The AFRO-American

For Home Delivery Phone

728-8200

—Bobby Cheeks

During the rent strike, approximately $6,000 in rent monies was turned into an escrow account set up by the Welfare Rights Organization.

Of the $6,000, $2,440 has already been paid to a court established escrow account, pending sanatatory repairs to be made by the housing authority of Baltimore City.

The tenants have received $1,559 in the form of rent abatements and damages.

Approximately one third of the money has been paid to the housing authority. Cheeks pointed out that this money reflected rents for houses where satisfactory repairs were made following the filing of complaint letters by tenants at the beginning of the rent strike.

Many of the repairs had not been attended to for years.

The effectiveness of the strike effort in forcing the housing authority to make repairs was also reflected in the testimony of Louis Weber, a maintenance man at O'Donnell Heights.

Weber testified that the number of work orders issued at O'Donnell Heights had more than tripled since June 1978.

"Our aim is to improve housing for the people of Baltimore City and the state of Maryland. We will join with anyone in pursuing this common goal," Cheeks said.

"We don't consider our relationship with the HCD or the housing authority of Baltimore City an adversary one.

"We are eager to join hands with these agencies in efforts to get money for improved housing for poor people. But we want everyone to realize that we are dead serious about our aim."

Lightfoot gains support for City Jail post

Interim City Jail Warden Calvin Lightfoot has been endorsed for the permanent job by a government employees association.

A spokesman for Local 44 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said Tuesday the group believes Lightfoot has the experience and ability to handle the jail, which is under fire for overcrowding and unhealthy conditions.

The local represents about 250 correctional officers and about 150 civilian employees at the Fallsway facility.

"We feel Mr. Lightfoot is well qualified. . . and has the experience, knowledge and leadership qualities the position demands," said Joseph Pratt, a correctional officer who is also a spokesman for the union local.

"We feel that his appointment as warden would be beneficial to Baltimore City, the jail and the community."

Lightfoot has also received support from other jail personnel. A petition calling for the selection of a black warden was circulated among jail employees and received more than 120 signatures.

The jail board named Lightfoot as interim head of the facility recently after Gordon C. Kamka the former warden, was named by Gov. Harry Hughes to serve as director of the state Department of Safety and Correctional Services.

H. Mebane Turner, the jail board president, recently stated that the board intends to advertise for a new warden and interview at least five possible applicants before making a decision.

The jail is now faced with a number "of problems, including a federal decree to make certain renovations and to stop putting two inmates in cells designed to hold one by July 1.

Jail officials are also faced with budget deficits and orders from the city Health Department to clean up the kitchen and living quarters.

Battle for NAACP 'same as always'

The Washington branch of the NAACP on Sunday installed more than 20 newly elected officers and board members including president, Edward Hailes Sr. and board chairman, James Campbell.

The tone of the ceremonies, held at the Florida Avenue Baptist Church, was one of renewed commitment to the goals and ideals upon which the organization was first founded.

Dr. Montique Cobb, NAACP national president, made opening remarks, noting that the problems faced by the country's oldest civil rights organization are "the same as they have always been."

He observed that although the population of the country is increasing, technological advances are making skilled job less available.

He read his letter to D.C. School Superintendent Vincent Reed proposing that the new Dunbar High School athletic field be named in honor of noted sports advocate Edward Henderson.

"No more fitting name could be chosen," Dr. Cobb said of Henderson, who in 1929 authored a book entitled "The Negro in Sports."

Dr. Cobb added that he is optimistic that the NAACP will overcome its present financial difficulties.

Before administering the oath to what he called a good cross section of the community, Superior Court Judge John D. Fauntleroy stated that geologist figures convinced that all civil rights battles have not been fought or won; that they might give the "alarm" warnings to support the civil rights effort; and that they must come out in support of the NAACP in that fight.

In closing remarks, Rev. Hailes reasserted that the issues of the day are "the same as the 60s, although not as clear cut."

He outlined plans to kick off a drive to bring the D.C. chapter membership to 15,000 by the end of May, noting that current membership is only 2,052.

Also planned is a team that will monitor local media to offer suggestions for improvements where needed and the publication of a report to be called "The State of Washington, D.C. Through the Eyes of the NAACP."

Other emphasis is to be placed on youth unemployment which hovers around 40 percent, according to Hailes. The board is scheduled to meet on the second Tuesday, Feb. 13 and the next general membership meeting is set for Feb. 21. Plans for the membership drive is to begin in March.

Black History Month celebration slated

The Community Services Administration will celebrate Black History Month with two weeks of seminars, lectures, art and music programs from Feb. 5 through Feb. 15, Graciela (Grace) Olivarez, director of CSA has announced.

"We are planing special emphasis this year," Olivarez remarked, "on the histories of the black and the Hispanic cultures and the crossing of the paths of these two historically dynamic groups.

"We are most fortunate to have with us during the celebration, distinguished Black historians and scholars, exhibits of African and Afro-American art and musical programs showcasing Black history."

Guests include Charles Walker Thomas, president of the Association of the Study of Afro-American Life & History who will open the ceremonies at 10 a.m. Feb. 5, at CSA Headquarters in Washington, and an exhibit honoring Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute which this year is celebrating a century of service in education and research for black Americans.

Program slated for Handicapped

The Permanent Diaconate Program of the Catholic Archdiocese of Washington has established an "Office of Referral and Service to the Handicapped and Addicted" (ORSHA), at 1200 Varnum St., N.E.

The Office serves as a clearing house where any handicapped-person may be referred to resources needed. There is no fee for these services.

Rev. Mr. Paul Pernecky, a Permanent Deacon and President of this program said, "We hope to serve the visually impaired, the hearing impaired, the physically disabled, the mentally retarded, the mentally ill, the alcohol addicted, the drug addicted, battered persons and any other persons with handicapping conditions."

This 24 hour referral service will be operated by trained personel.

For more information, call Rev. Mr. Paul Pernecky - (202) 269 - 0800 For those who are deaf - Teletype No. 269 - 0801.

—Teen shot

Daryl's twin brother David, described him as a "quiet teenager" who loved basketball. He said, "My brother would go to the Arlington Presbyterian Recreation center every Monday and Wednesday night to play ball and would come home at 10 p.m."

Around 11 p.m. Daryl's family became upset and called the police because they had not heard from him. "The police never called us because Daryl did not have any identification on him and we told by a friend that Daryl had been shot," relatives told the AFRO.

Police have no motive for the killing and are still investigating the case. Funeral arrangements were not complete at AFRO presstime.

Police report they are looking for three males between 16-18 years old, all wearing skull caps, seen running south in the 4800 block of Dennrose Avenue after the assault.
