Health dept. lists sites, dates for innoculations

The Baltimore City Health Department has scheduled additional inoculation clinics in August and September for children needing immunizations for school.

Students must be immunized against diptheria, pertussis (whooping cough), tetanus, polio, measles (rubeola) and German (rubella) in order to stay in school.

The immunization shots are free and parents may take their children to any of the following clinics:

Druid Health District, 1515 W. North Ave., Sept. 8 and 15, noon to 3 p.m.; Eastern Health District, 630 N. Caroline St., Sept. 2 and 23, noon to 3 p.m. Southern Health District, 1211 Wall St., Sept. 3 and Sept. 24, noon - 3 p.m.; and Western Health District, 700 W. Lombard St., Sept. 12 and Sept. 19, noon to 3 p.m.

The student exclusion date for those who remain unprotected is Sept. 26. School officials report that any student who has not met immunization requirements will not be admitted to school after that date.

Parents who fail to have their children properly immunized, and as a result those students are withheld from school, may face court action instituted by school officials.

With the current immunization program now in its fifth year, Dr. Robert Lloyd, assistant superintendent for pupil services, comments that "parents must protect their children against childhood diseases. There is no excuse for not protecting children against the possibility of dangerous illness."

West Indian setting at the Ritz

West Indian food, interpretive dancing and good company were the features at a recent affair held at The Ritz, that popular downtown nightspot.

The party was held by Robert Clay, of Robert Clay Inc., in honor of Marva Rigsby, first runner-up in the Pageant of Career Women, held during the first week of August.

Guests munched on sumptuous West Indian cuisine, including curried chicken and rice, red beans and chicken, and pilaf.

For those with aesthetic bent, gorgeous Ava Fields and her talented troupe of dancers performed a series of selections which left the audience crying for more.

Notables spotted living it up at the bash included Supreme Bench judges Robert Bell, Solomon Baylor and Elsbeth Bothe.

Other party-goers were Deborah Young from Mass Attractions Hair Salon; Walter Dean, state delegate from the 41st district; Tobie Marsh, pert anchorperson from a local television station; young modelling czar Travis Winkey; and a host of others.

Besides the political figures mentioned above, the place crackled with political energy as Ms. Rigsby urged the crowd to exercise their right to vote.

The 200 guests partied til closing, (2 A.M.), and, judging from comments heard by exciting revelers, a smashing time was had by all.

Birthday party for AFRO baby

More than 75 friends and relatives of Nathaniel Hoarce Scott III gathered at the New Era Child Development Center recently to pay tribute to young Scott, who celebrated his fifth birthday.

Scott, known to friends and acquaintances as "Scotty", is the son of Paulite Bass Scott, who organized a sumptuous repast for the multitude of guests.

Scotty was visibly thrilled at the attention lavished upon him at the reception, and told a reporter that "I'm glad to be going to the kindergarten."

The diminutive gentleman holds the distinction of sharing his August 11 birthday with the 1889 founding of the Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers.

He says he also has plans to become a dominant force in the city for "his people", and, according to relatives, he currently nourishes plans to become a preacher.

Scotty has been known to assemble small groups of his playmates or family members, and give them short sermons on a variety of topics.

He is a precocious youth, and great things are expected of him in the future.

Scott will be matriculating at the New Era Child Development center's kindergarten beginning in September
