Ms. Marriott: 'Dogs just might bite me'

By Pam Widgeon
AFRO Staff Writer

"It sounds like no one is home. I'll just leave my literature and go to the next house.

"I usually jog during the summer months but this door to door campaigning keeps me in shape."

Those were the words of Ms. Salima Marriott. Campaigning in the Park Heights area has been part of her daily agenda for the last two months.

The 37 - year - old Park Heights area resident is a candidate for the State Central Committee.

With an arm full of political brochures and the Park Heights Community Voice newspaper, Ms. Marriott left her Homer Avenue home to talk with residents in her area.

Trailing along with Ms. Marriott were four of her campaign workers.

"Hello, I'm Salima Marriott and I am running for the State Central Committee. I would like to leave this literature with you and consider voting for me on Sept. 12."

Ms. Marriott was ringing bells in the 4800 block of Laurel Ave. John Curtis, a resident of Laurel Avenue, seemed impressed with the candidate but said, "Thanks for the literature but I'm really up in the air about who I will vote for."

As she walked down the eight gray wooden steps, Ms. Marriott replied, "Thank you and please consider voting for me."

"Hi, I wish you the best of luck," shouted a friend of Ms. Marriott's as she approached another house on Laurel Avenue.

After knocking on the door several times, at another Laurel Avenue home, Mrs. Marie Jones peeped out of her first floor window and said, "May I help you?"

"Hello, I'm Salima Marriott and I am running for the State Central Committee.

"Just a minute, I'll be with you," said Ms. Jones, who opened her door and invited Mrs. Marriott in to her home.

"Please have a seat", said Mrs. Jones.

"Oh! I see you have Pete Rawlings literature," said Ms. Marriott.

"Yes, but I don't have my voters card. I'm a new resident of Baltimore and have not received my card yet."

Mrs. Jones said she wants to vote on Sept. 12 but hopes to receive her card in time.

The next stop was the 4800 block of Ruscombe Avenue. Ms. Marriott was seen pushing her literature under a gate.

"Why did you place your literature under the gate?" asked this reporter.

"I don't go to houses where there are dogs in the front lawn," said the candidate with a smile on her face. "They just might bite me."

Another resident ran down her steps and said to Ms. Marriott, "I can't vote for you because I am a republican. If you vote for my husband's boss, he will vote for you," said the Ruscombe Avenue woman.

"Who is your husband's boss?"

"He is Elmer Harris," said the Ruscombe Avenue neighbor.

Ms. Marriott shouted, "Oh I know him! I was at his office last week."

After knocking on more than 10 doors on Ruscombe Avenue, Mrs. Marriott decided to campaign on Poe Avenue.

"Hello, I'm Salima Marriott and I am running for the State Central Committee. Tell your mommy to come to the door."

Dressed in a long striped bathrobe, a youthful looking mother stepped out on her porch and said, "May I help you?"

"Hello, I'm Salima Marriott and I am running for the State Central Committee. I would like to leave my literature with you. Do you get the Community Voice newspaper?" said Mrs. Marriott.

"No," said the woman. "Well, let me leave this one with you," replied Mrs. Marriott.

The Community Voice newspaper is a publication of the Park Heights Community Corporation.

Ms. Marriott is an instructor at Morgan State University and says her day usually starts at 5 a.m. and ends at midnight, "when I usually fall asleep at the table working."

Her final stop for the evening was the 4800 block of Poe Ave.

A nine - year - old boy answered the door and said, "What's this all about?"

"Hello, I am Salima Marriott and I am running for the State Central Committee. Is your mother home?

After talking with several other neighbors on Poe Avenue, Ms. Marriott left her campaign workers to attend an executive committee Park Heights Community meeting.

"I really feel like I have to go out every day at 6 p.m. and I will continue," said Mrs. Marriott as she drove off with her campaign workers.

YOUTH CENTER DEDICATION — Ceremonies were held Aug. 25 for the Arthur G. Murphy Sr. Youth Service Center, 1600 W. North Ave. The Center, a facility of the Juvenile Services Administration of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, serves 115 youths from 16 to 18 years of age. It is named in memory of the late Del. Arthur G. Murphy Sr. As part of the ceremonies, a picture of Mr. Murphy, which will hang in the lobby of the Center, a plaque bearing his name and a new sign for the Center entrance were unveiled. Shown here are (L to R): Dr. Neil Solomon, secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene; Del. Margaret Humphries Murphy, widow of the late delegate; Rex C. Smith, director of the Juvenile Services Administration and Joe O. Woodrick, executive aide to Acting Gov. Blair Lee III.

The Division of Continuing Education and Community Services of the Community College of Baltimore announces a "Survival Saturdays" course, designed to help consumers survive the high costs of home maintenance.

The course, entitled "Carpentry Skills for Consumers" will be offered for three successive Saturdays on Sept.9, 15 and 23 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Harbor Campus of CCB, Lombard Street at Market Place.

Park Heights wins bus depot battle

The Park Heights Community won their fight against the Maryland Mass Transit Administration's plans to put a bus garage at the Park Circle.

Acting Gov. Blair Lee III told members of the AFRO Clean Block Campaign that he has made the decision not to put the bus garage in the Park Heights area.

Lee's decision came after an Aug. 20 meeting Park Heights held with Steny Hoyer. During the meeting Hoyer said he would get back with the residents and let them know Lee's decision.

Sen. Verda Welcome, who was responsible for pressing Lee to take a stand on the bus garage issue, said Lee knew it was in his best interest to grant the wishes of the community.

"I think after he realized that the community was up in arms, he said he would not put it there," Sen. Welcome said.

"That was a big, big issue. If the governor had overlooked the community-at large, I think we would have looked at that thing a second time."

The site selection study, issued in October 1977, was criticized by many Park Heights residents as being very biased.

So Park Heights residents have removed what might have been a major source of traffic congestion and pollution from their neighborhoodd.

The Bar Association of Baltimore City announces its second program in its new Forum Series — a Breakfast Meeting on Sept.7, Baltimore Hilton Hotel at 8 a.m. featured remarks by the Democratic States' Attorney Candidates for Baltimore City: Anton J. S. Keating, A. Dwight Pettit and William A. Swisher, state's attorney.

All attorneys are urged to attend. Tickets are available at the Association office, 629 Civil Courts Building, Baltimore 21202 or at the door.
