St. Stephen to share palms in community

The congregation at the St. Stephen and the Incarnation Church, 16th & Newton Sts., N.W., will carry-out a ten year-old tradijion as they proceed through neighboring communities distributing palms, Sunday, Mar. 30, following the a.m. worship service.

Father Jack Woodard, who has been rector at the church for one year, stated that the dramatic overtones of the whole occasion centers around the fact that members of the congregation were carrying on in the same fashion when the upper northwest streets were under the patrol of U. S. National Guardsmen during the 1968 riots.

"Good Friday this year marks the exact same calendar day that Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was slain, leaving many of the homes guttered and war torn," said Woodard.

The Palm Sunday distribution will be carried out by an estimated 100 parishioners, beginning with services inside of the sanctuary, where special prayers will be offered for the slain civil rights leader, and later hitting the streets at approximately 10:45a.m.
