The May Festival held at Thomas G. Hayes Elementary School No. 102, 601 N. Central Ave. on Thursday, May 22, was a smashing success.

The festival committee, headed by Mrs. Annie Thompson, chairperson for the affair and a third grade teacher at the school, had something for everyone.

Activities got underway shortly after the school day began and continued throughout the day.

First on the agenda was the coronation of the May King and Queen and their runners - up. The winners in this event were pupil contestants who had sold the most king and queen chances prior to May 22.

Davona Moore was crowned queen, with Jeanne Jones the runner - up. Daniel Lomax was crowned king, with Dorian Casey as the runner - up.

The king and queen received color television sets. The runners - up received cassette recorders.

Crowning of the royalty for the day was done by Warren A. Sears, principal of the school.

Following the coronation there were many dances of all kinds — interpretive, folk, square — to name a few, and there was even a Maypole Dance, done by a kindergarten class.

Acrobatics were also done by some of the pupils.

There was an abundance of booths which provided popcorn, hot dogs, potato chips, baked goods, sodas and snowballs for the children, at Thomas G. Hayes, children from several neighboring schools who attended and for parents who came out to enjoy the festivities of the day.

Additionally, there was a nearly - new clothes booth, for the thrifty fashion - conscious, a white elephant table where folks could buy nifty jewelry, a school - made crafts booth, with many, colorful stuffed animals and even a plant booth for flower and plant lovers.

To the delight of the children, there were huge balloons and a clown make - up booth, manned by Thomas Miller, Art resource teacher at the school.

There were nine game tables which opened after the completion of the dances and where many tried their hand at winning and walked away with prizes.

For those who wanted to go, there were cartoons shown in one of the classrooms on the first floor.

It was a fantastic May festival, which netted the school $1,700, which will be used for school expenses (machines and materials).

New fashion house opens

Casa-Carlitos presents fashion show

Casa - Carlitos House of Fashions, a new fashion house in Baltimore, headed by Charles (Charlie) Stewart, of this city, held a fashion festival at the Holiday Inn Belmont recently.

Fashions aired were designed by Earlene Stokes, Carolyn Jackson, Debbie Cloud, Ken Carter, George Brown, Stephanie Taylor and Julia Lewis. Ken Carter and George Brown designed the men's wear.

Featured were colothes for casual and business wear, after five, disco and swimwear.

The uniqueness of this show was the fact that fashions were modeled which would be great for the petite and average woman as well as for the more fully - bodied and the very tall woman.

For the petite woman (up to 5'2") Debbie Cloud had whipped up several dreamy outfits.

For the average and more fully - bodied woman luscious looking, colorful styles were done by Carolyn Jackson.

For the tall woman (5'8" and above) Julia Lewis introduced some nifty, sophisticated numbers.

It was the first time these particular designers had put together a show for Casa - Carlitos.

The purpose of the festivat was to showcase the talents of the designers and to introduce the new fashion house.

The show was done for the benefit of the King's Landing Women, a social - charitable club of this city.

The many guests who came enjoyed a delicious Holiday Inn buffet, wine and cocktails.

On the scene was Selah, a black woman of the Jewish faith, who recently recorded 'The Ghost of Your Love,' on Debbie Records.

Debbie Cloud, Julia Lewis and George Brown modeled their own clothing to show it off to its best advantage.

Willy Drayton was the commentator. Other models were Ruth Muller, Wanda Holland, Rose Davis, Freda Carter, Valerie Dorant, and Dickie Noris.

Music for modeling and the dancing after the fashion segment was provided by Lew Nixon.
