Volunteer spring, summer conservation jobs available

The Student Conservation Association, Inc. is still accepting applications for its spring and summer High School Work Programs and for its summer college-aged Park and Forest Assistant Program.

These national programs will place 850 young people in volunteer positions in over 70 national parks and forests, and other public and private conservation and recreation areas in the United States.

The deadline for receipt of applications for the spring High School Program has been extended from the original Feb. 1 deadline to Feb. 15.

High School Work Groups, open to young men and women 16 to 18 years old, offer group work and recreation experiences of three or four weeks. Volunteers participate in groups of 10 to 12, under skilled adult leadership.

Two or three weeks are devoted to conservation work and the remaining time is spent hiking and exploring the area. Each group is composed of both men and women, and includes participants from all over the United States.

Work assignments often include tasks such as trail maintenance revegetation, boundary fencing and shelter and bridge construction. Groups live in tent camps during the project. Work projects and campsites are usually located in the back country.

Although volunteers receive no salary, the program does provide supervision, food and group equipment. Participants provide their personal equipment i.e. backpack, sleeping bag, personal items and transportation to the area and the return trip home.

SCA offers some financial assistance to those who cannot meet the total cost of travel and personal equipment.

In the Park and Forest Assistant Program, college-aged men and women spend between eight and twelve weeks performing duties similar to those of professional Park and Forest Service personnel. The assignments are made on an individual basis. Jobs range from giving interpretive programs for park visitors to assisting rangers in back country patrol. Park and Forest Assistants are not involved in law enforcement duties.

Like high school participants, Park and Forest Assistants receive no salary. The program, however; does provide housing and a grant to cover travel expenses to the area, the return trip and living expenses.

Last year 314 young men and women participated in the high school program. More than 450 served as Park and Forest assistants.

In 1980 the Association plans to offer over 450 positions in the Park and Forest Assistant Program and about 400 in the High School Program.

College-aged persons who wish a list of specific Student Conservation Program positions and appleation forms may write to the national office at P.O. Box 550c, Charlestown, New Hampshire, 03603.

High School-aged applicants who would like to know what programs are available to them and who would also like an application should write to the Student Conservation Association at P.O. Box 550b, Charlestown, New Hampshire, 03603. The telephone number is (603) 826-5206.

Pets need winter friends

The Humane Society of United States advises that dogs feet need special attention in the snow and icy weather in an area where the streets and sidewalks are spread with rock salt.

The defrosting chemicals can cause irritation and burning of the pads if the feet aren't rinsed after each walk. Also, don't allow your pet to lick his feet before the rinsing because the chemicals will burn and irritate the tonque.

The HSUS warns that warm engines in parked cars may attract cats seeking shelter from the elements. To startle the cats out of these unsafe hiding places, honk the horn or hit the hood before starting the car.

In addition, beware of leaking antifreeze. Its sweet taste is irresistable to cats, but poisonous.

Winter is hard on the birds, too. Take an extra piece of toast, break it up and throw it outside for the birds. Pieces of fat from meat can be used as suet. Remember, once you start feeding the birds, you must continue all the winter.

Call once. And for all.
