Speaking to the new officers, and members, the Rev. Dr. Higgs stated, "A pastor must be wholly convinced that his gospel message will do today in 1979, no less than what it did in the days of Matthew preaching.

"The gospel was effective to find and to lose men 1900 years ago and because the word is life, the pastor has a program for his community today.

"As pastors, we ought to love over our church business to see if we are properly programmed for 1979, the year of our Lord, in that he has delayed his coming another year."

The Rev. Higgs stated that some pastors do not believe in advance programming but he believes in programming that he might carry out the will of the Lord.

"If the man who buried his talent in the ground would have programmed his work he would have had fruits to present to the Lord when he returned.

Peters Sr., guest speaker; the Rev. James H. Smith, pastor of St. Lukes, Mrs. James Smith, Miss Laraesa Smith, Thurman E. Smith and Earl W. Fields.

St. Luke installs new officers

Installation and recognition services for church officers and officers of organizations at St. Luke United Methodist Church, Riggs Avenue and Gilmor Street were held.

The Rev. James H. Smith, pastor of St. Luke presided at the service. St. Luke United Methodist is located in the heart of "Sandtown" section of Baltimore and was founded by the Rev. Charles A. Green, 29 years ago on Stockton St.

When Mount Zion Methodist Church's congregation moved to its present location, St. Luke purchased the building on Gilmor Street. The building was completely destroyed by fire and St. Luke members were determined to rebuild their church on the same site of the former church.

The church was rebuilt in five years under the leadership of the Rev. and Mrs. C. (Beatrice) Green.

The Rev. Green retired as pastor of St. Luke in 1977 and the Rev. Smith was then appointed as pastor in June 1977. Rev. Smith serves as vice president of the United Methodist Ministers, treasurer of the District Council on Ministries, and several other organizations. He is married to Mrs. Louise Blount Smith and the proud father of three daughters, Mrs. Sandra Alexander, Mrs. Jamie Langley and Miss La Reesa Smith.

St. Luke Church is known as a "warm highly spiritual church with dedicated members.". New presidents of St. Luke organizations that were installed were Richard White, Senior Choir; Ms. Isabelle Handy, Gospel Choir; Gretta Gray, G. A. Green Choir;

Also, Ms. Zelda Sessions, St. Luke Ensembles; Emerson; Joyce Owens, J. H. Smith Choir; Gwendolyn Tripp, Nurses Unit; William Queen; Singing and Praying Band;

Other officer Barbara Fields, Church School superintendent; Leon Carrington, Adult Bible Class; Earl Fields, Male and Female Usher Board; Eleanor Nickens, Junior Ushers; Ruth Rousey, Acolytes; Charles Kelly, United Methodist Men; Lillian Cornish, United Methodist Women; Vivian Morgan, Pastor Parish Relations; Bernice Frazier, Flower Circle; Leon Carrington, Administrative Board; Barton Bond, music chairman; Loretta Wilson, secretary; Roger Prettyman, church business manager; Ruth Rousey, Steward Board chairman; Lillian Cornish and Edward Conaway, certified lay speakers and Naomi Jones, local preacher.

The Christian Unity Prayer luncheon willbe held at the Hilton Inn in Pikesville on Jan. 20, 12:00 until 4 p.m. Ecumenical Covenant Sunday, Jan. 21 is a challenging opportunity for local churches to take the next step beyond prayer for Christian unty.

The ecumenical covenant challenges each church to asses its ecumenical commitment on the local community and state levels, said Rev. N. Ellsworth Bunce, Maryland Churches United executive director.

Rev. N.B. Carrington: shepherd to Union Memorial and 'priest' at the AFRO

Funeral service for the Rev. Napoleon Bonaparte Carrington, 85, were held Jan. 8 at Metropolitan United Methodist Church, 1121 Lanvale St.

Born Dec. 13, 1893 in Baltimore, the Rev. Carrington was the third child of the late George and Estelle Carrington. He died Jan. 3 in Johns Hopkins Hospital.

A man of many talents, Rev. Carrington, who was affectionately known as "NB", was a former superintendent in the pressroom at the AFRO - AMERICAN Newspaper for more than 20 years. He considered himself the "Priest" at the AFRO and is quoted as saying in a December 1962 letter to the late Dr. Carl Murphy, "I will ever be grateful for the spiritual contribution I was able to render to my associates...

"I will ever be grateful for the spiritual contribution I was able to render to my associates.

"I will always count those 21 years at the AFRO the happiest days of my life. I was doing the things I like to do, printing and preaching and each served a valuable complement to the other."

Throughout his childhood, Rev. Carrington appreciated his mother's constant teachings of her own religious beliefs. Both religious and secular education became increasing important to him as he attended and was graduated from public schools in Baltimore.

His excellent after school work at H. E. Houck Company prompted that company to sent Napoleon to New York to attend the School of Graphic Arts and Journalism, from which he was graduated.

In 1913, Rev. Carrington married Miss Jennie Tinsley, shortly after her graduation from Morgan College.

He later married the former Agnes Allen on June 4, 1957 who survives him.

In 1918 Rev. Carrington was called to preach at St. Mark's M. E. Church in New York. He later served as pastor of Asbury Methodist Church in Gettysburg, Pa.; New Market Circuit; the Mount Olvet Methodist Church in Catonsville, Md. and Union Memorial Methodist Church from which charge he retired in June 1968.

After Rev. Carrington's retirement, he did not become inactive but in July 1967, he became associate minister of Metropolitan United Methodist Church where he served until February 1978.

Rev. Carrington was a 32nd degree Mason, secretary of the former Washington Conference, editor- in - chief of its Journal and Minutes; treasurer of the West Baltimore District.

As a member of the Baltimore Conference, he served as district director of the Historical Society; vice president of Baltimore Conference Historical Society, writer of Chapter 13 of the book "How Incredible Methodists", associate dean of the Senior Adult Assembly and trustee of the N. M. Carroll Home for the Aged.

Affable, considerate, dedicated, compassionate, good humored; all describe the man who was Rev. Carrington. Next to serving his God, his chief delight was in his family and in being a "a father to the fatherless."

His final text was Sunday, Dec. 31, 1978 where he was the guest minister at St. Paul United Methodist Church. It was taken from the old hymn, "Thus Far the Lord Has Led Me On" was "Here I Raise Mine Ebenezer."

John H. Murphy III chairman, Board of Directors of the AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers, stated at the last rites, "There were two texts that Reverend used that are quite apropos.

"One was reported in the AFRO June 18, 1966 when he preached his farewell sermon as he retired from Union Memorial Methodist Church.

"Dr. Carrington, using as his text "On Dropping the Pilot and comparing his retirement from the ministry to a ship's pilot, recited what had been accomplished during his 13 years as the church's pastor.

"He (Rev. Carrington) recalld that he inherited his love of the sea from his father, who was a pilot in the British Merchant Marine.

"The Pilot's Job," he said, "is to steer the ship out of port — through the channels — which are sometimes narrow and dangerous until it reaches the open sea. Then he climbs down the ladder and gets into his own pilot boat and returns to shore. . ."

Speaking of the second text Rev. Carrington would at the funeral of many of his AFRO co - workers, "The Last Make Over."

Mr. Murphy said, "The creator never pushes the button until the last make over is perfect.

"Reverend has reached the stage and the creator had need of a new printer for the Heavenly Journal. We will all miss him and hopefully we all someday will get an opportunity to read his new Journal."

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, Charles T. Carrington; one daughter, Mrs. Beatrice C. Myers; two sisters, Mrs. Beatrice Simms and Mrs. Leonora Lane; four grandchildren; one great grandson; one son-in-law, John B. Myers; one daughter-in-law, several cousins.

Among other who gave tributes at the last rites were Dr. Asbury Smith, retired minister United Methodist Church; the Rev. Roscoe Williams, Garrison Boulevard United Methodist Church; the Rev. W. Lous Piel, president, Historical Society; John Coltman, administrator N. M. Carroll Home.

Also, Dr. Marion C. Bascom, Douglas Memorial; the Rev. Reginald Daniels, Madison Avenue Presbyterian.

Pallbearers were Metropolitan United Methodist Men and honorary pallbearers were ministers from the Baltimore Annual Conference and Union Memorial United Meu.

CARRINGTON LAST RITES — Services for the Rev. Napoleon Bonaparte Carrington, 85, were held Jan. 8 at Metropolitan United Methodist Church. The Rev. Carrington was a former superintendent in the pressroom at the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers. He was also a Methodist minister. Pallbearers were William Britt, James Franklin, James Murray, Chester Washington, Lemuel Blake and Robert Brown.
