Carl Cannon to head Metro minority development office

Metro general Manager Theodore Lutz this week announced the appointment of N. L. Carl Cannon as director of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority Office, Minority Development.

CARL CANNON

Cannon, 34, has been director of Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action at George Mason University, Fairfax, Va. for the last two years.

In this capacity, he served as university spokesperson and principal advisor to the governing board and university president on all equal employment opportunity and affirmative action matters.

He was responsible for drafting the university's Affirmative Action Plan as well as developing and coordinating training workshops and serving as chief administrator for programs arising under Titles VI, VII and IX of the Civil Rights Act and the Rehabilitation Act, as amended.

Cannon replaces Charles A. Dowdy, who resigned to accept a position outside the Washington area.

Between 1973 and 1976, Cannon served in a variety of legal and administrative positions with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. His last assignment was as an attorney advisor in the Office of General Counsel.

Cannon holds a juris doctor degree from the George Washington University National Law Center. He is a 1971 graduate of Bethune - Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Fla. with a bachelor of arts degree in business administration.

D.C. area gets HUD housing assistance

The Department of Housing and Urban Development's Washington area office is making available $12,836,000 in contract authority for the Section 8 and Public Housing Programs, which will result in rental subsidies to approximately 2,700 units throughout the Washington metropolitan area (except Charles County, Maryland).

The two assisted housing programs may be used to provide newly constructed, rehabilitated or existing rental units to low and moderate - income households, according to HUD D.C. area manager Terry Chisholm.

The Section 8 Program provides rental assistance which enables elderly and family households to rent units on the private market.

Through the public housing program, HUD provides funds to local housing authorities to build or rehabilitate structures for low - income households. Because HUD subsidizes the development costs for public housing, the authorities may charge a lower rent to the tenant.

In both programs, assisted families pay up to 25 percent of their monthly income for rent. It is estimated that this allocation of funds will provide the following distribution:

Public Housing, 596 units, new construction 1002, elderly 376, and under Section 8, 2184 units, Rehabilitation, 800, and family, 1908.

The funds have been allocated among local jurisdictions substantially in accordance with the Fair Share Housing Plan developed by the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG), and approved by HUD.

Chief justice supports Howard law program

Chief Justice of the United States Warren Burger has contributed $2,000 to Howard University's School of Law to support a program designed to prepare students for trial work.

The personal contribution was made as a result of several discussions between the chief justice and Dean Wiley A. Branton on problems concerning the skills of lawyers in the courtroom.

"The chief justice has a very strong interest in trial advocacy," says Dean Branton.

The chief Supreme Court justice became interested in Howard's trial advocacy program while participating in the School of Law's investiture ceremony for Dean Branton in November.

"The chief justice was pleased to know of my special interest in preparing students for trial work and that I will continue to teach a class in trial advocacy," says Branton, who was appointed dean of the School of Law last January.

Besides the contribution, Chief Justice Burger also plans to speak at the school, according to the dean.
