JACQUELINE S. MASSEY recently elected the first black second vice president of the Board of Directors for Girl Scouts of Central Maryland will be one of 12 United States representatives attending the 22nd World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts Conference in Tehran, Iran in September.

Ms. Massey attributes her career success to Girl Scout experience

By Michele L. McRae
AFRO Staff Writer

Jacqueline Massey has been involved with Girl Scouting since she was a young tot in her hometown of Jackson, Miss.

Throughout her educational travels, Ms. Massey, now 31 years old, has stayed true to her Girl Scout Promise. Now a resident of Baltimore where she lives with her husband, James and two children, Ms. Massey is one of the thriving forces of the Girl Scouts of Central Maryland. She was recently elected as second vice president, Board of Directors, Girl Scouts of Central Maryland and is the first black to ever serve in that capacity.

When she's not performing her scouting duties, Ms. Massey is busy as a coordinator for a special project for migrant students with the Baltimore City Public School System.

One who accomplishes whatever she sets out to do, Ms. Massey has set quite a track record for herself.

She has received certificates of merit from the Mayor's Office for her participation in United Fund Campaign drives, the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc.

In addition, Ms. Massey has served as co-chairperson, National Youth Conference on Natural Beauty and Conservation, sponsored by the White House under former president, the late Lyndon B. Johnson and has received an award from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Ms. Massey is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, 1969 edition; was nominated as an Outstanding Young Woman of America and was highlighted in Mississippi's Black Federation of Women Magazine on Black Professional Women.

The energetic Ms. Massey attributes most of her career success to her Girl Scouting experience.

"I believe Girl Scouting enables a girl to strengthen her awareness of self and develop high moral, social and cultural values. In addition, scouting experiences help a young woman to develop meaning and direction in her life," says Ms. Massey.

Come this September, Ms. Massey will be one of 12 delegates representing the Girl Scouts of America at the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts Conference in Tehran, Iran.

Ms. Massey reports that the Girl Scout population in Baltimore is around 32,000 with a black membership of only 3,673.

"There's a lot to do in Girl Scouting and I would like to see more blacks involved. Girl Scouting is for everyone and we are working very hard to expand the membership among minority groups."

Ms. Massey highly recommends Girl Scouting to women of all ages.

"It's a learning experience, it's a growing experience, while at the same time it's a fun experience."

Good Samaritans

The Fairmount Neighborhood Association did a thoughtful thing the other day by presenting a $400 check to the Edgewood Elemenlary School to purchase library books in memory of Scott T. Askew.

He was the third grader who was killed by a car while on the way to school a year ago. Judge Joseph C. Howard made the presentation on behalf of the group to the principal, Delores Baden.

The youngster's parents, James and Cynthia Askew (he's the lawyer, she's the social worker), and his sister, Lori were present at the ceremony. Arnold Hayes is president of the neighborhood group.

It's A Boy!

It's a boy for Mr. and Mrs. Lance Barnes, now making their home in Detroit where he is in med school. Baby Kiona Lance arrived over two weeks ago weighing over six lbs.

Momme is the former Susan Murphy Wood, daughter of Frances Murphy Campbell of Buffalo, N.Y. and James "Biddy" Wood of Baltimore.

Rev. and Mrs. Sam Redd, six children mark 25th anniversary with 1,000 guests

By Elizabeth M. Oliver

The 25th wedding anniversary celebration for the Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Redd came Sunday, June 28, the same day they were married in 1953. This time they were accompanied by their six children, three boys and three girls, who hosted the black tie party attended at Martin's West by over 1,000 guests.

The boys, ages 12 to 20 wore tuxedos and the girls, ages 17 to 24 wore formal gowns of silver and grey with silver hued orchids.

Mrs. Redd, a Social Security employee was frocked in an antique white floor - length gown with a V - neck and matching jacket edged in silver.

The platinum pin at the waist was of diamonds. A silver orchid, matching purse and slippers completed the accessories.

The Rev. Mr. Redd, a mortician and assistant pastor at Grace Memorial Baptist Church wore a tuexedo.

The gifts the couple exchanged were a white gold diamond studded ring from the wife to the housand and double diamond white gold bracelets from the husband to the wife.

The children presented a portrait copied from the couple's original wedding picture and done in pastels by artist Oliver Patrick Scott.

The five - tiered cake was in white with white rose buds.

The family formed a receiving line to welcome the guests from the community, the Grace Church, Social Security and the businesses touched by the Rev. Mr. Redd in his associatioms.

Each guest was given a corsage or lapel flower and champaign as they entered the banquet hall.

The bouffet was decorated in silver and white flowers with each individual table for the seated guests center by a silver candelabrum.

Midway the festivities, the Rev. Mr. and Redd recalled the days of both joy and sorrow, laughter and tears of the family which he says has come from "nothing at all to days of comfort."

Remembering all relatives, neighbors and friends who had helped in rugged times, he called them by name and extended thanks. He praised his wife and children as "wonderful kids" and vowed, "No man could have a better family."

In a rare public speech, Mrs. Redd advised all families that "there may be arguments and disagreements but keep on loving."

The Redd family sent out hundreds of invitations but Mrs. Redd told the AFRO her husband gave blanket invitations out as he went about his daily and Sunday affair, "So everybody came."

The culmination of the - week - long - celebration came at the Redd family home on Loch Raven Boulevard when they held a Sunday, July 2 open house.

Countless friends stopped by to see the display of gifts, to bring more and extend congratulations.

The anniversary program included invocation by Rev. Dr. Alfred C. D. Vaughn, pastor of Grace Memorial Baptist Church; who also gave words of thanksgiving.

Presentations were received from Mayor Schaefer through Roscoe Herring who also brought the City Hall ceremonial silver tray and Del. Troy Brailey who presented the citation from the Maryland House of Delegates.

Benediction was by Rev. Lawyer L. Swinson, pastor of New Metropolitan Baptist Church.

25th ANNIVERSARY PORTRAIT of the Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Redd was taken at the formal celebration with their six children. (L to R) Jeffrey, 12; Charles, 14; Rev. Mr. Redd; Mrs. Guineviere Redd, his wife; Marsha, 22; SamuelJr.; Monica, 24 and Donna, 17. The event at Martin's West saw some 1,000 guests coming and going throughout the evening June 28.
