—Howard boosted for judgeship

Judge Howard was the only black on the list that included Judges Shirley B. Jones, Marshall A. Levin and Martin B. Cristfield, all of the Supreme Bench in Baltimore; Marvin J. Lazard of the Baltimore County Circuit Court, and George D. Solter, a former Supreme Bench judge.

Judge Howard failed to receive the recommendation of either the city or the state bar association last year when he was under consideration for a seat on the State Court of Appeals, but received even wider notoriety when Acting Gov. Blair Lee III said he would have appointed Howard had he been nominated.

President Carter, who will make the appointments sometime this year, said he wants to appoint both blacks and women to the federal bench and Judge Howard and Judge Jones have been mentioned as candidates for the job.

According to the office of United States Senator Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., more than 40 lawyers and judges have applied for the lifetime appointments.

Sarbanes, who is the senior senator of the party in power (Democrats), will make recommendations to President Carter on the appointments. The White House generally follows the recommendations of the senior senator of the party in power.

Many persons apparently did not apply to the city and state bar associations for their consideration, choosing to go directly through Senator Sarbanes.

But Sarbanes has chosen to flout the wishes of the bar association already by refusing to make available to them the names of the persons who applied to him for the jobs.

It is not clear how much influence the bar associations will have over the two appointments.

JOB SECURITY ranks high with male job applicants but not as high with females, according to a study reported in the Journal of Applied Psychology. The study came from over 30 years of questionnaires given to 35,000 applicants for jobs at the Minnesota Gas Co. Asked to rank those factors which make a job good or bad, men ranked security first, followed by the type of firm they worked for, advancement possibilities, type of work, and pay. Women ranked security third, type of firm second.

—Wade's last holiday

Police reports state that witnesses observed an argument between the victim and another bar patron about 9:30 p.m. Christmas Day. They said the assailant then drew a knife and stabbed Morris in the chest.

Homicide investigators and neighborhood residents stated that they have no clues to what the arguments was about or who the assailant was.

But Shanon Cosby, Morris' girlfriend said that all last week Morris had been "getting in little things like fights" and that at one point "somebody cut his coat."

The assailant was described as a black man with reddish hair and mustache about 25 years old. He was about 5 feet 9 inches and weighted about 175 pounds and was wearing a grey shirt and pants and a black three quarter length leather coat, police said.

Conflicting reports from neighborhood residents revealed that the man may or may not be from the neighborhood.

Morris was pronounced dead on arrival at Bon Secours Hospital. He is survived by his father, James L. allen; a grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Morris; three brothers; six aunts and six uncles.

Mrs. Morris, the grandmother, said she was shocked when her grandson came and told her that someone had been killed only later did the family discover it was Wade.

"He had many friends," she said. "I didn't know them all because we have only been living here three months. He didn't hang out in bars too much anyway."

Ms. Cosby said Morris was well liked among adults as well as the younger people.

"The police came that night and told me," said Mrs. Morris. "I ain't seen them since."

In another Christmas day homicide, police have no leads in the shooting death of Eldie W. Smith, 32, of the 100 block west West Street.

According to police, Smith was shot twice in the neck and once in the back of the head after he was involved in an argument at Charles Bar in the 1100 block South Race St. about 4:30 p.m.

Police said Smith was at a table with 10 or 12 other persons when the argument erupted into a fight and Smith was shot.

He died three hours later at the University of Maryland Hospital.

In the two homicides which occurred on Christmas Eve, the two daily papers in Baltimore are offering $1,000 a piece for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the slaying of the 20 year old newspaper vendor who was shot to death while selling papers.

Police said that William Franklin Shaffer of the 400 block North Robinson Street while he was selling papers on the corner of East Monument St. and Patterson Park Avenue.

Reports reveal that Shaffer was shot once in the chest following an argument with an unidentified suspect about 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Christmas eve.

The suspect was seen rifling through the victim's clothes then escaping with an undetermined amount of money.

The second Christmas Eve slaying occurred in the early morning hours of Dec. 24. Found stabbed several times in his apartment in the 5000 block of Dikey Hill Road was 32 years old Alvin W. Brown.

Brown was discovered by his roommate, Ms. Michelle Gilmer about 2:30 a.m. The apartment had been ransacked and neighrbors told police they heard what sounded like a fight about 1 a.m.

There was no sigh of forced entry into the apartment and no weapon was found, police said.

In the fifth slaying over the Christmas holiday, Thaddeus Hicks, 18 of the 2500 block W. Lombard has been charged with homicide in connection with the death of Mrs. Alberta Glenn, 69, of the 2500 block Boyd St.

Mrs. Glenn was found dead in the cellar of her home about 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 23 a victim of a blow to the head.

According to the reports Mrs. Glenn was apparently struck in the head after struggling with her assailant throughout the house. A boody hammer was found in the corner of an alley in the 2500 block Boyd Street.

Police said Hicks was arrested at the scene after several witness identified him as the person they saw in the house.
