Increase needed in student education subsidy

ANNAPOLIS — A State Commission on education may recommend raising the state's annual $375 per student education subsidy to $425 per student, an assistant state school superintendent said last Thursday.

David Ricker, a state budget and fiscal affairs officer, said the 21 - member commission met to consider how much the state should add to the nearly $300 million education subsidy for local governments in fiscal 1980, based on the education aid formula established in 1974.

Ricker said members of the Maryland Commission on the Funding of Public Education, which was first appointed by the governor in 1976, believe the formula does not provide enough money.

"The point is the cost of education continues to rise while the formula, which is based on school enrollments that are dropping statewide, gives the counties less than Ricker said one reason the formula falls short is because lawmakers adequate money," he said.

Last year, when the average cost per student was $690, the state contributed $375 and the rest was raised by local governments.

He said members of the board, comprised of legislators and school officials, recommended earlier this year that the total state subsidy be raised as little as $20 million and as much as $80 million in 1980.

However, the most likely figure that the whole board could live with is about a $35 million boost that would raise the state's per student contribution to $425," he said

He said the commission must forward its recommendation to acting Gov. Blair Lee III soon because the first draft of the fiscal 1980 budget must be completed by January.

assumed when they devised it in 1974 that school enrollment would increase, when in fact they have decreased annually since then.

Headaches need special treatment?

A Johns Hopkins University Psychiatry professor says it doesn't take much to trigger the annoying pulse of a headache, but curing the common malady may not be as simple as taking two aspirins.

Dr. Nelson Hendler, who also is director of the Mensana Clinic, said anything from serious nervous tension to a brain tumor can cause headaches, but curing the ailment requires detailed instruction in diagnosis and treatment.

Hendler said the Mensana Clinic sponsored an all - day seminar with Johns Hopkins Hospital to inform doctors and other health professionals of ways to treat headaches.

The seminar designed to be useful "to anybody who has ever dealt with the treatment of headaches in their medical practice," attracted about 60 doctors and other health professionals from the east coast.

"Our purpose was to give a comprehensive overview of the symptoms and treatment of a variety of headaches," Hendler said.

He noted that the seminar presentations and discussions will be compiled into a textbook and published next year by the Raven Press of New York City.

"Basically, the presentations were an effort to show how to make a proper diagnosis and recommend treatment of headaches," Hendler said.

Conaway in support of repealing 'blue' laws

Frank M. Conaway, delegate designate from the 40th Legislative District of Baltimore City, announced that he will support, and if necessary sponsor, legislation in the upcoming session to repeal Maryland's current version of Sunday "blue" laws.

Speaking to the legislative advisory session of the Metro-Democratic Organization, Conaway expressed the belief that the present laws are antiquated.

"What is now happening with Sunday sales shows that the hard-working consuming public needs some opportunity on Sunday to do some shopping which can not be done on regular work days," he said.

Conaway said he will propose and - or support legislation which would permit stores to open for volume sales between 1 and 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Such a law would protect from interference with regular Sunday morning services and at the same time permit the public, after church, to shop as needed.

HOW

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

Fannie Jones, Ralph Jackson wed

WASHINGTON

Miss Fannie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Jones of Burlington, N.C., recently became the bride of Ralph Jackson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Watson at a double ring ceremony held at New Light Missionary Baptist Church, Washington, D.C. Rev. Dewey Young, pastor officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by Herman L. Jones, an uncle. The bride's sister, Rosetta Jones, was maid of honor and James Richmond, cousin of the bride, was best man.

The couple met while students at the former Washington Technical Institute, now part of the University of D.C. The bride was majoring in social services and the bridegroom was majoring in housing.

The bride is a graduate of Pleasant Grove High School, Burlington and on graduation she pursued a course of study in cosmetology at the Burlington Industrial Education Center. In 1963 she moved to the District of Columbia and attained her license to practice cosmetology. She later entered Washington Technical Institute. Presently she is employed at the Jewish Social Service Center, Rockville, Md.

The bridegroom, a native of the District, won a silver medal in boxing during the 1964 World Olympics. A graduate of Cardozo High School he entered the navy where he successfully won recognition on the military units boxing team.

He was honored as worldwide Navy champion in his weight division in 1956. He then was successful in placing for a spot on the 1964 Olympics fighting team with such personalities as Joe Frazer and Buster Mathis.

RECENTLY MARRIED at New Light Missionary Baptist Church, Washington, D.C. were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jackson. The bride is the former Fannie Jones of Burlington, N.C.

Caucus chairman angry at S.C. utilities stance

COLUMBIA, S.C. — An angry chairman of the South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus said last week the state's utilities need "to be put in their place" and a joint effort of the Caucus and the black clergy is being mounted to do just that.

Caucus chairman, State Rep. Theo Mitchell, D.-Greenville, described responses from the state's utilities to his proposal for a ban on utilities cut-offs during the winter as "contemptuous and entirely devoid of human decency."

He declared that the proper place for the utilities is under the control of the people of South Carolina, not under the control of their current management and stockholders.

Surrounded by 30 black church leaders on the steps of the Statehouse, Mitchell said the power and phone companies had answered his proposal with "verbal pap and self-serving excuses."

Turning down of his proposal, he said, was the last straw, as far as the Black Caucus was concerned. The Caucus, he said, had discussed with the church leaders, plans for marches, demonstrations and boycotts against the utilities.

"We are going to bring these companies down to proper size with the power of public opinion. We are going to turn against them the power of the righteous wrath which they have generated among our people," the lawmaker declared.

Utility rate increase requests are now under consideration by the S.C. Public Service Commission and Mitchell said the Caucus has warned the Commission of "dire consequences" if any of the increases sought are granted.

Toll-free telephone service is available Veterans Administration regional offices in all 50 states. Some 3.9 million toll-free calls were received last year. In Maryland the number is 1-800-492-8603.

Quiet pressure mounts for Charlotte 3 pardon

RALEIGH, N.C. — Officials in Gov. James B. Hunt's administration have hinted that the "Charlotte Three" now imprisoned in North Carolina, may be released from prison before Christmas.

The three, Jim Grant, T. J. Reddy and Charlie Parker, are serving time for the 1972 conviction of burning a riding stable four years earlier.

The officials said that there has been mounting "quiet pressure" on the governor to act soon in the release of the three.

The pressure, official said, include a recent resolution by the North Carolina Human Relations Council advising Hunt to commute the sentences to time already served in prison.

The Council is appointed by the governor and serves at his pleasure.

Amnesty International and other international political prisoner support groups have also asked Hunt to pardon the three.

Thirty - six law professors at the University of North Carolina, Duke University and North Carolina Central University recently sent Gov. Hunt a letter asking pardon for the prisoners, designated by Amnesty International as "political prisoners."

The law professors stated they were concerned that "the procedures by which the convictions of these persons were obtained deprived them of a fair trial and cast grave doubts on their guilt."

Sixty professors at North Carolina State University also requested a pardon from Hunt and the Charlotte City Council also passed a resolution calling on the governor to pardon the Three.
