naturally fuzzy hair and forever pleasant manner.

After a 16-hour day, as Attorney Smith remarked, "He had not changed."

Possessing a remarkable memory for faces and names, the brilliant young man who seems wise beyond his years, seemed to know each guest he greeted. Of special note was his warm handshake and talk with a young man who had come before him when he was on the District bench, a person with bright eyes and hopeful look who had been set on the right path and who is now successfully helping others who have had brushes with the law.

Judge Bell said to persons gathered around him, "I'm proud of this young man and I want him to come see me and keep in touch with me. He is a fine example."

The new associate judge ranked first in his Dunbar High Schoolclass and second in the Morgan State University class of 1966. He made exceptional records at Harvard University Law School and was graduated with honors.

As an attorney on the Baltimore staff of Piper and Marburry Law Firm, Judge Bell served as the Provident Hospital labor consultant. During the reception he also told of his confinement at the hospital when he suffered pneumonia and found it to be better than anywhere else."

In a short speech he thus had to get in a punch for the institution established for black citizens in 1894 and still of great service and very necessary in the black community".

According to Carroll Henson who headed the affair and serves as Provident's public relations chief, Judge Bell's presence on the board has helped Provident maintain its tradition as one of the oldest, largest, non-profit, private health institutions. In addition to Mr. Henson, present also were Dr. Oakley Saunders vice-president and director Medical Affairs; Col. Arthur Hudguns, vice-president of Support Services; Vernon Washington, director of Personnel; Miss Doris C. Rice, assistant vice president for professional Services and Special Projects;

Also E. Gaines Lansey, a board member; Dr. Wayne Kong, director of Reserahe, Grants and Contracts Development; Judge William Murphy, member of the board; Mrs. Sarah Dildy, director of Security and Safety; Charles Tildon, former member of the board.

Mental Health slates annual legislative dinner

The Mental Health Association of Maryland will hold its annual Legislative Dinner on Jan. 30, at the Annapolis Hilton Inn at 7 p.m. following a reception at 6 p.m.

Herbert Pardes, M.D., director of the National Institute of Mental Health, will be the keynote speaker and he will describe how proposed changes and new developments in mental health programs at federal and state levels will affect future services for the nation's mentally ill.

The public is invited and reservations, at $13.C0 per person, can be made by calling the Association at 235-1178.

The dinner program is part of day-long activites planned by the Mental Health Association to acquaint state legislators, health officials and interested citizens with the organization's legislative goals.

This year the Association is working for Maryland General Assembly passage of bills that would extend health insurance coverage to residents of psychiatric halfway houses, establish an advocacy program for the mentally ill and improve mental health care for children and for the hearing impaired.

Double-ring ceremony

Palmer Park puts on Hollywood show for Sugar Ray

By Vincent Taylor

The Palmer Park hero — the nice - guy boxer — the welterweight champion of the WBC — Sugar Ray Leonard, took part in a different kind of ring activity last week — a double - ring marriage. The champ has officially tied the knot with his lady, Juanita Wilkinson.

The ceremony was held at the First Baptist Church of Highland Park in Landover, Md. And the place was packed. People were standing in the balcony of the modern church with its white walls, paneled ceiling, and red carpet. The pews were full. One guest told her friend, "There are cars parked all the way down the road (Sheriff Rd., near Palmer Highway)."

Photographers from the news media were there in full force. The pastor of the church, who performed the marriage ceremony, Rev. James J. McCord, explained the rules to the photographers before the ceremony began.

Their huddling around the preacher couldn't help but remind one of a referee talking to two fighters at the beginning of a contest. He told the pack where they could and could not stand; when they could and could not shoot. The fame of Sugar Ray forced him to have a media - madness wedding.

An usher led a large group of people to a pew and told a reporter sitting there to move down to the other end of the pew. "These are special guests," the usher said. It was super - trainer Angelo Dundee and friends.

Dundee's name is naturally linked to champs. He's handling Sugar Ray now and handled Muhammed Ali. Dundee was gracious when both professional and amateur photographers approached him to take his picture. He even signed quite a few autographs.

In the ceremony's prelude, Milton Smith, a close friend of Sugar Ray's and a professional singer, who has worked with a number of local groups, let out a soulful version of Stevie Wonder's love ballad, "You and I." This was followed with a tune sung by the bridegroom's sister, Sandra Leonard. The song was "Together."

The main marriage ceremony was short, basic, and to the point. As the groom awaited his bride, cameras flashed. As the bride came down the aisle cameras flashed. And as the bridegroom kissed the bride, the photographers, standing behind the altar and facing the couple, let loose with a barrage of picture - taking that looked like the climax of a Fourth of July fireworks display at the Washington Monument.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Charles Leonard left for a honeymoon in Hollywood, which is appropriate because the Palmer Park hero is a star.

READY FOR THE CEREMONY — Bishop Truman C. Dixon, Rev. James J. McCord, Ray Charles Leonard (Sugar Ray) with Ray Charles Jr. and the father of the groom, Cicero Leonard, await at the altar anxiously as Juanita Wilkinson, the bride, is escorted by her father, Willie Wilkinson.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION — Besides the wedding cake, there also was a birthday cake for the bride who celebrated her birthday on the "wonderful" day. Here she and her bridegroom exchange a piece of cake while their relatives look on.

GLENARDEN MUNICIPAL HALL where the reception was held, people lined up at 10 o'clock in the morning to get in for the affair. Approximately 500 guests made the reception while some were left standing on the outside.

EVERYONE CAME — Among the numerous guests, as one would expect, were, from (L), Mr. and Mrs. Dave Jacobs (he's Sugar Ray's manager), and Mr. and Mrs. Angello Dundee (he's Leonard's trainer).
