Columbia Capers

By Pinnie L. Ross

There are many projects and programs in many cities that are doing marvelous things to help touch the lives of residents in their community. On the other hand, there are community people who would like to start a project or program but just don't have the seed money to do it.

In the new city of Columbia, there is a foundation called the Columbia Foundation: a charitable foundation serving the Howard County Columbia community by providing funds which fill an unmet community need (seed funding), improve the operation or expand the services of an existing organization which is serving the community.

The Foundation concept grew out of the institutional planning for the new city of Columbia. The Foundation emerged out of the conviction that the American community needs to develop and organize necessary resources in order to achieve its fullest aspirations.

The Foundation's first contribution came from the Columbia Bank and Trust Company which gives annually a percentage of its net profit to the community through the Foundation process. Each year, individuals and businesses join the Bank in making their annual contribution to the Foundation.

These funds are in turn distributed to carefully considered proposals and monitored by the Foundation board and staff.

The foundation is tax exempt as a charitable foundation. It is registered with the Internal Revenue Service as a 501 C(3) organization. Your contribution is totally deductible from income taxes.

Such projects and programs have received seed funding including the Howard County Sheltered Workshops, $10,000; Family Life Center, $7,000; Audrey Robbins Emergency Shelter program, $1,500; Grass Roots, Inc., $1,000; Women's Center, $3,000; Howard County Commission on the Arts, $15,000; Humanities Institution Columbia Interfaith Housing, $5,000; The Mental Health Association, $1,900; Wilde Lake High School program, $10,000; National Recovery Industries, Inc., $3,000; Psychiatric Day Care of Columbia;

And, Community Board; Little Theatre Movement (Rutena Blake); Rape Crisis Center; Youth Employment Service; Columbia Forum (our own Celonia Walden was the first chairperson and she brought Floyd McKissly as guest speaker); National Junior Tennis League; Meals on Wheels; Lindwood Children's Center; and others.

There are 26 members on the Board of Trustees. I am proud to say that there are five blacks who help to make decisions as to who gets the seed money. Celonia Walden is a five year member. Leala Dorsey, vice - president of NAACP, is a three year member. Others are Llewellyn Woolford, Roberta Briscoe, and Thomas R. McGowan.

Thought for Today:

A man's gift makes room for him and brings him before great men.

Proverbs 18:16

Partyline

Out at Social Security in Woodlawn there are two guys who are the "Doctors of Disco." They are Gene Goodall (better known at Goodie) and Louis Nickson. If you're having a party disco style, these disco masters are the ones to call.

They liven up disco scenes for all the party people at Social Security as well as some other folks.

Recently, they handled the music for a disco cabaret given by the Masonic Men of '54. Some 300 people came and boogied down to the latest in disco music.

Goodie and Louis really put it all together for you. They can be seen putting it together every Wednesday and Thursday at Brice's Hill Top Inn.

Coming up this weekend . . . Omegas hold their annual Mardi Gras at Martin's West tonight, Friday.

Sunday is the anniversary dinner dance celebration of Chi Delta Mu at Blue Crest.

Few individuals have had a more humble entry into life than Dr. George Washington Carver. Fewer still have made more significant and lasting contributions.
Born of slave parents about 1860 on a tiny farm near Diamond Grove, Miss., Dr. Carver built a boyhood interest in plants and rocks into a 50-year career applying scientific principles to farming.
He worked his way through Iowa State College as a cook, a janitor [illegible] in 1894, he accepted [illegible] but soon was [illegible] Washington, and joined the [illegible] in 1896.
Remaining at the [illegible] in 1943, Dr. Carver revolutionized [illegible] creating more than 300 [illegible] from peanut stems. More important [illegible] taught farmers how to make the land [illegible] themselves and [illegible].
His legacy is felt throughout the food industry today, and, we at ITT Continental Baking Company are inspired and challenged by his deeds. We are proud to acknowledge him as a symbol of the many, many other black men and women born in urban or rural poverty who rose to provide leadership in science, industry, government and the arts. They give us all hope. Like Dr. George Washington Carver, they do daily life.

Sunday's Child
We never needed the Black church more.
Our communities are in a turmoil. The elements that destroy human lives are running rampant; plaguing our young people with crime, prostitution, drugs and lack of discipline. The greatest challenge that faces us as a people today is how to communicate a sense of moral pride to children who see so much temptation. A good place to begin is where we started almost 200 years ago.
Our Church. For generations, the Black church has been a powerful influence in our lives. A place where Black people could come together to build strong moral foundations. Our parents and grandparents went to Sunday school where they learned solid values and leadership.
This strength brought us through slavery; led us on civil rights movements and headed local voter registration drives. Today, it can be a positive influence in our young people's lives and in our communities.
Human Energy—America's Greatest Resource. People are America's greatest untapped resource. The young minds that we reach today provide the real energy that runs this country tomorrow. But if our churches are going to help our children, we have to care enough about those institutions now. We have to help them survive. The Black church needs us to come together as families, as friends, as brothers and sisters. If we care as much for our children as we say we do, we'll open the church's doors for them.
