CETA Funds to be for programs to help women and organizations

Women have a special interest in the plans now being developed by the 460 state and local government units which operate CETA programs.

These are the Comprehensive Employment and Training Plans for the 1980 fiscal year, which must be submitted to U.S. Department of Labor regional offices by August 15.

Before that date, under CETA, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, as revised and extended by Congress last . . . the plans must be submitted to local government officials and the public for review and comment.

Under CETA, women, single parents and displaced homemakers are now expressly identified as groups facing serious labor market disadvantages.

Five million dollars has been set aside for national demonstration programs and grants to prime sponsors (the 460 state and local governments) to provide training supportive services expanding job opportunities for displaced homemakers under Title III of CETA.

Displaced homemakers are also to be given special emphasis by the prime sponsors under Titles II and VI of the reauthorized Act.

In an effort to make future CETA programs more responsive to the needs of the women, the Labor Department's Women's Bureau is focusing on action to increase women's involvement in the total CETA system . . . as users of services, as decision - makers in the planning and grant award process now underway, and as deliveries of programs and services.

The bureau recently distributed information of kits on CETA, as reauthorized, to some 1,000 women's groups . . agencies erving women, women business owners, and others . . to make them aware of the potential benefits for women under the new law and to urge them to establish close contact with the prime sponsors to indicate their interest in participating in all phases of CETA.

The kit includes: The final regulations for Titles I, II, VI and VII of CETA: sections of the final rules and regulations which have particular significance for women's organizations, businesses owned by women and women in general; a prime sponsor planning schedule for the development and submission of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Plans for fiscal year 1980, and an overview of the reauthorization legislation; a summary of how women can participate in decision making in CETA, and a directory of State Employment and Training Services Councils.

In an effort to increase employment and training opportunities for displaced homemakers in particular, the Women's Breau had joined with the Bureau of Occupational and Adult Education in the U.S. Office of Education to develop a guide of components and activities under existing Federal and State laws which can be coordinated and linked to use available resources more fully.

WASHINGTON

Jack and Jill, Washington, D.C. Chapter, romped o'er hill and dale at Smokey Glen Farm, Gaithersburg, recently and contrary to the nursery rhyme, Jack did not fall down and break his crown! Nor did Jill come tumbling after. The sprawling, manicured hills of Smokey Glen made a perfect setting for the annual family picnic of the 99 Jack and Jill members, children, husbands and a few invited guests, totally approximately 350.

Nobody had to send Jack or Jill to "fetch a pail of water" because the soft drinks were piped in continuously right on the spot. Dinner, including fresh baked bread and pies; broiled chicken - the works were prepared in big, covered kettles right on the spot also.

There was baseball, volleyball, rides in a horse - drawn wagon of Hay, pony rides for the little ones, horse shoes and everything the heart could desire on a picnic. The whole event was the ultimate in picnic experiences.

Geralyn Wicker as chair with Marilyn Funderburk as co - chair plus a committee composed of Fay Webber, Alma Brown, Roselyn Epps, Johnnie Brown, Claudia Rayford, Charlye Malloy, Sarah Brown, Betty Strudwick and Linda Cropp got the thing together - a project of the family Planning Committee which every year in the spring plans such as outing and at Christmas hosts the Twelfth Night Party for the adults only.

Lorethea Davis is president of the Washington, D.C. Chapter. She, husband Howard and their children were there. I shared a table for dinner with Dr. Pearl Boschulte (she's past national president of the organization) and Councilwoman Charlene Jarvis.

Among the others with all or some of their families were: Earlene Cobb, Roscoe Dellums, Hattie Brown, Linda Cropp, Dr. Corolynne Carr, Charlotte Corbin, Sarah Brown, Dr. Roselyn Epps, Marilyn Funderburk who was tooting her horn about the upcoming Lord and Taylor event; Jeanne George, Brenda Gladden, Joan Holton, Wilma Greenfield, Naomi Heggans, Lois Hopson, Dana Jackson, Joanne Jackson, Sylvia Keene.
