800 attend prayer breakfast at the Convention Center

"Jesus is still on the main line, tell Him what you want," is what the Rev. Dr. Harold A. Carter, pastor of New Shiloh Baptist Church told 800 guests who attended a prayer breakfast at the Convention Center on March 22.

The breakfast was sponsored by the Fire Renovation and Expansion Drive Committee, a volunteer auxiliary of the United Baptist Missionary Convention.

Proceeds from the breakfast will be used to purchase an air conditioner for the Baptist Aged Home at 2807 Raynor Ave., where 33 residents live.

"One reason we don't have too much power is because we have too muchstatic on the line. We got to get all that mess off the line. God is a main line, a sanctifying line and a faithful line. Jesus is on the main line, tell Him what you want," said Rev. Carter.

He told the guests, "We try to keep the Lord in the church but Jesus is moving everywhere. Wherever people are Jesus is there. If you have unity with God you will hold on."

Mayor William Schaefer presented a proclamation to the Rev. Lorenzo Graves, designating March 22 as United Baptist Aged Home Day in Baltimore.

Mayor Schaefer promised the committee that he would contribute $100 to the Baptist Aged Home so his name could be written in gold in the memory book at the Baptist home.

An award was presented to the Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Jones, president of the home and the Rev. Dr. Lorenzo Graves, chairperson of the F.R.E.D. committee for their services.

Mrs. Bessie H. Mason presided at the breakfast. Mrs. Arthur J. Payne wife of the Rev. Arthur J. Payne, presented a check for $300 to Rev. Jones from the Vags Club to be used for the Baptist home.

Other program participants were Mesdames Celia McLeod, Theophra Silver, Betty Johnson, Marlene Carter. Also, the Rev. Edgar L. Reid, Rev. Dr. Matthew R. Silver, C. C. Alexander.

Committee members were Miss Helen V. Benton, Mesdames Lustrina Coleman, Mary E. Harrington, Marjorie R. Green, Betty Graves, Lillian Cotes, Chessie Brailey, Mary E. Harrington, Mamie Cousins, Lisa Reynolds.

Services of ordination to the professional ministry for Mrs. Ida May Wells, were held March 23 at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 3200 Walbrook Ave.

The Rev. Mrs. Wells felt that her life was incomplete in spite of her successful career, and God called her to the Christian ministry. She enrolled in Johnson C. Smith Seminary, Atlanta, Georgia, a part of the Interdenominational Theological Center and was the valedictorian of the May 1979 graduating class, summa cum laude. She received the ITC faculty scholarship award as well as the Johnson C. Smith scholarship award.

While at Smith Seminary, she was on the national dean's list 1978 and 1979 and received the Clark Preaching Award, Higgins Scholarship and McGhee Public Relations Award. She also participated in a traveling seminar to the Soviet Union in 1977.

From 1977-1979, she served as student pastor of the Lawrence United Presbyterian Church, Morristown, Tennessee and since receiving her degree, she is serving as a consultant for black clergy recruitment, as well as pursuing her Ph.D. at Emory University.

After graduating from Morgan, she taught 10 years in the public schools and served as executive director, Anti-Poverty Programs for the Aging for four years. During these years, she was active in both the church and community.

At Trinity Presbyterian Church, she was a member of the Evangelism Committee, a church school teacher, day camp coordinator and served as deaconess and ruling elder.

Her community involvements include charter member and secretary, Four Winds Child Study Group, Adult Advisor, Beta Iota Tau Sigma Sorority, Inc., for Teenage Girls, Den Mother at Trinity Presbyterian Church and several other organizations.
