Myth about black homeowners exploded

BLACK CHAMP — Successful real estate developer Ted Baker feels that black people have pride in home ownership "if the home is worthy of such pride." Baker who lives in a home valued at more than $80,000 hosted a fund-raising dinner party in his plush digs for Los Angeles County Supervisor Yvonne B. Burke (R). The "celebrity" party was arranged by Margaret Nash (L) currently head of the music publishing department of Dick Griffey's SOLAR Records.

LOS ANGELES (KNS) — Charging that black people in urban areas throughout the United States have been taking a "bum rap," real estate developer Ted Baker told an audience of homeowners here that blacks definitely do have pride in homeownership and that they do not singularly contribute to the deflation of house and property values.

"Black people in America are, for the most part, hard - working and of strong moral character, and statements that blacks depress housing values or do not properly maintain their property are false and an insult to every black American homeowner," said Baker, who released findings of an independent, private survey taken on housing construction and rehabilitation in predominantly black - populated urban centers.

The survey revealed that housing designed primarily for blacks and other ethnic minorities is shabbily constructed when compared to housing built for the average white American family. The survey was commissioned by Baker and included response from major black developers in several large cities throughout the nation.

"The myth that blacks have no pride in homeownership is exploded when you strip down a house in areas where large numbers of blacks own homes only to find that there is nothing in its construction or design that would cause any sane person to take pride in it," Baker said.

Real estate developers oftentimes buy boarded - up houses in depressed neighborhoods, rehabilitate them, then resell them to qualified purchasers, said Ted Baker, great - grandson of Henry Baker, a confidante of the late Dr. George Washington Carver Jr.

"When blacks are sold houses with built - in plumbing and drainage problems, poor interior layout and design, and only cosmetic and shallow touches applied to coerce the prospective homebuyer, pride in home ownership fades as the victim realizes that he is unable to secure the funds needed to really put the house in 'liveable shape,'" Baker said.

These disillusioned people eventually end up walking away from the property and the federal government picks up an inventory that consists of a lot of almost worthless property. Self - appointed spokesman, Baker said, then villify these unfortunate people and the media is quick to spread the word that "black people cause property values to decrease."

A concensus of the developers surveyed indicates that there is little hope that the federal government can do anything to help the victims of fraudulently - constructed housing because of its massive political bureaucracy.

"There is no shortage of pride in the black community here in America, only a shortage of equality and justice," said Baker, a native of Tuskegee, Alabama and now a prominent Southern California businessman.

Peace Corps now recruiting

WASHINGTON — Additional opportunities have been announced by the Peace Corps for Americans with backgrounds in agriculture, forestry, math and science to serve as Peace Corps volunteers in developing nations.

Peace Corps director Richard F. Celeste said: "We take it as a sign of the acceptance and recognition of the Peace Corps that developing nations continue to request additional volunteers, especially in these skill areas."

Needed as teachers are persons with degrees in math, science, biology or chemistry. Applicants for service in agricultural projects should have a BS or AS degree, or experience in agriculture or animal husbandry. Foresry projects in developing nations require volunteers with a degree in forestry, biology, botany or natural resources.

The volunteers would begin their training during the summer or fall months.

After training, Peace Corps volunteers serve two years assisting people in other countries. Peace Corps volunteers must be able to adapt to a new environment to organize their work with people in the communities they serve with a minimum amount of supervision. An applicant must be a U.S. citizen and at least 18 years old. There is no upper age limit.

An applicant must be medically qualified and, if married, serve with his or her spouse.

Transportation is provided to training sites and to and from the overseas assignment as well as for home leave in the event of a family emergency. While in training and during service, the volunteer receives a monthly allowance for rent, food, travel and is provided all medical care. A readjustment allowance of $125 a month is set aside, payable on completion of service.

For more information on serving in the Peace Corps, write Peace Corps - ACTION, Washington, D.c. 20525, or contact the nearest Peace Corps regional or area office. Information on service may also be obtained by calling toll - free: 800-424 - 8580, ext 93. In Alaska and Hawaii, call toll - free: 800 - 424 - 9704. In Washington, D.C., call 254-7346.
