.

Dr. James is a member of the Communications and Publication Committee of the Association of Teacher Educators, the Maryland Association of Teacher Educators, the American Association for Higher Education and the Maryland Association for Higher Education.

He has been a consultant to the Career Opportunities Program in Education, the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, Florida A. and M. University, and the Leadership Training Institute.

Dr. James completed undergraduate studies at Hampton Institute, the graduate degree in music education at the University of Michigan and the doctoral degree at the University of Maryland.

He has published several books and articles on multicultural education.

Dr. James and his wife reside in Washington, D.C.

Rev. Volkwijn said that as a minister of the gospel, he was frustrated in his attempts to educate and preach unity to blacks in South Africa.

"The police are brutes," he said. "They have jailed me and they have jailed any other individuals who they suspect of being a leader. They will allow no leaders among the blacks and brutally suppress any evidence of unity.

He said that the only hope for blacks in South Africa will be to educate themselves and unite as one force against the whites, adding that this hope was a long way off.

He concluded by saying that his type of ministry had reached the point of ineffectiveness in South Africa.

U.S. against ban on Ugandan coffee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has advised Congress against imposing an embargo on Ugandan coffee in retaliation for human rights abuses by President Idi Amin.

William Harrop, deputy assistant secretary of state, told the subcommittee on foreign economic policy, "we do not believe that an embargo would be effective either as an economic punitive measure, or as a means of improving the human rights situation."

CIA Director Stansfield Turner told the subcommittee Uganda has issued both diplomatic and regular passports to Palestinians, but he could not say whether the recipients were terrorists.

Dr. Thomas Melady, the last U.S. ambassador to Uganda before the embassy in Kampala was closed in 1973, described Amin as "a modern Hitler."

"History is repeating itself," he said. "We should have learned from our experience with Hitler and the Nazis. Brutal tyrants never change; they only continue to murder."

The house passed a resolution last month calling for an embargo in protest of Amin's human rights abuses.

But Harrop said, "Given the present high world price of coffee in the world markets, Uganda coffee now sold to the United States would readily find other markets.

"There appears to be little interest on the part of other coffee - consuming countries in supporting a coffee embargo or other economic restrictions against Uganda at this time."
