Donald E. Brown Jr. graduates from U. of Md. Med School

Donnie Brown was a good acolyte, pronounced the Rev. Donald O. Wilson, as a part of his prayer with the family and friends of Donald E. Brown, Jr., recent graduate of the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

A close friend, Leon Gilmore, further spoke of family support and devotion as the main ingredients necessary for young people to reach their goal.

Dr. Donald Brown, Jr., responded in like manner. He said that the many things he hoped for were realized by the early discipline of the church and the selfless giving of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Wolf, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Murphy and those unable to be present.

Dr. Brown, son of the late Donald E. Brown, did his undergraduate work at Howard University and the U.S. Air Force Academy in Denver, having graduated from Baltimore Polytechnic Institute in Baltimore.

He received a B.S. in zoology from Howard in 1975 and taught for a year at Baltimore Poly. Institute before entering the University School of Medicine.

Dr. Brown will be doing his internship at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta, Ga.

His mother, Nancy Wolf, hovered about in an electric blue silk with a shocking pink sash, tending to the guests at the elegant intimate dinner reception in honor of her son at the Carlyle Apartments.

Guests who toasted the medical graduate included:

Rev. and Mrs. Donald O. Wilson, Drs. and Mesdames Clarence Monroe, Daniel Skinner, I. Bradshaw Higgins; Messrs. and Mesdames William Spencer, Robert Dudley, Walter Reilly, Frank Pullen, Edgar Murphy, Alan Wolf, John H. Murphy, III, Samuel Boyd, Charles A. Celonia Walden honored by B.P.W.C. of Columbia

THE SOJOURNER TRUTH AWARD was presented to a smiling Mrs. Celonia Walden by the Columbia Chapter of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at its second annual Fashion Show and Awards Program held at Cross Keys Inn recently.

By Pinnie L. Ross

The Columbia Chapter of Business and Professional Women presented its second annual Fashion show recently at the Cross Keys Inn in Columbia.

The Fashion show got underway after an early breakfast was served at 11:00 a.m. consisting of assorted juices, scrambled eggs, bacon, hash brown potatoes, assorted breads, breakfast pastries, coffee and tea.

It was the first Breakfast Fashion show to be held in Columbia and from the whispers of the well-dressed ladies attending the show it will not be the last one.

Greetings were given by Ernestine De Berry after which Sylvia Cooke Martin gave the invocation.

The Fashion show titled "Fashion Conscious," was presented by Act I & II Designers Boutique of Ellicott City. It opened with a fast disco number called "The Beat Goes On" and the lovely models danced disco and brought the house down.

In the next scene, called "Fashion Concious" (day wear), the young ladies did related poses to each other on the floor.

The whispers really abounded when the scene called "The Look" was presented.

The latest happenings in the fashion world in the 80s and a peek into the early fall collection — a special collection of Baltimore's Twenty year old Avery brought much applause from the audience.

(Terrance Avery is the designer son of Mrs. Willie Mae Moore and will be attending Fashion Institute in New York come September). "Beyond the Blue Horizon" was the last scene. It climaxed the show with an array of evening fashions.

The lovely Mrs. Jean Taylor was Fashion Show Chairperson.

Mrs. Evelyn McClurkin, chairperson for awards presented by the B & P group, made presentations to the following recipients:

Mrs. Celonia Bonks Walden of Wilde Lake Village Green received the Sojourner Truth Award in recognition of her vision, leadership, dedication and service as a volunteer worker and her community involvement on boards council and foundations.

She has given outstanding community service beyond the call of duty and has distinguished herself through her endless efforts and contributions to community life in the areas of character building, interracial goodwill, cultural relations.

Mrs. Sylvia Cooke Martin received the professional award, for Distinguished Service and outstanding Leadership in the professions.

Relax—'Precise' is here

Local hair stylists had an opportunity last weekend to learn new techniques in hair styling at a two day seminar sponsored by Freedom Distributors.

The seminar was held at Mondawmin Mall.

Young told the AFRO, "The beauticians were the reason why we had the show and to introduce 'Precise' to the public."

Young says Precise is the only relaxer on the market that is guaranteed to condition the hair as it relaxes it.

According to Young, Precise is a professional item and made only for beauticians to use because of the chemical perm.

The product is only sold at Freedom Distributors and nearly 700 beauticians in the Baltimore and Washington area are now using Precise.

Citizens attending the seminar were given the opportunity to serve as models for the Precise product.

Ultra Sheen's Precise conditioning relaxer is the state of the art in relaxers. It is a revoluntionary, patented product that conditions and relaxes the hair to the degree you desire.

The special conditioning agent in Ultra Sheen's Precise relaxer actually repairs split ends and fly away fibers.

No other conditioner or cream rinse is needed immediately after Ultra Sheen's Precise conditioning relaxer has been used.

Unlike ordinary relaxers, Ultra Sheen's Precise conditioning relaxer leaves a cationic conditioner in the hair, even after three recommended latherings with this cleansing neutralizer shampoo.

There are three Precise conditioning relaxers formulas — special formula for color treated hair, standard formula for all hair textures and custom formula for maximum relaxation of all hair textures.
