As 1979, "The International Year of the Child" neared its end, the Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN asked readers to recommend children of courage, diligence, helpfulness and service to others who deserved recognition. The AFRO wanted to honor children.

During IYC many groups (sororities, clubs and the like) focused on the needs and rights of children and several organizations paid tribute to children already in the limelight.

Here are some other youngsters of whom we can all be proud: Barbara Scriber, Carol Ann Williams, Nettie Millard, Crystal Monroe Bey, Veronica Lynn May, Stephanie V. Yates and Charles (Chuckie) Richardson III.

Honorees were on hand at the AFRO-AMERICAN, 628 N. Eutaw St. on Feb. 5 to receive their honorary certificates from John H. Murphy III, chairman of the board.

Alexis M. Herman
Ten Women Honoree

Women's Bureau director Alexis M. Herman has been selected one of 10 women of the future by the Ladies' Home Journal.

She was chosen one of the "new women leaders in the '80s, capable in their fields and exemplifying new equality in ability and accomplishment," the Journal said.

Ms. Herman's award, an eight sided Baccarat crystal etched with her name was presented by TV personality Marlo Thomas at Women of Achievement awards ceremonies in New York City on November 28, 1979.

Upon accepting the honor, Ms. Herman said that although it is in recognition of personal achievements, she feels it "recognizes the increasing significance of the role that women play in the work force today, and it is a tribute to the work of the Women's Bureau and its relentless efforts to ensure a brighter future for all women."

Ms. Herman noted that in the decade of the '70s women entered the labor force at an average rate of over a million each year. "And we will have to strengthen our efforts to make greater economic gains during the '80s," she added.
