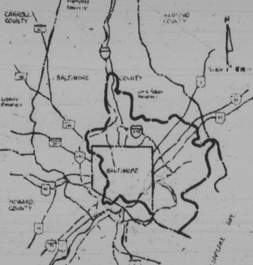
NOTICE OF PUBLIC INFORMATIONAL MEETINGS TO DISCUSS THE INTENT AND SCOPE OF THE 201 FACILITY PLAN FOR THE BACK RIVER SEWAGE CONVEYANCE SYSTEM



The City of Baltimore is initiating the preparation of a Facility Plan to examine the performance of the existing Sanitary sewerage system conveying waste water to the Back River Waste Water Treatment Plant and to demonstrate the need for extensions and improvements to the system.

The area to be studied is designated the Back River Planning Area and is bounded on the accompanying map. The area includes the northern and eastern portions of Baltimore City, the eastern portion of Baltimore County to the Gunpowder Falls and the northern portion of Baltimore County to the vicinity of Cockeysville.

An advisory committee will be formed jointly by the City of Baltimore and Baltimore County. This committee will consist of private citizens, representatives of public interest groups, public officials, and citizens or representatives of organizations with substantial economic interest in the plan. It is anticipated that the committee will be sub-divided into several task forces concerned with the planning in specific drainage basins. There will also be an executive council which will consolidate the positions taken by the task forces. It is intended that the advisory committee will assist local elected and appointed officials involved in the decision making process by making recommendations on the important economic, social and environmental issues. The committee also will foster a constructive interchange among the various interests present on the group and thereby enhance the prospect of community acceptance of the plan.

In addition, the City of Baltimore will hire a full - time Public Participation Coordinator, who will coordinate public activities, arrange meetings, distribute information, and provide a contact for the public.

Private citizens and organizations desiring to be considered for membership on the advisory committee should send a letter of interest before April 3, 1980 to

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
MASS TRANSIT ADMINISTRATION
MARYLAND DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL ASSISTANCE

I. Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the Mass Transit Administration of the Maryland Department of Transportation.

At: 7:30 P.M.
On: March 27, 1980
In: First Floor Assembly Room
Mass Transit Administration
109 East Redwood Street
Baltimore, Maryland 21202

for the purpose of considering a project for which Federal capital assistance from the U.S. Department of Transportation under Section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, is being sought, generally described as follows:

A. Description of the Project:

The Mass Transit Administration of the Maryland Department of Transportation is requesting $3,028,069 in Capital Assistance under Section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, to carry out a project consisting of:

1. Purchase of five (5) new, specially equipped vans capable of transporting 6 passengers in addition to two wheelchair positions. Each van will have a raised roof, mechanical lift, air conditioning and air pollution control devices.

2. Purchase of eighteen (18) new, advanced design, 40-passenger, air-conditioned diesel transit buses with 2 wheelchair positions, mechanical lift and air pollution control devices.

3. Purchase of spare components for buses.

4. Purchase and installation of twenty-five (25) new non-registering, locked, fareboxes and vaults.

5. Purchase of twelve (12) service and maintenance vehicles.

6. Purchase and installation of communication equipment.

The Project equipment to be acquired is for use in the Baltimore Metropolitan Area. The eighteen new, advanced design buses with wheelchair lift will provide additional equipment needed to meet the increasing demand for mass transit service in the urbanized area and represents the MTA's initial step to introduce wheelchair equipped buses in its fixed route transit service. The five new specially equipped vans will replace a like number of transit equipment currently being used in the MTA's demand-responsive MOBILITY bus operation for the elderly and handicapped, which has become uneconomical to maintain and operate. The service and maintenance vehicles will replace similar equipment used in daily maintenance activities which are in need of updating for safe and economical operation. The fareboxes, communication equipment, and spare components represent equipment normally associated with the operation of new buses for mass transit service.

The total project is estimated to cost $3,785,086. A Federal Grant of 80 percent of the project cost ($3,028,069) is being requested. The 20 percent local share ($757,017) will be financed through the Maryland Department of Transportation from State funds.

B. Relocation:

No families, individuals, business concerns or non-profit organizations will be displaced as a result of this project.

C. Environment:

No significant environmental effect, either short-term or long-term, will result from this project. Should the Urban Mass Transportation Administration prepare a formal statement of the environmental impact of the project, the availability of such statement from UMTA will be made known by publication in the same manner as publication of this Notice of Public Hearing.

D. Comprehensive Planning:

This project is included in the approved Transportation Improvement Program and Annual Element for FY 1980; has been coordinated with the Metropolitan Planning Organization and the Unified Transportation Planning Program; and, as such, has been found to be in conformance with comprehensive land use and transportation in the Baltimore Region' after review by the A-95 Clearinghouse for the region.

E. Elderly and Handicapped:

Consideration is being given to the special needs of the elderly and physically handicapped in the layout of transit routes and the provisions of passenger amenities. A reduced fare program for elderly and handicapped persons making it possible for eligible participants to ride at reduced rates with no hourly restrictions has been implemented by the MTA. The MTA, through its MOBILITY bus operation, provides special service to disabled individuals who are wheelchair users, semi-ambulatory or whose disability is such that they are not able to ride regular transit buses in a fixed route service.

F. Charter Bus Operations:

It is the position of the Mass Transit Administration not to solicit charter business. However, the MTA has honored and amended those contractual agreements and charter fares which were established by the former Baltimore Transit Company and the other private carriers acquired by the MTA. The MTA is presently prepared to operate in charter service approximately 5 buses during the heaviest week-day peak period and 125 buses during non-peak periods and on weekends. One hundred twenty-five charter trips were conducted outside the operating area in FY 1979.

There are no limitations imposed by local or State law upon the areas in which the MTA is permitted to conduct charter service upon request throughout Maryland. Charter service will not interfere in any way with regularly-scheduled mass transit service or deny open and free competition among the area's private charter operators.

G. School Bus Operations:

The Mass Transit Administration will not engage in school bus operations, exclusively for the transportation of students and school personnel, in competition with private school bus operators. The MTA continues to operate "Tripper Service" as defined by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration; that is, regularly scheduled mass transportation service which is open to the public and which is designed or modified to accommodate the needs of school students and personnel, using various fare collection or subsidy systems.

II. At the hearing, the Mass Transit Administration will afford an opportunity for interested persons or agencies to be heard with respect to the social, economic and environmental aspects of the project. Interested persons may submit orally or in writing evidence and recommendations with respect to said project.

THE MTA will provide, upon request, a qualified interpreter to assist deaf persons in understanding the proceedings of the hearing. To request such assistance, contact the person listed below no later than March 20, 1980:

Mr. William H. Elkins
Administrative Specialist
Mass Transit Administration

Phone: (301) 383-4234

III. Copies of the Application, the Transportation Improvement Program and Annual Element for FY 1980 are available for public inspection from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the above address.

—Missing man

In the case of the missing boatyard owner, Annapolis police hope they can locate him with the help of his brother-in-law, who dreamed the man was involved in violence at a narrow beach.

The brother-in-law, who lives in Virginia and who police will not identify, told police he had two dreams almost the same day Clint Riley, of Eastport, Md., disappeared two weeks ago. The relative, who said he has never been to Annapolis, described the beach perfectly, police said.

"His dreams are damned accurate," a detective said. "They're worth checking out."

The brother-in-law said his dreams depicted a beach blocked at the entrance and surrounded by barbed wire. He also said his dreams showed "a whole lot of violence — things being thrown around and such," police said

Riley disappeared from an Annapolis bar Feb. 7 and told friends he was returning to Eastport, police said. He has not been seen since.

Riley was the victim of vandalism before he disappeared. The day before his disappearance, the tires on his van were slashed. At least two fires at his boatyard were attributed to arson, police said.

Lt. Robert Emery said police are not accustomed to working with dreams, but said they will search the beach for possible evidence.

"You can't discredit this 100 percent. There are psychics who have had positive results," he said.

Black agenda conference this month

The National Conference on a Black Agenda for the 1980s will be held in Richmond, Va., from Feb. 28 to March 2.

According to M. Carl Holman, president of the National Urban Coalition and chairperson of the Conference program committee, the main focus of the conference will be on the major economic, social, political, and international concerns of black Americans.

Holman said individuals and organizations invited to the conference are being asked to concentrate on those objectives, strategies and tactics most likely to move blacks from dependency to self-sufficiency and from tokenism to full participation. Within the total black population, special attention will be given to young blacks in the 16-to-24 year-old age group, to heads of households, and to the elderly, Holman said.

The first two and one-half days of the conference will be devoted to developing the Black Agenda through a series of plenary sessions and workshops. The final day will be devoted to presidential forums where Democratic and Republican candidates will be questioned about agenda items.

The four-day conference is being convened by the Black Leadership Forum, National Conference of Black Mayors, National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials, the National Black Caucus of State Legislators, and the National Black Leadership Roundtable which represents the heads of more than 100 national organizations.

Embezzlement case jury is selected

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — A jury has been selected to hear a case leveled against the Rev. George Leake and three co-defendants charged with embezzling money from a federally-funded program for alcoholics.

Five women and seven men were seated Feb. 5 in the U.S. District Court in Charlotte for the trial. The charges involve more than $70,000 allocated by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism to Innovative and Concentrated Approaches to Combating Drug Use Inc.

The ICACDU was established in 1974 as a treatment and rehabilitation program for black, low-income alcoholics.

Leake, who is 50, is a civil rights leader in Charlotte and a bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. He is director of Innovative.

He is being tried along with the Rev. Alton Hunnicutt, 48, pastor of Greenville Memorial AME Zion Church, who is counselor with the program; Robert Faulkner, 40, assistant program director, and Febra Dry, 27, former counselor, now serving as an administrative assistant in the program.

Leake, Faulkner and Hunnicutt are accused of receiving $18,000 while Dry is accused of receiving $1,701 of embezzled money, as part of a 14 - count indictment handed down last April.

The indictment charges that the defendants converted federal funds to their own use or for the use of others, to pay personal debts and obligations and to purchase personal gifts.

The indictment charges that they conspired, and made false representations, to the government agency about employees, suppliers and consultants who received federal money. The defendants are charged with using false invoices, receipts, applications, contracts and mileage vouchers to embezzle funds.

Leake is also charged with receiving $303 more in embezzled money and of embezzling with Faulkner more than $40,000. He is also accused of assisting Faulkner in the embezzlement of some $30,000 more.

Hunnicutt is charged with three counts of aiding and abetting Leake and Faulkner in embezzlement.

Leake said the charges were part of an FBI conspiracy to punish him for his civil rights activities, following the indictment last year.

His attorney, James Ferguson, told the prospective jurors Feb. 5 that Leake has never misused any of the federal money, that the only money he received was in salary and reimbursement for expenses.

WINS RECOGNITION — Art has played an important role in the history of black Americans, whose accomplishments are being honored during National Afro-American History Month in February. A century ago, black artists could only succeed if their works were not identified with their race. Today, however, black artists like Francis H. (Sonny) Brown have achieved national recognition through emphasis on black subjects. An example of such work is Brown's "Deborah-Martha's Vineyard 1978" (above), which was selected for the North Carolina Artists Competition sponsored by R. J. Reynolds Industries Inc.

A&T gives hero's welcome to 4 sit-in pioneers

GREENSBORO, N.C. — When four A&T State University freshmen students staged a sit-in at the local Woolworth's twenty years ago, little did they know that their decision would cast them firmly into American History.

How much this is true was apparent last Friday when Franklin McCain, Joseph McNeill, Jibreel Khazan, and David Richmond returned to the city to celebrate the 20th anniversary of their daring deed, which set off a national civil rights movement.

The A&T family honored its distinguished sons at a mammoth university-wide convocation and at two public receptions.

Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor, presented the four men with specially designed and embroidered navy blue blazers. A&T State University National Alumni Association president, Dr. Velma Speight, gave the heroes laminated plaques; and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People also presented them plaques.

The Greensboro community, the governor's office and the office of the vice president of the United States also had tributes for the men, and a permanent historic marker was unveiled at the corner of Elm Street and Friendly Road, two blocks north of the Woolworth's store.

In a luncheon in the Hilton inn, Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, former A&T president, said, "The sit-in demonstration of 1960 was the watershed of the movement of America's black population toward full integration into this society.

"Because of their courage," added Proctor, "the end came quickly to an entire system of demeaning, dehumanizing and divisive customs and mores."

When the four former A&T students returned to the Woolworth's store for an early morning breakfast on Feb. 1, their anniversary date, this time the meal was paid for by the management.

In addition the four men attracted more than 50 newsmen, including represenat of three national networks, the major newspapers and newsmen from several foreign nations.

Mrs. Shirley Frye, assistant vice chancellor for development and university relations was chairperson of the Greensboro observance, which was one of the largest ever staged in this city.

Woolworth's also unveiled a plaque in honor of the men in front of the store, and in addition, donated $6,000 to A&T to initiate a lecture series each February in honor of the sit-ins.

N. C. 'brown lung' victim to renew compensation suit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Disabled cotton-mill worker John Moore plans to renew his claim for workers' compensation due to an ailment, byssinosis or "brown lung," which he says forced him to retire from the J. P. Stevens textile plant in April, 1975.

Paul Michaels, Moore's attorney, said a story that ran in a Charlotte newspaper recently included a statement by one of the physicians who examined his client three years ago. The story revealed that the doctor has since decided a worker can have byssinosis and not display certain symptoms, Michaels said, and that sparked the decision to refile the claim.

Moore, 67, was examined in 1977 by Dr. Mario Battigelli of Chapel Hill, who concluded that he didn't have byssinosis, a disease caused by years of breathing cotton dust, because the mill worker didn't describe symptoms of shortness of breath the first day back to work after a weekend.

Battigelli reportedly has said patients who suffer from the disease need not necessarily describe these "Monday morning" symptoms.

But his testimony on Moore's medical examination in 1977 was used by the N.C. Industrial Commission to deny any compensation for Moore in June, 1979. The claim was denied despite the fact that a Duke University lung specialist, Dr. Herbert Sieker, had diagnosed Moore with byssinosis in June, 1978, just six months after Battigelli's diagnosis.

A doctor's opinion on the classic symptoms played an important part in commission decisions until the North Carolina Supreme Court ruled that the commission should decide compensation based on whether the disease was job-related.

Both Sieker and Battigelli were members of an occupational diseases committee appointed by the commission.

Battigelli has said he will re-examine Moore if Michaels asks him, but would not say if he would find Moore's breathing problems were due to cotton dust.

He said he had not found anything else to distinguish lung disease caused by cotton dust from other lung ailments, but the so-called "Monday morning" symptoms are "no longer detensible," Battigelli said.

"If Battigelli will sign an affidavit stating those things, I'm going to move that he re-examine the man," Michaels said.

And William Stephenson, chairman of the state commission, said, "We would certainly be interested in seeing a motion from Michaels on the grounds of newly discovered evidence."

If the Moore case is reopened it could help other cotton-mill workers whose compensation has been denied or reduced for similar reasons, according to Robin Hudson, a Raleigh attorney who represents workers in brown lung cases.

Hudson said four of the nine cases she has appealed from the commission to the N.C. Court of Appeals involve this issue.

Michaels said he has represented at least 10 brown lung victims who each had to settle for less money because they didn't describe the "Monday morning" symptoms.

Moore worked at the J. P. Stevens plant for 39 years. He would be eligible to receive a maximum of $32,000 or $80 a week, plus medical benefits, if the commission reverses its ruling.

Of the 39 years spent working in the textile mill, Moore spent 38 years in the card room, where machines straighten cotton fibers. That area is considered one of the dustiest areas in any cotton textile mill.

"There wasn't nothing in there but dust," Moore said. "I was the first man to put my hands on the cotton."

Moore and his wife Louise, currently live on a $500-a-month Social Security allocation.

By Naomi C. McLean

A one-woman art exhibit was shown in the gallery of the Fine Arts Building at Winston-Salem State University recently by Mrs. Jewel Woodard Simon.

She received her A.B. degree from Atlanta University and a bachelor of fine arts from Atlanta College of Art.

The watercolor and oil drawings of Mrs. Simon created a great deal of interest from visitors. She has exhibited her works in the Museum of Fine Arts Museum, the Negro in America Touring Show, University of California Los Angeles, and the Experiment in Friendship, Moscow and Leningrad.

Sponsors for the exhibition were members of the Lyceum Visual Arts Series at Winston-Salem State University.

At a recent meeting was the reviewing of old books by members of The Book Club of Today.

A two-fold program was presented by the literature committee after the business session. Part one consisted of some club members appearing in costume as characters from various books, and others identified them while judges rated each for accuracy of portrayal, synopsis of the book represented and length of time for identifying.

Mrs. Wilma Lassiter who portrayed Calpurnia, the wife of Julius Caesar; Mrs. Emmalene Goodwin as Old Mother Hubbard; and Mrs. Ivyneil McDaniel as Miss Jane Pittman were the winners.

Other participants were Mrs. Maybelle Hedgley as Mrs. Oleson from "Little House on the Prairie" and Mrs. Lillian Lewis as "Lavendar and Old Lace."

The second part of the program, club members commented and presented briefly some of the oldest copyrighted books in their personal libraries.

Mrs. Iola Dobson won first prize for an 1830 Bible and Mrs. Hedgley second prize for an 1839 copy of "Pilgrim's Progress."

Other interesting presentations were Wilma Lassiter's 1846 "Writings of Thomas Babington Macauley and 1862 "The World's Workship in Stone," Lillian Lewis' 1869 "Complete Works of Milton," Anne Kennedy's 1879 "Arithmetic," Modena Earl's 1850 Ballads and 1890 "Robert Browning," Martha Atkins' 1880 "Favorite Poems," Emmalene Goodwin's 1883 "Book of Theology," Irma Gadson's 1895 "New Latin Grammar," and Bronnie Daniel's 1897 "Social Teachings of Jesus."

Works listed as unusual were Lassiter's 1904 "Brimstone Bargains in the Marriage Market" which advocated strongly women's rights and Marion Wooten's book which she made entirely in 1940.

The meeting was held at Mrs. Geneva Brown's home, 2045 East End Boulevard. Committee members responsible for the program were Modesta Earl, club president; Bronnie Daniels, Barbara Hayes, Edna Revels and Maybelle Hedgley.
