Fran V. Tartar named an Outstanding Young Woman of America

Miss Fran V. Tartar

Miss Fran V. Tartar of Dover, Delaware, formerly of Baltimore, has been named one of the Outstanding Young Women of America by Outstanding Americans of Montgomery, Ala.

Miss Tartar graduated from Morgan State University majoring in French and German.

She did graduate work in French at Atlanta University in Atlanta, Ga. and at Temple University in Philadelphia, Pa. She received a Master degree in German from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Miss Tarter was the recent recipient of a Fulbright Award. She, along with other teachers of German, studied Culture and Civilization during the sumer of 1979 at the University of Bonn, and in Berlin. She travelled extensively in East and West Germany in connection with the program.

While in Baltimore, she attended the Sharp St. United Methodist Church.

Miss Tarter teaches German and French at Delaware State College in Dover, Del., where she is actively involved in community affairs. She formerly taught the same languages at South Carolina State College in Orangeburg, S.C.

While at Morgan State University, Miss Tartar received the Julius Hoffman Award for excellence in German and while at the University of Md. was a graduate teaching assistant in the Germanic Language Dept.

Miss Tartar is the daughter of Mrs. Nelly Matthews Tartar, retired Baltimore elementary teacher, and the late George M. Tartar.

campus. Eighteen years later a campaign was initiated to visit high school and college campuses to encourage the pursuit of higher education, then in 1930 to campaign on the theme of voteless people is a hopeless people. The campaign was designed to teach Blacks the importance of voting.

"If I can only get us to understand the importance of getting into the Legislator Halls" he said. "We are part of a sick nation under death and won't take medicine."

Speaking of the unequal system of justice he mentioned two men if they were black would be underneath the jail, referring to Mandell, former Governor of Maryland, and Ted Agnew.

Again, speaking of his "great fraternity and the past brothers who have deceased, making Alpha's name worth repeating, and those who had given meaning to moral deeds, scholarships and have for all mankind, he spoke of W. E. Debois, Adam Powell, Whitney Young, and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., "The Alphas have been in the forefront for 73 years in making the family the cornerstone of existence."

He stressed that our fathers' fathers helped to build this country. Benjamin Banneker came from Maryland, and the Murphy's, Mitchell's and Jacksons came later.

He praised the state of Maryland because of the division over slavery. He mentioned Mason and Jermine Dixon who drew the dividing line called Mason-Dixon Line, and all of the noted civil rights fighters from this state.

"It is important for us to know who we are, what our heritage is, and how much of America's Rock there is. I want a piece of the rock."

He continued, "This nation is great because it took from us 244 years of free land in the building of its foundation.

He urged his Alpha brothers to keep on doing the great work, he said "Alpha means nothing unless we are going to work to make this nation line up to its commitment of more than 200 years ago.

Zetas to observe Founder's Day

The Alpha Zeta Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority Inc. is planning an exciting day to observe the 60th birthday of its sorority.

The celebration will bring together members of the chapter, other Zetas and friends.

The event will be held at 12 noon on Saturday, Jan. 19, 1980 at La Fontaine Bleu, 3107 Erdman Avenue.

The keynote speaker is Dr. Winifred Massaquoi, the Education Counselor, Embassy of Liberia. She is also a Zeta.

The theme for this occasion is "Identifying the Black Woman's Challenges for the 80's."

A display and exhibit will highlight the accomplishments and hobbies of Alpha Zeta members.

Dr. Elizabeth Fran Johnson is chairwoman and Ms. Sandra East is Basileus of Alpha Zeta Chapter.

she told the assemblage. "Education is still the way."

Dr. Koontz stated that the dream of Martin Luther King can inspire because we know what can be done when people want to make it happen.

Her concluding challenge was that "You and I must get a dream that makes us care more than ever before, knowing that each of us has not yet done all that is possible. We've not yet put our energies in maybe the right place to make something happen.

This affair is sponsored by the YMCA of the Greater Baltimore Area, of which Richard M. Kelly is president.

Co-sponsoring groups included the King's Landing Women's Service Club, Bettye Lindsay, president, and the Jeffrey Fund.

Baltimore City Mayor William Donald Schaefer and Baltimore County Executive Donald P. Hutchinson were honorary chairmen in attendance.

The King breakfast was arranged by a steering committee, representing a cross-section of residents in the Baltimore metropolitan area. Co-chairmen were Supreme Bench Judge Robert B. Watts and WBAL-TV executive J. Sydney King.

Coordinating the affair for the past five years has been Alonzo Paul Moss, associate general executive emeritus of the Baltimore Y, now a director of the Continuing Education Department at Community College of Baltimore.

Mr. Moss was master of ceremonies for the breakfast, assisted by Judge Watts.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. Agnes M. Alston, associate minister, Gillis Memorial Christian Community Church.

Welcoming remarks were given by Mrs. Bettye Lindsay, president of the King's Landing Women's Service Club. Greetings were extended by Ethan A. Stenger, chairman of the Board, YMCA of the Greater Baltimore Area.

Introduction of special guests and acknowledgements was done by J. Sydney King, director, ty Services, WBAL.

Inspirational music was provided by the Dunbar High School Choir, under the direction of Hugh W. Carey.

Among their selections were 'Joy in the Morning,' 'Honour to the Dying Lamb,' 'Hush,' and 'Kumbaya.'

Introduction of Dr. Koontz was by Mrs. Bernice S. White, Office of Governmental Affairs, Social Security Administration.

During the program, Mr. Moss announced that a sub-committee, headed by Penny Love of Hopkins, had completed plans for the creation of the Martin Luther King Scholarship Award for youngsters in grades 7 through 10.

Details of the contest were distributed to breakfast guests who have been invited to nominate the 15 winners to be announced at the 1981 breakfast.

In turn members of the committee turned the tables on Mr. Moss and presented him a handsome plaque commending him for his committement, untiring efforts and dedicated service to the program.

Bernice White, the program chairman, also received accolades during the breakfast when Moss noted in the audience the new commissioner of Social Security Administration, William J. Driver, and advised him of the "superior talents" and "outstanding community contributions" of Mrs. White.

Attending the breakfast was a cross-section of Baltimore, people from all walks of life — politicians, teachers, ministers, government workers, city and county officials.

Father Edward Miller, pastor of St. Bernadine's Catholic Church rendered the benediction which concluded an especially inspiring morning in memory of the late great man — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.
