An ideal school in Northwest Baltimore

Gist Elementary School No. 69 Part I

By Elizabeth M. Oliver
City Editor

This is the beginning of special AFRO editions on the Northwest Baltimore children of various Baltimore public schools. We have selected schools to have special focus because when they can look back and remember and say "We were with us."

Medowell Gist Elementary, the first school, is printed in two parts. Today, PART I. Next week, PART II.

The small school, located at 4230 Granada Ave. in Northwest Baltimore off Coldspring, has been described as an integrated faculty and about 300 black and white youngsters.

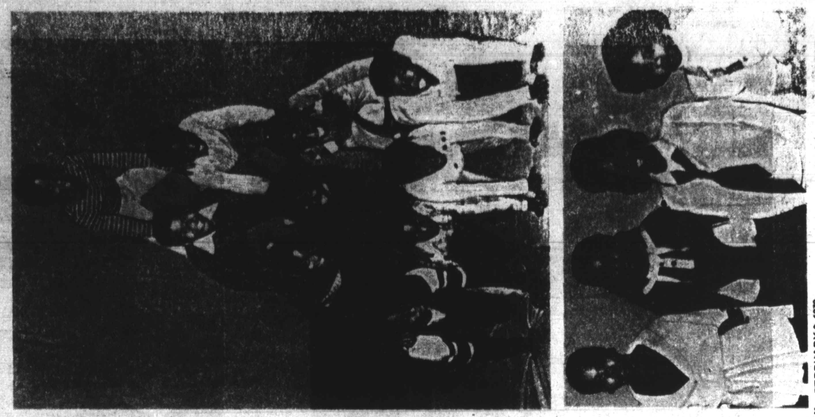
Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, the principal, says Gist Elementary "Searching is serious business."

There is her summary: "We have a very special and pleasant manner, its classroom teachers, three custodians, a nurse and curriculum with the assistance of the administrator and a senior teacher.

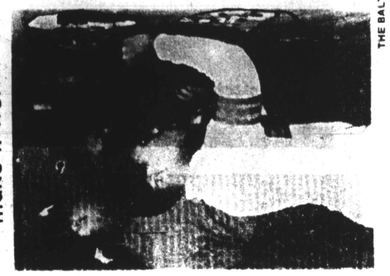
"We are very proud of the cooperation that we receive from the parents and community. We have a motto "Together we can make it work - is in keeping with the four-way partnership between our PTA, staff and teachers.

"Our goal is educational excellence for each child. Each day we strive to provide a rich and educational experience possible so that our children may develop to their fullest potential and be beneficial to them all their lives.

"We are committed and believe in our ability in helping each child make maximum growth and develop and maintain a positive self-image about himself and others.



Together, we can make it work



PART II coming next week
