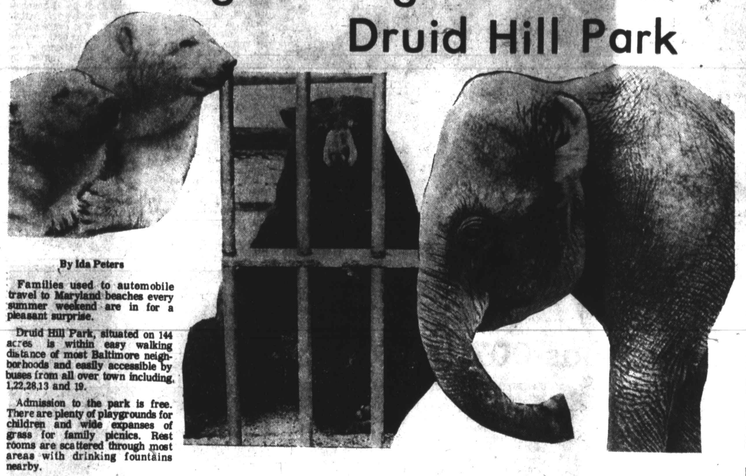
For a gasless good time ... Druid Hill Park



By Ida Peters

Families used to automobile travel to Maryland beaches every summer weekend are in for a pleasant surprise.

Druid Hill Park, situated on 144 acres is within easy walking distance of most Baltimore neighborhoods and easily accessible by buses from all over town including, 1,22,28,13 and 19.

Admission to the park is free. There are plenty of playgrounds for children and wide expanses of grass for family picnics. Rest rooms are scattered through most areas with drinking fountains nearby.

Also free parking areas and it is now permissible to use your own outdoor grills.

The main entrance to Druid Hill Park is at Gwynns Falls Parkway and McCulloh Streets. For first time visitors follow the Children's Zoo signs if you wish to visit the Hippo House and take your children into their own special Zoo.

Here admission is 75 cents for adults and 25 cent for children. Aside from balloons, candy, hot dogs and souvenirs, your admission price may be your only expense.

Families may bring their own picnic lunches, fill up the kids in front and spend the whole day just sightseeing.

For tired parents and grandparents, the easy, painless way to see the Zoo is to take the inexpensive Safari Train. The conductor gives a lecture on each animal family and its habitat.

Little children will enjoy the Merry - Go Round or the Zoo Train which has a delightful scary tunnel.

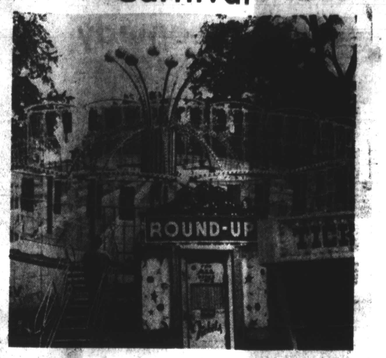
If your money is short and you want to avoid the Children's Zoo, enter the Zoo from the Druid Park Drive side. The entrance price is the same. Time your visit every Saturday and Sunday to reach the Elephant House by 2 p.m.

Here Henry Bell the trainer, puts his two charges Pendu and Vale through some wonderful antics. He even puts his head in the Elephant's trunk. This is better than the Circus and young people will stand and watch entranced.

Visit the outdoor Bear cages and hike up the hill to the Monkey House. From there, you'll get a breath - taking view of the Zoo and Baltimore.

For first time visitors, it's best to take the Zoo in small doses. It's so huge, you'll have more fun if you rest and walk. And, there are plenty of benches to rest weary feet.

Carnival



Mondawmin thrills-chills

The Reithoffer Carnival is now in Mondawmin thru Sunday. This week more than 30 trucks using more than 100 people have been setting up super rides, super slides, a Twister, Swinger, a Maze, you maeit, they have it.

Plus all over the parking lot located near the Gynns Falls entrances are booths for candy apples, ice cream. . . you name it, you can buy it.

Entrances to the Midway is free, but you have to buy tickets to get on the rides. This is the same carnival you've seen at RFK Stadium, Capitol Plaza and Marlow Heights.

One of their most exciting rides is called the "Super Delux Himalaya." It's about the size of a an apartment building, over two stories tall, nearly a hundred feet wide and deep.

This ride tantalyzes its riders with motion, sight and sound. Seventy - two passengers at a time, spen forward and backward, round and round, as light flash in time to a wave of music.

In addition, there's a Super Slide and if that scares you there's a Merry - Go Round.

Carnival is a fun for the family and anyone can have a good time for Grandma to toddler.

Boy Scout weekend

This Saturday and Sunday only, June 30 and July 1, veterinarians, a forester, zoo curators and keepers, natural historians and scientists will be at six stations at the Baltimore Zoo and will answer questions on wildlife, conservation and all related programs outlined in Scout merit-badge booklets. The public is invited and free zoo tours will be given. Hours, 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday; 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Sounds in Inner Harbor

The Dukes of Dixieland bring the best in New Orleans jazz to the Inner Harbor when Salute to American Music continues its Tuesday night series of free concerts on July 3 at 8 p.m.

Established in the 50s, the Dukes city of New Orleans, have appeared with such luminaries as Ella Fitzgerald, Peggy Lee, and Tony Orlando.

Established in the 50's, the Dukes of Dixieland have established an international reputation for upholding the tradition of New Orleans jazz. Today their repertoire includes such staples as "Bourbon Street Parade," which the Dukes introduced, as well as original renditions of contemporary tunes, ballads, and songs from the swing era.

Sponsored by Maryland National Bank and the City of Baltimore, all Salute to American Music concerts are offered to the public free of charge. Blankets and beach chairs are suggested at the Inner Harbor as seating is limited. For more information, contact the Baltimore Office of Promotion and Tourism at (301) 752 - 8632.

Jazz in Atlantic City

It's almost that time for the most incredible, unbelievable, sensations, biggest jazz festival in the history of New Jersey, The Atlantic City Jazz Festival, July 6, 7, 8 at Gardner's Basin in Atlantic City, N.J.

Street and Street Productions have arranged for buses to leave from the Sphinx Club, Left Bank Jazz Society and many other places in Baltimore and Washington.

Nancy Wilson head the opening acts on Friday, July 6. Other greats appearing are Roy Ayers, Freddie Hubbard, Max Roach, Herbie Mann and Stanley Turrentine.

Saturday, July 27, Sarah Vaughn leads off followed by Art Blakey, Mongo Santamaria, Hugh Masekela, Buddy Rich and his big band, and Lonnie Liston Smith.

Sunday, July 8 there will be Ray Charles, the Ray Charles Orchestra and the Raelets, Betty Carter Maynard Ferguson, McCoy Tyner and Dexter Wansel.

Saturday 1 p.m. is billed as "The Reunion" with Joe Williams, Earl 'Fatha' Hines, Damita Jo and Gerry Mulligan Big Band and Anita O'Day.

Cloisters

Two small and furry creatures have joined The Cloisters Children's Museum's animal menagerie, and are ready to greet children, starting this weekend.

The two small bunnies are among the group of animals which can be seen at the museum. Children who visit the museum are also invited to participate in any one of the many crafts workshops.

The museum is open free to the public weekdays, 10 - 4:30 and weekends 12 - 4. Call 823 - 2550 for further information.

Street Car Museum

The Baltimore Streetcar Museum has a "Cool Off and Ride" service 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday until Labor Day.

"Cool Off and Ride" was a popular pasttime on summer evenings of the 1930s, when families would climb aboard a streetcar for a refreshing ride at the end of a hot Baltimore day. The two open summer cars in the Museum collection, built in 1896 and 1902, will specialize in this revival of "Cool Off and Ride," with other cars operating depending upon weather and demand.

Admission to the Baltimore Streetcar Museum is free; fares for rides are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children ages 4 - 11. Second rides are available at half - fare. There is plenty of free, well-lighted parking available adjacent to the Museum, located at 1901 Falls Road, just north of Lafayette Avenue.

Sunday operations are from 1 to 5 p.m.

Cross Roads Lounge

There seems to be a proliferation of women bar owners these days, which is a good thing. The latest is the New Cross Roads Lounge at Reisterstown Rd. and Pennsylvania Ave.

New owner is Beverly Archer, who is ably assisted by Shirley Pinkney in running the place.

They reopened the completely refurbished lounge the first of the month, and says Shirley, she's crossing her fingers, hoping the place will be a success.

It has all the ingredients going for it, with a new circular bar dominating the center of the place, with comfortable bar stools.

Dorothy Johnson was the barmaid on duty when we dropped in last Wednesday, and told me she has been on the job exactly two weeks. So indeed, everything is brand new and worthy of being checked out.

Speakeasy

Formerly the Brothers 2, this is a two-level entertainment center with disco the main attraction.

Upstairs room is called the Cosmic Lounge, which is presided over by Mrs. Carr, with Melvin and Gigolo alternating as deejays.

Incidently, the spot is just about the first in town to devote itself to disco — many years ago, and has continually upgraded. For example, there is a dress code — no jeans are allowed.

Luke Durant chatted with us recently, to express his displeasure at our citing the element of hangerons who frequent the area.

According to Luke, the side of the street on which the Speaeasy is located, is clean, and he had his partner's intend to keep it that way.

"After all," said Luke, "We've been in business in this location for 10 years, trying to make it, and it has been a hard struggle."

We apaiud their efforts, and hasten to point out that Wednesdays through Sundays it's disco times at the Speakeasy from 8 p.m. 'til 2 a.m. and coming up in a couple of weeks will be a new thing. They will incorporate a jazz night in the planning.

While citing strouble spots where hanging on the corner detracts customers from patronizing a place, one of the main places is at the corner of Liberty Hgts Ave., and Garrison Blvd.

Ann Bush
The Place

Stephanie Clayton
Hassan's Bar

It's doubly difficult to keep the sector clear since this area has a bust stop on one side, and a battery of telephone booths on the other.

Jim Parker who has the business on the corner, tries valiantly to keep things under control, but this is one of the busiest intersections in the city, and although patrolled by police on a regular basis, the problem continues.

Mostly for Music

The Clifford Jordan quartet will be at the Famous for the Left Bank Jazz Society, with Clifford on tenor sax, Barry Harris, piano; Art Davis, bass, and Philly Joe Jones, drums.

While Clifford is known mainly as a mainstream bop tenor man, his days with Max Roach and Charlie Mingus gives his work the upbeat men to put into focus for today's music scene.

Barry Harris is a frequent visitor to Baltimore, and of course, is from theat Detroit school of bop pianists — one of the best.

At The Bandstand, it's tenor man Dave Schnitter, formerly of the Jazz Messengers, along with Don Waters, piano, Andy McKee, bass, and Jimmi Johnsun, drums.

The Sportsmen's Lounge will have Gaynell Colburn and a group on Friday and Saturday nights, with Dude Brown scheduled to head a quartet for the Sunday night set.

Incidently, jazz lovers are missing a bet on Tuesday night, for Eddie Gough along with Chico and Chico provide live music that really cooks, and each week, some of the top local musicians have sat in.

A new club is about to open out on York Rd. in the 4300 block. It will be called Full Moon and feature the Marvin Cabell trio on weekends and Mondays.

The site is the former "Blues for Mr. Charlie" spot, and as usual, no alcoholic beverages will be sold. There will be an admission charge.
