"He's usually not this much fun to travel with."

Take an Amtrak train like our "Crescent," and you'll find lots more seatroom and legroom than you're probably used to.

But our "Crescent"—like all our trains—gives you more than more room. Our plush seats recline. Our windows are wide. And you'll find good food at good prices—plus friendly, courteous Amtrak people to help make your trip as enjoyable as it should be.

Best part is, all these comforts for your body won't cost you an arm and a leg. Our low excursion fares, discounts for elderly and handicapped travelers, and a dollar-stretching family plan with 50% to 75% discounts off regular coach fares make sure of it.

So before you take to the highway, take a few moments to call your travel agent or Amtrak. Because we don't just give you more room for your body. We give you more vacation for your dollar.

Ex-Marine wants reinstatement to Corps

By James M. Abraham
AFRO Staff Writer

The tall man looked like a soldier when he came in the door. He had military bearing, and approached the desk of a reporter almost as if he was marching.

Jackie White is a former Marine Corps staff sergeant who was recently discharged from the service, allegedly for allowing a deserter to escape.

But the soft - spoken ex-Marine claims the charges are false, and still looks forward to the day when he can rejoin the corps.

White spent two years in the army, during which he served 13 months in Vietnam. Upon his discharge from the Army, he joined the Marines in 1973, and served until being court-martialed and mustered out of the corps in July 1979.

"I had come back from Okinawa," he said, "and was assigned to Cherry Point, North Carolina, (a Marine base). I volunteered to go to El Toro, (another base), to get some deserters and bring them back."

White says that his orders merely required him to return the deserters to his North Carolina base, and a look at his orders confirm this.

However, upon return to the base, one of the deserters escaped. White was charged with aiding the prisoner's escape.

Despite an outstanding service record and the endorsements of his immediate superiors, White was court-martialed, found guilty, and mustered out of the Marines.

He was also given an E-4 designation, which means that he cannot be re-admitted into the ranks of the Corps.

Since the court-martial a year ago, White has been fighting to rejoin the service. He has petitioned Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-7, to investigate his case. Mitchell's office, upon making inquiries, was told that White would have to re-enlist all over again, as a private, but when White attempted to do so, he was refused on the grounds that his previous record did not merit his re-enlistment.

So now the ex-fighting man is out of uniform, probably for the rest of his life. He says he is bitter toward his former service, and is contemplating a lawsuit. But he still wants to rejoin the Marines.

When asked why, he replied, "Well, there's nothing out here...

Beth Steel layoffs could force cut in unemployment benefits

Contined layoffs at the Bethlehem Steel Corp. could force a reduction in supplemental unemployment benefits paid to idled workers, but probably not in the near future, a union official said Wednesday.

"I don't think it will have any effect right now," said David Wilson, president of the United Steelworkers of America Local 2609. "Will they be cut? Eventually if layoffs continue, I expect so. But I expect that's a couple of months down the road."

Wilson said a cut in supplemental benefits, which are financed by paycheck contributions and boost unemployment pay to 80 percent of a worker's salary, would not affect all of those laid off by Bethlehem.

"People with over 20 years are guaranteed benefits," he said. "It would hurt people with less than 20 years service. And people with less than two years don't get them anyway."

News that 700 additional workers at the Sparrows Point plant will be laid off within 10 days prompted concern that a reduction in supplemental benefits is around the corner.

"You can't continue with big layoffs and still continue 100 percent of 'supp pay,'" said Joseph Kolelchuck, president of Local 2610 of the USWA. "I am hopeful we'll hold our own. But if the economy continues to slump, who knows?"

Sparrows Point officials plan to shut down a blast furnace and two remaining furnaces currently operating in the open hearth shop by June 28 because of the decline in orders.

The closings are expected to bring to 5,615 the number of workers laid off from jobs at the plant, which normally employs 18,300.

To date, 4,915 of the company's workers have been laid off or temporarily furloughed. That number exceeds the 3,000 workers idled during the 1974 recession.

The firm has a weekly payroll of $10 million.

Goodwill weeking $ for adult camp

Plans are under way for Baltimore Goodwill Industries' annual summer camp for handicapped adults, agency President Harvey E. Kettering II, announced this week.

Brooks Robinson, a member of Goodwill's board of governors, has been named camp chairman again this year.

Donations are being received from persons interested in helping the agency support the camp program and rehabilitation services. A donation of $10 will enable a handicapped adult to attend Camp Goodwill for one of the five days.

More than 200 handicapped workers and clients from the metropolitan area and neighboring Goodwills in Frederick and Hagerstown are invited to enroll for the week-long resident camp beginning Aug. 25, at Camp Glyndon.

Recreational activities will include swimming, arts and crafts and several tournaments. Entertainment programs are planned for the evenings, and a special visit will be made by Robinson during the week-long camp.

Contributions to Camp Goodwill may be sent to Goodwill Campers, Box 2907, Baltimore, Md. 21229.

The new Chevrolet Caprice for 1980. We made it right for more family mileage.

New technology is what makes the Chevrolet Caprice a great family car for the '80s. A standard 3.8 liter V6 engine offers the highest EPA gas mileage estimate ever in a full size Chevrolet.

That gives you 450 miles estimated driving range and 650 miles estimated highway driving range. The greater the driving range the fewer the fuel stops. The Caprice's new aerodynamic shape and easy rolling tires contribute to its impressive fuel economy. Even though Caprice has been reshaped, it still offers six passenger roominess, ride and comfort. It even has more useable trunk space than last year. Plus new anti-corrosion protection and engineering advances that make it a great family car to own. See one now at your Chevrolet Dealer. We think it is right for the '80s. You will too.

Remember. Compare the boxed estimated mpg to the "estimated mpg of other cars. You may get different mileage, and range depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, and trip length. Your actual highway mileage and range will probably be less than the highway estimates. Driving range estimates were obtained by multiplying the EPA mileage estimates by the car's 25 gallon fuel tank capacity. The new Chevrolet is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your Chevy dealer for details.
